Trade Board, To Mediate Code Rows, Considered

Johnson Launches Mass Hiring Drive

Investment Campaign in New NRA Program Also Starts.

A plan for mediation of all NRA member complaints and virtual enforcement of codes by trade associations—in effect by industry itself—has drawn the support of the United States Chamber of Commerce, it was learned last night.

Chamber executives unofficially interpreted the proposal as likely to herald the end of NRA as a fact-finding organization. It was stressed, however, that the program contemplated retention by the recovery administration of the power to review and, if necessary, to reverse rulings of the trade organizations.

News of the possible change in NRA set-up followed inauguration by Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson of a drive for mass re-employment. He wrote employers asking how many men they could hire "and if not, why not?"

At the same time, Frank C. Walker, head of the President's Emergency Council, announced a survey of possible new investment fields into which idle private capital could be pumped as a means of creating jobs.

Weighed By Johnson.

Johnson was said to have the trade association control plan under consideration as the potential crowning move of the recently announced NRA reorganization which elevated W. Averill Harriman to the rank of special assistant in charge of the transformation.

One of the cardinal principles in the plan to have industry establish its own machinery for settlement of NRA problems would involve appointment of regional trade association boards. Some 2,000 trade organizations, covering all major industries, would figure in the innovation. Their decisions in all disputes would be final unless NRA elected to intervene.

A chamber bulletin on the subject, to be acted on at the May National convention here, commented:

"In case conflicts arise out of the administration of codes, the respective code authorities of the industries affected should, through conference, jointly seek a satisfactory solution, submitting such solution where necessary to the National Recovery Administration for approval. Only in the event that satisfactory solution can not be agreed upon by the representatives of the respective industries should conflicts be submitted to the National Recovery Administration for adjustment and settlement. Individual concerns should have the right to appeal to

Three Accused In Murder Plot

Lawyer's Plan to Kill Wife's Father Exposed as Tool Confesses.

Boston, Mass., March 30 (AP).—Charged with conspiracy to kill Frank W. Vaughan, retired Medford leather manufacturer, at his Daytona, Fla., winter home, three men, one of them his son-in-law, were held today in $5,000 bail each for hearing April 30.

Marshall L. Cross, 24, Boston lawyer and husband of Vaughn's daughter, Mabel; Ernest W. Pollister, 19, and Thomas Karydis, 27, both of Lynn, all pleaded not guilty in Municipal Court.

Cross allegedly paid Pollister $380 to go to Florida to kill Vaughn, in what was to have been a fake holdup. Karydis, police said, told them he was asked by Cross to trail the latter's wife to Florida. Karydis declined the assignment because he was on parole from a reformatory, he was quoted as having told police, but arranged for a meeting between Cross and Pollister that resulted in the latter's participation in the reputed plot.

Since his arrest yesterday, Cross, who was an honor student at Boston University law school, has protested his innocence.

Police said Cross hoped to be reconciled with his wife after her father was out of the way, according to Pollister and Karydis. Pollister told them, police said, that he went to Florida, but lost his courage and instead of staging the killing as planned, unfolded details of the plot to his intended victim, who notified police.

State Controls Milk Price.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 30 (AP).—Pennsylvania's milk marketing industry will be brought directly under State control Monday when an order fixing the minimum retail price of milk at 10 cents a quart goes into effect.

Mrs. Samuel Martin Sues for Maintenance

D. C. Society Matron Charges Department Store Heir With Drunkenness, Infidelity and Violence; Stops Payments to Mate.

Chicago, March 30 (AP).—A temporary injunction was granted Mrs. Jane Catherine Martin today restraining the First National Bank from paying her husband, Samuel K. Martin 3d, of Maryland, the $10,000 due him April 1 from the trust fund left by a pioneer Chicago merchant. The writ was issued in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Martin, 23, asked the appointment of a receiver to handle the funds of her husband and requested separate maintenance, charging drunkenness, violence and intimacy with other women at their Miami Beach, Fla., home.

The couple rented a home at Miami Beach for the winter season now ending. They stayed there, she said, until Martin deserted her. The bill also stated they built a 33-room home on a 200-acre farm 13 miles from Washington, D. C., at a cost of a half million dollars.

Martin is the grandson of the late Otto Young, who was part owner of the Fair Department Store and left an estate worth several million dollars when he died 20 years ago.

Mrs. Martin asserted her husband drew $100,000 to $125,000 a year from his share of the legacies.

They were married in Pennsylvania July 27, 1929, and lived in Montgomery County, Md., from January, 1932, until last January. Martin, she said, was still there.

Last December 27, according to the bill of complaint, his continual drunkenness led to the drawing of a contract between them whereby she was to receive 40 per cent and he 60 per cent of the income from the estate. From her 40 per cent she was to pay the household expenses and support their 3-year-old child, Samuel 4th. The contract also called for the closing of the Maryland home in January, 1934.

A year after they entered the mansion near Washington his continual refusal to give her money led, Mrs. Martin charged, to threats from

Blue Eagle's Fate Hinges On Johnson

Rumors Persist Director Will Step Out; NRA Faces Minor Rule.

By Raymond Clapper.

Whether Hugh S. Johnson is preparing to leave NRA is the big question mark being raised now in connection with widespread discussion as to where NRA is going.

There is no more direct evidence now that the hard-hitting general is about to quit than there has been at any time during his spectacular career here, but surmises as to his plans continue to bob up in Washington gossip with increasing frequency.

This is not only because Gen. Johnson probably is the saltiest personality in the Administration and a constant and colorful center of attention, but also because NRA is so essentially Gen. Johnson that the recovery agency would be a quite different institution without him. No other man in public life could hope to equal the dazzling performance which he has staged. It is the general belief that should he retire, NRA would subside into a routinized agency functioning chiefly as a clearing house for code administration.

With the glare of publicity removed, NRA would most likely sink into the background and the regulation of fair competition would become more and more an internal matter for each industry, to be handled through the code authorities, which are virtually legalized, strengthened and rechristened trade associations.

Gen. Johnson's presence is regarded as essential to continuing NRA on its present basis, which involves maintaining public interest and pressure as a moral weapon upon recalcitrants. His departure would be widely taken as a signal that Washington was through with "cracking down" and that henceforth industry would do its own policing. This is why the question of whether Gen. Johnson contemplates resigning assumes more than personal importance.

Talk of his possible retirement

Ships Salute Nassau Visit Of Roosevelt

Judge Kernochan Is Named "Commissioner of Mud" Amid Laughter.

By Leon Dure, Jr.

Nassau, British Bahamas, March 30.—After a morning exchanging social amenities with the British in the vivid old harbor of Nassau, capital of the Bahamas, President Roosevelt late today was in the heart of the fishing grounds on the Astor yacht Nourmahal.

Still ignoring affairs of state, he paid a social call on the seat of the British Colonial government that, nevertheless, brought forth the booming of the presidential salute from H. M. S. Danae, light cruiser now in those waters, and a round of official calls.

While everything was in strictest accord with international etiquette, there was nothing of stiffness to the proceedings, which even went so far as to include an elaborate "practical joke" at the expense of Judge Frederic Kernochan, one of Vincent Astor's party.

When this tomfoolery, cooked up by the President, Astor and the Governor of the Bahamas, Sir Bede Clifford, reached the climax of installing the bewildered Judge Kernochan as "Honorable Commissioner of the Mud," the President's laughter was as uproarious as the rest.

After the requisites of diplomacy were out of the way, the same informality that marks Mr. Roosevelt's vacation elsewhere prevailed over this first visit of an American President to these tiny but colorful islands of the West Indies.

British colonial officers, many of whom knew the President from former visits, respected his wishes, and, although he said he would have liked to, he did not come ashore. The Nourmahal rode at anchor 200

2 Marine Planes Crash In Air; Pilots Safe

San Diego, Calif., March 30 (AP).—Two Marine Corps planes collided 14,000 feet above San Diego Bay today, one pilot "bailing out" safely and the other landing his damaged plane on North Island.

Ensign Warren Corliss, Navy flier, made a parachute drop of about 8,000 feet into the bay. He was rescued by a Navy patrol plane. Staff Sergt. William L. Woodruff, Marine flier, piloted his plane to a safe landing despite damage to the upper wing. Corliss' plane fell into the bay.

E. L. White, Baltimore Writer, Killed by Gas

Baltimore, March 30 (AP).—Edward Lucas White, 68, novelist and educator, was found dead of illuminating gas at his home here late today.

The body was found in a third-floor bathroom by Miss Ethel White, a sister, who discovered an unaddressed note downstairs warning against any one entering the bathroom with a lighted match. An open gas jet was found.

Sidney Fox's Second Divorce Suit Filed

Hollywood, March 30 (AP).—Sidney Fox, motion picture actress, instituted divorce proceedings again today against her film distributor husband, Charles Beahan.

Miss Fox filed a similar suit some time ago, but withdrew it following a reconciliation.

Roosevelt Will Direct Drive To Rid Nation of Criminals

(Copyright, 1934, by the United Press.)

President Roosevelt will direct a Nation-wide drive to rid the Nation of gangsters and racketeers as soon as Congress completes action on pending anticrime bills, the United Press learned last night.

Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to Mr. Roosevelt, conferred with Speaker of the House Henry T. Rainey and Majority Leader Joseph Byrns at the White House yesterday and told them the Chief Executive desires speedy passage of the measures.

The Senate passed seven of the eight crime bills Thursday. The measures were expedited after Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of the Senate had conferred with President Roosevelt before the Chief Executive left for his Florida fishing trip. House leaders indicated that the bills would be disposed of early next week.

Meantime J. Edgar Hoover, director of investigation of the Justice Department, said last night his organization was preparing to move with new vigor against racketeers as soon as the bills are enacted. His department has offices in 25 of the Nation's leading cities. A highly specialized staff of investigators is attached to each office.

"We can move on a minute's notice," Hoover said. "Our men are ready. They will not require additional training."

White House pressure for passage of the anticrime bills was said to have been caused, in part, from continued racketeering in the cleaners and dyers, laundry and other service industries which is making it difficult to enforce NRA codes in these groups.

Small Lines Given Break In Air Bids

'Wide Open' Policy Will Be Pursued by Department.

Plane Requirements Are Stricter; Maximum Pay Limited.

The Nation's major air transport companies, whose air-mail contracts were canceled seven weeks ago, received further confirmation yesterday of the present Administration's intention to maintain a policy of "wide open" competitive bidding on future awards.

Terms under which contracts for temporary air-mail contracts over 21 routes will be let by the Postoffice Department next month were made public, and representatives of the 1930 "spoils conference" participants found little comfort in them.

Specifications have been drawn so that every illegal restriction has been removed, according to Solicitor Karl Crowley, and the result is that the "little fellow" will have a chance to compete in the bidding with major carrier combinations.

Studying the specifications, the big companies prepared last night to announce whether they will reorganize, drop officers or directors who represented them at the "spoils conference" and compete in the bidding, or to leave the air-mail business to others.

Require Faster Planes.

As predicted in The Post, the minimum cruising speed required of bidders is 110 miles per hour, for all routes. Passenger facilities are required in addition to mail and express loads, and multi-motored planes are required for night flights and over certain more dangerous routes, such, for example, as those crossing the Alleghenies.

The specifications vary according to routes, and even the main transcontinental routes originally planned have been broken up to make bidding possible on several sections. Thus, smaller companies without equipment to bid on the entire 2,800-mile route from Newark to Oakland, Calif., will be eligible to compete for business over part of the distance.

The maximum range of pay per airplane mile is to be 41 to 45 cents. Variable rates of compensation which formerly permitted some companies several dollars a mile are not to be reestablished.

The bids are returnable April 19, to be opened at noon April 20.

American Airways Must Reform.

In connection with statements by officials of certain leading companies that American Airways, of which E. L. Cord is head, is in an unusually favorable position because its present set-up was organized after the 1930 conference, it was said yesterday at the Postoffice Department that this company, like the others must reorganize before it will be eligible to bid.

The only exception among the companies whose contracts were canceled probably will be National Parks Airways, a comparatively small Western line. Its contract was canceled, it was said at the department yesterday, not because of collusion, but because its rates were not in the public interest.

Two additional air-mail routes were announced yesterday, one from Chicago to New Orleans, the other from Cheyenne, Wyo., to Pueblo, Colo. Four more temporary routes are under consideration, covering, respectively, Fargo, N. D., to Seattle; Fort Worth to Los Angeles; Detroit to Milwaukee, and Newark to Chicago, via Buffalo, Detroit, Battle Creek and South Bend.

Whether the extra routes will be established depends upon a cost report from the Army on the expense of operating the air mail in February and early March.

Alleged Reds Jailed.

Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 30 (U.P.).—An official communique tonight said 81 persons had been arrested on charges of membership in a nation-wide Communists espionage and propaganda ring engaged in fostering unrest in the Army.

400,000 To Get Pay Boost Soon

(Associated Press.)

Wage increases of 10 per cent for 140,000 employes of the United States Steel Corporation and for between 30,000 and 40,000 employes of the General Electric Co., announced yesterday, brought to at least 400,000 the number of workers who have been promised such pay boosts within the last four days.

Industrial leaders estimate the increases—adding to the buying power of the employes involved—will approximate roughly $4,000,000 a month. They will be effective April 1.

About 90 per cent of the 400,000 workers to benefit are employes of the steel industry, which unless a few of the smallest companies have been missed, is 100 per cent represented in the increase. One company, the Alan Wood Steel Co., of Conshohocken, Pa., declared a boosts of nearly 17 per cent.

The Bethlehem Steel Corp., second largest in the industry, announced the wage boost for its 60,000 employes Wednesday. The Republic Steel Corp., third largest, took similar action for 22,000 employes Tuesday.

First of the companies to reveal the increase was the Corrigan-McKinney Steel Co., of Cleveland, Monday night. The 20 or more other companies then followed.

Carnegie Steel, Illinois Steel, American Steel Wire, American Sheet and Tin Plate, National Tube, Lorain Steel, Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad Co., Columbia Steel, American Bridge Co. and Universal Atlas Cement Co.

Among other companies which have announced 10 per cent wage increases are Washburn-Crosby, Inc., of Minneapolis and Chicago, the Pillsbury Flour Mills Co. and the Russell-Miller Milling Co.

Norfolk Navy Yard Is Robbed

Dillinger Is Suspected in $3,000 Holdup; Officer Locked in Vault.

Norfolk, Va., March 30 (AP).—Bandits who attacked Lieut. T. C. Edrington, yard crafts pay officer at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and locked him in a vault for several hours last night, escaped with approximately $3,000 of Government money, it was learned today.

Lieut. Edrington was found by Chief Machinist Mate E. O. Thomas. He had written a note, giving the combination of the safe and slipped it under the vault door.

The navy yard robbery coincided with reports yesterday that John Dillinger, Midwestern jail breaker and desperado, had been in Virginia. Norfolk police were instructed to be on the lookout for a car bearing an Illinois license, said to have been operated by Dillinger.

Long Burned in Effigy For Bradley Attack

Louisville, Ky., March 30 (AP).—As a display of their resentment at Senator Huey P. Long's verbal attack on Col. E. R. Bradley, Kentucky turfman, a group of trainers, exercise boys and race track habitues last night burned and hanged the Louisiana Senator in effigy on a vacant lot near the Churchill Downs race track here.

The demonstration was inspired, leaders of the group said, by Long's recent assertion on the floor of the Senate that "in Kentucky Bradley may be a gentleman, but in Louisiana he is a dive keeper."

Insull Tries to Kill Self; Turkey May Surrender Fugitive to U. S. Today

Impeachment Action Is Planned on Letters to Company.

Albany, N. Y., March 30 (AP).—Letters read before the Federal Trade Commission yesterday, purporting to have been written to utility officials by State Senator Warren T. Thayer when he was head of the Senate public service committee, resulted today in a threat of impeachment of Thayer.

Senator John J. McNaboe, New York Democrat, said he would introduce an impeachment resolution Monday night. He also said a resolution would be introduced calling for a thorough investigation into the "entire utilities question, as it affects this situation."

McNaboe said impeachment proceedings would be "only fair to the people and to Senator Thayer."

In the Trade Commission proceedings, Senator Thayer, a Franklin County Republican, was represented as having written the Associated Gas & Electric Co. in 1927 to inquire whether his services as chairman of the Senate public service committee had been "satisfactory."

Charges of a legislative-utilities alliance were made last winter by Republican State Chairman W. Kingsland Macy. Macy incurred the wrath of all except a few of his party colleagues in the Republican-controlled assembly by charging they were in control of utility interests. The Assembly is the lower house.

Added point is given the utilities situation by the fact that Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's utility "reform" bills now are in the hands of the same committee that Senator Thayer headed until a year ago. The bills were killed in this committee, under the chairmanship of Senator Thomas F. Burchill, New York Democrat, last year.

SENATOR W. T. THAYER.

Senator Thayer at his law office at Chateaugay, said he would "welcome an investigation."

The utilities companies and their stockholders have fought the Lehman bills as "ruinous." They are opposed particularly to the bill for municipal power plants and a 5 per cent limit on earnings. Gov. Lehman regards the former bill as a powerful weapon against high rates.

Wirt "Revolt" Plot "Names" Safely Filed

Gary Educator Denies He Has Given Out Any Information.

Gary, Ind., March 30 (AP).—The names of the "brain trust" members who he charges are plotting a revolution in government are "filed in a safe place," Dr. William A. Wirt announced today.

With the names—he has been pressed repeatedly to reveal them, since he first made his assertion—is a "description of conferences," the Gary educator said.

He did not amplify his formal statement to this effect, but it was presumed he meant conferences in which he learned of the intentions he has charged. Along with guarding the names of the revolutionary-minded suspects, Dr. Wirt has guarded the time and place where he learned of their ambitions.

His statement today was issued through his wife, from their home. Mrs. Wirt explained that the school official hoped to stop rumors that he had already divulged a name or names to any one.

"I have not given 'names' to anyone," the statement said.

The Gary educator said he would not comment on the Congressional investigation until formally notified that it was ordered.

He did, however, answer statements in Washington that he had "named" Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in a message discussing the prospects for revolution.

Wirt released copies of the telegram in question. It was one sent to Representative Foulkes (Democrat), Michigan, in answer to an invitation to debate against Foulkes.

Dr. Wirt said he felt the Michigan Representative should not have clothed the exchange of messages

U. S. to Bring Old Rand Suit To Trial Soon

Wirt Letter Introduction Has No Bearing, Says Justice Department.

A 2-year-old antitrust suit against the Remington-Rand Co. will be heard next month in New York Federal Court, the Department of Justice announced yesterday.

The president of the Remington-Rand Co. is James A. Rand, jr. Rand also is chairman of the Committee for the Nation. In testifying before the House Interstate Commerce Committee on March 24, he introduced the now-famous letter from Dr. William A. Wirt, of Gary, Ind., in which it was charged that certain members of the "brain trust" were plotting revolution.

At the same hearing, Rand himself charged that a group of "theoretically trained," but inexperienced young men in the Government were "leading the country to communism."

Connection Is Denied.

At the Department of Justice, it was emphatically denied that the decision to bring the suit against the Remington-Rand Co. to a hearing had any connection with Rand's testimony and the introduction of the Wirt letter. It was explained that, although the suit was filed in March, 1932, it is just now coming to trial in the regular course of business.

The court action is against the Remington-Rand Co., the International Business Machine Corporation, Tabulating Machine Co., and the Remington-Rand Business Service, Inc.

The companies named in the suit are the sole makers of tabulating and statistical machines in the

Removal From Maiotis to Presage Arrest for U. S. Aids.

Court to Define Status of Charges

Interpretation of Law Involving 3 Nations Awaited Today.

Istanbul, Turkey, March 30 (AP).—Announcement that the Turkish government believes it can legally turn Samuel Insull over to American authorities brought to a climax tonight the 74-year-old fugitive's long battle against extradition to the United States.

Insull himself, weary and sick from court fights in Greece and a subsequent dash toward the Black Sea, was reported to have attempted suicide by trying to jump into the Bosporus. He was restrained, however, and placed under a heavy police guard.

The government, acting on an American request for the arrest of the former Chicago utilities operator, decided his case comes under a provision of the penal code making possible his arrest for American authorities.

Last Act to Unfold.

These final scenes in the Insull drama were scheduled for tomorrow:

First, his removal from the Greek tramp steamer Maiotis, which brought him here two days ago after his flight from Greece, to a hotel under a heavy guard of officers.

Second, verification by the Instanbul penal court that accusations against him are neither political nor military, and that the Turkish government therefore has a legal right to turn him over to American authorities.

Third, the Turkish government's exercise of that right.

The Maiotis was given the freedom of Istanbul Harbor. This change from a transit status making it easier for the Turkish government to exercise jurisdiction—and Insull was held a virtual prisoner while his extradition to the United States was considered.

Orders from Ankara, the capital, for his actual arrest or for the release of his vessel were expected hourly.

American Ambassador Robert P. Skinner, on instructions from Washington, asked Turkey to seize Insull. The cabinet debated the request last night, and a meeting of the Turkish National Council was called for tomorrow.

In the meantime, documents were awaited from the United States. Reports were that Turkey might be asked to ratify an extradition treaty, and the question of international laws involved in the freedom of the Bosporus as established in the treaty of Lausanne was studied.

U. S. Back Pay Due on April 14

Veterans to Receive Their First Checks on May 1.

Government employes are expected to receive not only their salary increases on April 14, but also the amounts due them under the retroactive provision of the independent offices bill.

War veterans benefitting from the provisions of the bill will receive their first checks May 1. It is estimated that 29,000 veterans coming under the "presumptive disability" qualifications will receive payments totaling about $100,000,000 a year.

The pay provisions were cleared up by instructions of Comptroller General McCarl, who told Government establishments to prepare supplemental rolls to cover the back pay.

New pay tables and further regulations governing pay provisions are expected to be issued by McCarl next week.

It was said that employes in emergency organizations would benefit as well as those in regular Government establishments. There was some fear that the law restoring pay deductions did not apply to emergency organizations, but it was pointed out that statutory pay reductions had been applied to these organizations and that therefore restorations also would apply.

Crows Will Caw Themselves To Death—If This Plan Works

A new game—or what's all the fuss in the tree tops—designed to send crows to an untimely death has been devised by the Maryland game warden, E. Lee Le Compte.

It all begins tomorrow in a Statewide "crow destruction contest," with huntsmen offered prizes ranging from $5 to $50, depending on the number of crows bagged before August 1.

Because huntsmen know that a distressed crow attracts others of his kind by setting up raucous protests known as "cawing," Le Compte has suggested that a crow menaced by a cast would keep up a continual din, thereby supplying hordes of crows for hunters to shoot.

The game begins by tying a cat near a crow's nest. The cat sees an easy meal, but the cord restrains him and he "yowls." This excites the crow, as he doesn't ordinarily expect cats for callers. They hurl epithets at each other and the more the cat reaches for the crow's nest the louder becomes the noise.

While hunters with shotguns lie in wait concealed beneath the crow's roost, other crows in the vicinity give up what they are doing and come to investigate.

They remain as interested spectators until the shotguns get into action. After strangely disillusioned crows one by one drop out of sight into the hunter's bag, the cat, by this time let in on the game, is allowed to descend from his perch. It wasn't stated whether he gets a crow to chew on for his pains.

Le Compte said to the hunters:

"The result of your action will in all probability surprise both you and the cat. Of course, this may be regarded as kind of tough on 'pussy' but if you place the cat in a parrot cage and raise the cage to a point where the nest is located that may work just as well."

Utilities Probes Stir New Fires On Capitol Hill

By Franklyn Waltman, jr.

Findings of the Federal Trade Commission in the investigation of the activities and operation of electric power companies again are having reverberations on Capitol Hill and in political circles generally, it became apparent yesterday.

Revelation of letters which purport to link State Senator Warren T. Thayer, of New York, with lobbying activities of the Associated Gas & Electric Co. has restored the trade commission's power hearings to the limelight. They have been virtually forgotten since sensational disclosures more than two years ago showing efforts of power interests to use schools and newspapers in spreading propaganda.

Just as on the previous occasion when the commission's findings were used as a propeller for public ownership legislation, so again, it is apparent, the present disclosures will be seized on avidly to further restrictive legislation on power companies and even to advance the pending bill providing for Trade Commission regulation of stock markets.

Norris Seizes Chance.

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), of Nebraska, foremost champion in Congress of public ownership of power projects, pointed to the Thayer incident as illustrating that public ownership was the only solution of the public utility problem. He maintained that regulations "would not cure the evil" since it is apparent that "the power trust regulates the regulators."

The Nebraskan said he believed the trade commission should summon Thayer, who was chairman of the Public Service committee of the New York Senate. The New York Legislature should "profit" by the testimony before the trade commission, he asserted.

With the St. Lawrence waterway treaty out of the way—temporarily, according to President Roosevelt's plans—the only legislation pending on Capitol Hill in which the power issue figures directly is the Johnson bill depriving Federal district courts of jurisdiction to review findings and orders of State commissions in rate cases.

Shelved in House.

Passed by the Senate, this measure was shelved yesterday by a vote of 11 to 10 in the House Judiciary Committee when a substitute was adopted which left jurisdiction to review such cases with the Federal courts but provided that the records of State commissions must be used, except that any new competent evidence may be taken by the court, even though it was barred by the State body.

It was argued by Representative Lawrence Lewis (Democrat), of Colorado, who sponsored the substitute, that his plan would permit speedy decisions from the courts without diminishing their authority and would thus overcome delays which now exist.

Efforts will be made on the House floor, however, to restore the original provisions of the Johnson bill, and it is probable that the Thayer case will be used to incite action. Due to the closeness of the vote in committee, the outcome of the House fight will remain uncertain until a vote.

Republicans Accused.

For years the New York Democratic leaders have charged the Republican old guard in that State with being allies of the power trust and recently W. Kingsland Macy, of the Republican State committee, turned on a faction within his party with the charge that it was dominated by the power interests.

Thus the disclosures in regard to Thayer would appear to give the Macy Republicans and the New York Democrats another weapon with which to flay the Republican "old guards" in the Legislature.

The Thayer incident also is expected to be used here to justify parts of the stock market bill. One section bitterly attacked is that which requires corporations issuing securities to supply the Trade Commission with various information, including remuneration paid to officers and directors and to all others when such remuneration is above $20,000 annually. It also gives the commission the right to examine the nature of all expenses.

Power's "Pressure" Bared.

The Trade Commission shifted its inquiry from the Thayer case yesterday and revealed that in Paris, Tenn., the Kentucky-Tennessee Light & Power Co., an Associated Gas & Electric subsidiary, went into the cut-rate ice and coal business in 1929 to bring a city councilman to terms in the sale of a municipal power plant.

J. T. Porter, a member of the city council and in the ice and coal business, opposed sale of the city's power plant to the private company. The latter purchased the Henry County Ice & Coal Co. and cut the price of ice from 60 cents per 100 pounds to 10 cents with a similar cut in coal prices, one of its examiners told the commission. An audit showed the ice and coal company lost heavily while owned by the utility.

A letter purported to have been written by H. D. Fitch, president of the Kentucky-Tennessee, put into the record, stated that "we have set up a very severe competition with his (the councilman's) property and he is beginning to squeal. He is now anxious that the council effect a compromise."

Court findings also were offered to show that the public utility finally was able to buy the Paris City power plant through bribery of George L. Fryer, the city attorney.

Makes Queer Catch.

the National Recovery Administration in case relief has not been secured through the appropriate industry organizations."

Prompt Action Is Aim.

Industrialists were represented as agreeing present functions of NRA were so all-inclusive it was impossible to obtain prompt action on complaints by individual manufacturers.

Another argument of the manufacturers for trade association mediation was that the NRA had insufficient personnel to concern itself with comparatively unimportant disputes between competitors in regions far removed from Washington. Such controversaries, recurring by the thousands, were represented as of vital concern to the NRA members at issue.

While chamber executives emphasized the desire of industrialists to protect public interest, they declared many business men refrained from asking the NRA to rule on their complaints because an adverse decision would have practically the effect of law. Findings of trade associations, it was reported, would not of necessity become precedents to be binding for all time.

Officials said proponents of the plan felt industry itself was more familiar with conditions bearing on its own disputes and thus was placed in a more favorable position for reaching decisions.

Could Revise Codes.

Friends of the program declared the trade association should be authorized to iron out mistakes incorporated in some codes due to the desire for early approval by the President. Most of the desired code changes were said to concern trade practices rather than wage and hour provisions.

The chamber plan was understood to have been evolved by a comittee appointed last December to study proposals advanced by Gerard Swope, president of General Electric Corp., and at that time chairman of the Business Advisory and Planning Council, an agency set up by Secretary Roper. He suggested that all trade and comercial associations be grouped and that NRA be in effect replaced by a "National Chamber of Commerce and Industry," which he declared might "well be an enlargement and development of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States."

President Roosevelt indicated he believed the Swope plan was an interesting theoretical contributor. He was dubious, however, over the capacity of business to conduct itself on NRA principles with fairness to all.

Simultaneously with disclosure of the chamber plan, Gen Johnson directed creation of industrial relations committees for adjustment of labor complaints by all industries operating under approved codes which do not have such agencies already. He added he planned to appoint a labor and consumers adviser to the administration members of code authorities.

Job Appeal.

Johnson's job appeal, couched in characteristically terse language, was addressed to all code authorities in the durable goods, consumer goods and service indsutries. The message was regarded as his answer to reports from special indsutrial committees which termed as unwise proposals that NRA order a flat 10 per cent reduction in working hours at present wage levels.

"In order to help determine promptly whether your indsutry has the ability to meet the President's request of reducing hours by 10 per cent without reduction of weekly," Johnson wrote, "I would like you to advise me whether your industry is in a position to do this, and if not, why not?"

Officials reported the latest Johnson move and the investment survey plan were colsely allied. Though still in a study stage, it was said the program might involve a drive for home construction and modernization.

"The National Emergency Council," Walker explained, has been interested in this movement largely because it would provide an additional outlet for idle private capital and at the same time would energize the heavy durable goods industries."

May Provide Credit.

"Broad application of the scheme probably will include projects already contemplated by the Government such as creation of subsistence homesteads, slum clearance and emergency housing. There was an added possibility of arranging long-term loans for private enterprises.

Capital goods phases of the picture include possible loans for replacement of industrial machinery, factory buildings and equipment. All of the proposals represented potential increases in employment.

It was learned that questionnaires already have been circulated among several important industries, including cotton textile, to develop what new machinery could be used. The manufacturers were specifically asked to list necessary machinery replacements.

Observers believed Johnson ultimately would be disclosed as the directing head of the related Federal efforts to produce industrial expansion with its incidental reemployment.

Both the administrative and legislative branches have received definite indications of revived demands for new-home construction, including modernization and repairs to existing dwellings. Bills to carry out such programs have been introduced in Congress.

Cecils Admit Plan to Seek Paris Divorce

Vanderbilt Heiress and British Scion Agree on Proceedings.

Paris, March 30 (AP).—John Francis Amherst Cecil and his wife, who as the former Cornelia Vanderbilt was one of the most wealthy American heiresses, let it be known through an acquaintance today that they have instituted "friendly" divorce proceedings.

The marriage of Mr. Cecil, son of Lord William Cecil, of London, and Miss Vanderbilt, daughter of the late George W. Vanderbilt, in Biltmore, N. C., April 29, 1924, attracted the attention of international society.

Papers seeking permission to begin the suit, Mrs. Cecil's attorney said, have been filed, and conditions have been fully agreed upon. These will be submitted to a court as soon as the proceedings reach a final stage, probably in July.

A financial arrangement has been concluded and the Cecils have agreed to share the custody of their two children.

They established residence in Paris to comply with the French law and no difficulty is anticipated, the lawyer said, in getting a decree.

After the preliminary step of "permission to file suit," the case itself will be filed. The judge will then summon the husband and wife for a "reconceliation." Upon their refusal to be reconciled, the case will be heard.

Cecil was once the secretary to the British Embassy in Washington. He resigned to take over the management of the Vanderbilt estate near Asheville.

The children are George Henry Vanderbilt Cecil, eight, and William Amherst Vanderbilt Cecil, five. It was agreed that they should spend half their time at the Vanderbilt estate at Biltmore and the other half with their father in England.

Becomes a Deputy Under Man He Sworn In.

A promotion was accorded yesterday to Bradish J. Carroll, jr., the man who administered the oath of office to Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson and other NRA officials.

He was appointed by Johnson as deputy administrator in charge of finances and pay rolls. He has been chief clerk since inception of NRA and has a wider acquaintance among employes than the administrator himself. He was the first NRA official to be sworn in.

Carroll came to Washington from New York, where he was sales manager for Fairbanks, Morse Co. His first business training was as a stock and bond salesman.

with secrecy. He denied reports that Foulkes had wired to "demand" the names of those who informed Wirt that a social revolution was contemplated.

Wirt and Foulkes Wire Joust Is Draw

A telegraphic duel between Dr. William A. Wirt and Representative George Foulkes (Democrat), Michigan, last night resulted in a no-decision draw, as the House Investigation of the Indiana educator's charges of a "brain trust" conspiracy waited on reconvening of Congress Monday.

From his Capitol office, Representative Foulkes made public the text of a wire from Dr. Wirt, quoting statements of Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace, and turning down the Michigan Representative's offer to debate the issue with him on a public platform. "Wirt came in like a lion and is going out like a lamb," charged Mr. Foulkes. "The other night he was thirsting for my blood."

Meanwhile, Representative Hamilton Fish, jr. (Republican), of New York, and Representative Harold McGugin (Republican), Kansas, rallied again to the support of the Wirt charges. Fish issued a statement declaring, "There is no question that left-wing radicals and Socialists are high up in the councils of the Administration and hold many key positions."

McGugin charged the limited scope of the Bulwinkle resolution will permit only a "gagged" hearing.

"Taken For a Ride."

"The Democratic party is apparently being taken for a ride toward social and economic revolution by the brain trust radicals," Fish said. "If the people back home wanted Socialism they would have elected Norman Thomas."

Speaker Henry T. Rainey, waiting for the convening of the House Monday to appoint his investigating committee, to be headed by Representative Bulwinkle (Democrat), of North Carolina, said the case was becoming "sillier" every day.

Wirt can not be subpedaed to Washington until Speaker Rainey makes his appointments, and the appointments can not be made except when the House is in session.

The Dr. Wirt telegram made public yesterday by Representative Foulkes, in response to a wire he sent the Iidianan, read:

Band Leaders See Revival of "Long-Haired" Compositions.

New York, March 30 (AP).—More like music, less like noise—that is the future of jazz as envisaged tonight by four widely known orchestra leaders.

"Repeal is having a tremendous effect on our popular music," commented George Olsen. "People, I think, are turning to waltzes in Viennese tempo. Something like old gypsy songs, with light and dark shades."

The heyday of the personality-plus band leader is past, Olsen believes.

"It isn't enough any more just to turn around and grin at the patrons," he said. "The days of acrobatics are over."

Explaining he is just a fiddler and not a prophet, Paul Whiteman placed the future of jazz on the doorstep of American composers.

"They must write something important," said the genial Whiteman, "before we can play it. Brass bands, too, have suffered because of lack of new music.

"It isn't up to the players any more. We are getting about all there is out of the instruments."

"Every novel effect has been tried," said Rudy Vallee. Individuality in instrumentation, in his opinion, will be the keynote of popular dance orchestras in the next few years.

Phil Harris described himself as having been in the early days of jazz "one of those fellows who jumped up on the piano and juggled."

"Popular music from now on must be played properly," he said. "Bands will be composed of qualified musicians, men who could play what we call 'long-haired' music, if necessary."

Cooper Scoffs At Indictment In Bank Crash

"No Evidence to Support Charges," He Declares in Rebuttal.

Indicted for the third time Thursday for alleged misuse of funds of the closed Commercial National Bank, Col. Wade H. Cooper, president of the institution, yesterday declared that "there is not a scintilla of evidence to sustain any of the charges."

Referring to the indictment charging him with misapplication of the bank's funds by making three doubtful loans of $15,000 each to the Continental Trust Company and one of $3,500, he said, "They have reduced their charges from wholesale murder to simple assault."

"Perhaps they will get down to a traffic violation next," he continued.

The latest indictment charges the banker with misapplying approximately $400,000 of the bank's funds. Of the two previous indictments one was abandoned and the other dismissed by Justice Peyton Gordon, who held that it was defective in that it failed to charge either Bates Warren, general counsel for the bank, or Cooper with "knowledge" of the alleged irregularities attributed to them.

Rails Dispute Waits Return Of Roosevelt

(Associated Press.)

President Roosevelt is likely to have the railroad wage controversy back on his hands when he returns from his Easter vacation.

Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation, announced yesterday that while the differences between the carriers and the union workers were not irreconcilable, he was unable to settle the dispute "as long as there is possibility of appeal to higher authority."

He added that while he would not abandon his role as mediator and would listen to any suggestions either side might made, "it is probable that a settlement of the controversy will have to await the return of the President." He indicated it might be necessary for the President to appoint a commission to examine the labor controversy and advise the country of the merits of the case.

No Strike in Prospect.

"The fact should be emphasized," he said, "that there is no present prospect of a strike, and that if further effort at settlement fails, the controversy must proceed in accordance with the orderly procedure provided by the railway labor act."

Eastman, in a formal statement, reviewed the entire proceedings, recalling that the unions in 1932 had assented to a reduction of 10 per cent in the basic wage and that through various agreements this had been continued, but was due to end June 30.

"In my negotiations," said Eastman, "I have not undertaken to form an opinion upon the merits of the basic wage rates. What I have tried to do is to bring about a temporary settlement.

"In this endeavor I have submitted various proposals which seemed to me to be consistent with the President's wishes, but none of these proposals has been acceptable to both sides.

"The labor representatives appear unwilling to entertain any proposal which would continue the 10 per cent deduction until the end of the year.

Operators Also Adamant.

"On the other hand, the railroad representatives appear unwilling to entertain any proposal which would not so continue it, unless earnings and traffic reach a condition which, in their opinion, would justify restoration.

"The arguments in support of the railroad position may be briefly summarized as follows:

"The conditions which led to the 10 per cent deduction still exist, for traffic is still considerably below the 1931 basis, which was itself subnormal and led to the proposal for a deduction.

"While traffic is improving, a large amount of deferred maintenance has accumulated and the railroads face serious dangers in the competition from other forms of traffic.

"It is essential to the welfare of the industry, including the welfare of its employes, that it would have a breathing space, as business revives, in which the properties can be restored to good condition and, if possible, some improvement in net earnings be shown.

"Increased maintenance expenditures will add to employment and diversion of revenue to increased wages will greatly limit what can be done in this direction. The burden thus imposed upon the industry at this time will also make it harder to adjust the industry to the new competitive conditions. From both of these consequences the employes will suffer along with the industry.

Sums Up Labor's Side.

"The arguments in support of labor's position may be briefly summarized as follows:

"The employes have suffered much more than the 10 per cent deduction owing to demotions, part time and furloughs.

"There has been little increase in employment as traffic has revived, and the managements are constantly seeking new ways of saving labor, although railroad employment has been cut in half since 1920.

"The tendency of the times is toward higher prices and higher wages. The latter are necessary to increase the consumptive power of the population. This has been emphasized by the President in the NRA program.

"Traffic is improving, business is recovering and other industries all over the country are increasing their wages. The Federal Government is restoring the wages of its employes in large part. The railroad employes are in a state of serious unrest and can no longer endure to be left out of this program. They must be given at least some share in the benefits of revival. The improvement in morale which would result would be of great advantage to the railroads themselves.

Systems Unsound, Says Labor.

"The labor representatives further suggest that the financial structures of the railroads are unsound, because of the disproportionate burden of fixed charges.

"If, therefore, an increase in wages should precipitate conditions which would compel the readjustment of these financial structures, such a result would conduce to sounder economic conditions in the industry and would help it to meet the new competitive conditions. In the meantime, the employes would be as well off under receivers or trustees as under present conditions, if not in a better situation, as they have learned by experience.

"They have also learned from experience not to rely upon assurances that increased earnings will be used to add to employment."

President Stops at Nassau on Fishing Trip in West Indies.

yards off the St. Georges wharf all morning.

Yacht Sighted at 8:30 A. M.

A group of White House correspondents, flying the 200-mile stretch from Miami, received first word at dawn that the President was nearing Nassau. It was flashed from the U. S. Destroyer Ellis, accompanying the Nourmahal, to another destroyer, the Tattnall, in Miami Bay, thence telephoned to Secretary Marvin H. McIntyre and radioed by Pan-American Airways to its big plane out at sea.

At 8:30 a. m. signals were hoisted at Fort Fincastle, on New Providence Island, that the Nourmahal had been sighted. A half hour later His Majesty's Ship Danae, lying off the bar, ran up the United States flag, fired the 21-gun salute and played "The Star-Spangled Banner" as the yacht plowed past.

The President, clad in the white and blue of the yachtsman, took the salute from the quarterdeck, with Astor on the bridge. Since it was not a state visit, no return salute was required. Slipping to its position among a half hundred other lighter vessels, the Nourmahal first took aboard Port Capt. George Roberts, who cleared the ship immediately.

Governor Gives Fishing Tips.

Next to clamber up the side were Capt. Robert D. White, of the Ellis, and Capt. Knox-Little, of the Danae, the same British vessel that recently visited Washington. Also "making his number"—as the British describe such official visits—as Capt. John P. Hurley, United States consul.

When Gov. Clifford, accompanied by Lady Clifford (formerly Miss Alice Gundry, of Cleveland), went aboard, the Danae roared forth the Governor's salute of 17 guns. They remained sometime, the Governor giving the latest tips on where the fish were biting, and learning that barracudda than the bonefish the so far the party has caught more President prefers to fight.

The joke at Judge Kernochan's expense originated last year, when the President visited Nassau. It was after the election but before the inauguration, which lead him to spoof the New York jurist he would have him appointed "Commissioner of the Mud" . . . which refers to the shallow sponge-fishing grounds about Andros Island.

Judge Taken by Surprise.

Although messages to Sir Bede had preceded the Nourmahal into port, the first Judge Kernochan knew of his approaching commissioning was the appearance of a dilapidated sponge boat, manned by "Peter the Sponger," which circled the yacht. With an enormous scroll in hand, be aring numerous seals, he went aboard.

Received with honor by the President, "Peter the Sponger" asked for Judge Kernochan. Then, in the presence of the whole party, the nonplussed Judge was handed his high commission, giving him sole authority over the vast "mud."

With this spirit predominant, it was obvious that Mr. Roosevelt is enjoying his leisurely cruising about the Bahamas. He remained in Nassau Harbor, surrounded by a luxuriant growth of palms and tropical plants and blazing with the most brilliant sunshine, somewhat longer than he expected.

Sir Bede, meanwhile, received newspapermen at Government House. He disclosed he had sent aboard the yacht an expert pilot, gifted with particular knowledge of the areas the President can find bonefish in abundance. This fish, while smaller than many game species, is credited with putting up more fight than any of the others.

Pilot With Roosevelt.

Since the Nourmahal will have to bring back the pilot, a return visit appeared inevitable, the Britishers declared, obviously pleased with the prospect, but plans of Mr. Roosevelt apparently are indefinite other than his return to the mainland at Miami next Friday.

The only other message from the Nourmahal was received in the same manner as the first, with the newspapermen flying back to temporary White House headquarters in Miami. It came from Astor, and said: "After a pleasant morning at Nassau, we have sailed for Rocky Point, Great Abaco." This is some 45 miles north of Nassau.

While Mr. Roosevelt continues to refrain from studying Government affairs, a Navy plane is now stationed at Miami to convey important correspondence and newspapers to the Nourmahal. Its first trip since the President left Jacksonville Wednesday is planned tomorrow.

Ohio Plans Court Fight to Ban U. S. Taxes on Its Liquor Sales

Plea in Highest Tribunal May Be Joined by Other States.

Ohio plans to ask the Supreme Court on Monday for permission to bring suit to prevent the Federal Government from imposing taxes on it as a wholesale and retail dealer in liquor, according to the Associated Press.

John W. Bricker, attorney general of Ohio, will file a petition with the court saying the State had purchased more than $4,500,000 worth of liquor to engage as a wholesaler and retailer.

Claiming it is sovereign in that respect, Ohio wants the court to enjoin the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and his collectors from requiring the State to pay Federal tax on wholesale and retail liquor dealers.

The tax, Ohio contends, is an illegal burden imposed by the Federal Government on an agency of the State.

Pennsylvania and other States are understood to plan to join Ohio should it be permitted to file the complaint.

In December, 1905, the court held that when South Carolina opened dispensaries for the sale of liquor the State laid aside its sovereignty and for Federal taxing purposes took the status of a private corporation.

Ohio has a monopoly on liquor sold within the State.

Federal Job Insurance Plan Called Ruinous

Publishers, Lawyers, Trade Chiefs Join in Attack at House Hearing.

(Associated Press.)

Unsound, ruinous and the product of theorists were appellations applied to the Administration-indorsed unemployment insurance bill yesterday by representatives of industry and the American Bar Association.

They brought to the House Ways and Means sub-committee the views of the National Publishers Association, the American Transit Association, National Editorial Association and the Illinois Manufacturers Association.

"The social legislation workers, whose views are represented in this bill, are more accustomed to dealing with theories than facts," said George C. Lucas, of New York, of the Publishers Association.

"On paper, a 5 per cent tax on pay rolls may be ideal, but in practice it would result in the definite retarding of business recovery.

Called Ruinous.

"Publishers of small-town newspapers have difficulty in providing cash necessary to meet weekly pay rolls without being obliged to put aside another 5 per cent in order to pay this excise tax.

"The newspapers, which we represent, cannot absorb this new tax. It will hasten mechanization of all processes and thus permanently reduce employment. It will force employers to keep wage rates at the lowest possible minimum and thus reduce the amount of the tax.

"This bill will cause further migration from the farm areas to the industrial areas and will invite the transfer from the class of those not gainfully employed, in order to share in the unemployment benefits.

"Unemployment insurance, which in many instances places a premium on indolence, would unquestionably defeat this proposed plan of the Administration to place workers in the areas of lower living costs and keep them gainfully employed."

Favors 2 Per Cent.

Allen urged that if there had to be a tax, it be not more than 2 per cent.

Charles Denby, jr., chairman of the American Bar Association's committee on unemployment insurance law, contended such a plan would tend to promote unemployment on its own account by increasing the cost of manufactured articles.

"The more I have studied the question," Denby said "the more firm has become my conviction that unemployment insurance is an unsound remedy."

"The imposition on industry at this time of the tax burden contemplated by this measure would render business recovery absolutely hopeless," said James L. Donnelly, executive vice president of the Illinois Manufacturers Association.

A. K. Barta, Washington representative of the American Transit Association, complained it would result in unfair competition for his industry because it would not take in taxicabs, and railroads would be exempted under the 1933 emergency transportation act.

International Red Tape May Be Insull Ace

Complications Confronting 3 Nations as Arrest Hangs in Balance.

Difficulties similar to those encountered in Greece may arise to delay or prevent the return of Samuel Insull to the United States, in spite of the assurance of the Turkish government that it would arrest him.

The State Department, after receiving this assurance in a message from Robert P. Skinner, American Ambassador to Turkey, was awaiting further developments last night.

The situation is complicated by a number of difficulties which may mean that Insull can prolong his stay in Turkey, possibly for months.

The first difficulty is a question concerning the status of the American extradition agreement with Turkey. While the extradition treaty was signed in 1923, it was not ratified by the United State Senate until last February, when the action was taken to make possible Insull's return to the United States if he should flee to Turkey.

It is reported that ratification of the treaty is before the Turkish Parliament, but there is no official notification that it has been ratified there.

Another difficulty may involve Turkish court procedure. Skinner's message said that the Turkish officials had promised to arrest Insull and then refer the charges to the proper court. In response to this message, the warrant for Insull's arrest was cabled to Ankara, Turkish capital, and arrangements were made to rush a copy of the indictment to that city.

It is possible that a Turkish court may decide to try the fugitive to determine whether, in its opinion, charges warrant extradition. This, followed by possible appeals, could result in considerable delay.

Another question involved is that of the relationship between Turkey and Greece. The S. S. Maiotis, on which Insull fled Greece and which is now in the harbor at Istanbul, is a Greek ship. A question of whether the Turkish government can hold the ship, or even hold Insull if he does not leave the ship, is involved.

The immediate problem was further complicated by the fact that yesterday was the Moslem Sabbath.

Dr. Dudley Morris, N. Y. Surgeon, Dies

Pneumonia Proves Fatal at Virginia U.

Brief funeral services were held at 8 o'clock tonight from his residence, Windridge, near Farmington, conducted by the Rev. William H. Laird, rector of St. Pauls Episcopal Church. The body was taken tonight to New York, where interment will take place in Woodlawn Cemetery tomorrow.

A native of New York, Dr. Morris attended Columbia University, and pursued his medical studies in Munich. He practiced his profession in New York for ten years, serving as chief of clinic at Presbyterian Hospital.

The Fairbanks Confer Over Phone

Kitchen Reports Stars Are Keeping in Touch.

Barcelona, Spain, March 30 (U.P.).—Reconciliation proceedings between Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, sr., have reached the stage where they are "corresponding regularly by telegraph and telephone" over the Atlantic, it was revealed here tonight.

Karl Kitchen, writer and confidante of Fairbanks, asserted that while he had no letter from Miss Pickford to Fairbanks, he was certain no such letter carried by him now was necessary.

"Doug spoke to Mary last night when she was in Detroit," Kitchen stated. "They are corresponding regularly by telegraph and telephone, and we all hope there will be a reconciliation."

Insull Surrender By Turkey Is Seen

other provisions may have led Insull into the trap. Fearing scurvy, the Chicagoan was said to have decided to stop here for supplies.

If he had not stopped, the American Government's request for his arrest by Turkey may not have arrived before the dingy steamer had passed through the Bosporus into the Black Sea—and from there, perhaps, to Rumania or overland to Persia.

Upon the Maiotis' arrival here, her captain did not expect to remain more than three hours, but Turkey's sudden and swiftly executed order to detain the boat, following Skinner's representations, kept him here in acute suspense.

The question of international law is complicated. The Bosporus may be considered an international river, like the Danube, and the matter of Turkey's jurisdiction may be considered subject to treaty stipulations.

These points, plus the probable effect of the arrest of Insull aboard a Greek ship may have on Turko-Greek relations, presumably have been occupying government officials.

Blue Eagle's Fate Hinges On Johnson

Rumors Persist Director Will Step Out; NRA Faces Minor Role.

was revived this week as a result of suggestions that he might be engaged to conduct a public campaign for the projected $1,500,000,000 home renovation and building program. This program would involve probably price concessions by building supply houses. It would also be necessary to encourage thousands of home owners to mortgage their property or otherwise pledge themselves to get credit for financing such improvements. All of this would call for the kind of promotional campaign of which Gen. Johnson is master.

Some also saw significance in the rapid rise of W. Averell Harriman, who now is sitting at Gen. Johnson's right, reorganizing NRA to complete the transition from code drafting into code administration.

This heir of E. H. Harriman and the Union Pacific, one of several rich young men like Vincent Astor who have become attached to President Roosevelt, has deserted his polo playing and his extensive business interests temporarily to work in NRA. Tall, lean and dark, 43 years old, he has been burning his office lights at night, struggling with the intricacies of codes, open price agreements, and highly controversial fair practice rules. Within a few months he has become one of the most influential men in NRA. Rumors that he is being groomed to succeed Gen. Johnson are circulated in face of a definite announcement some time ago that he would be compelled to return to his private affairs May 1. They are not given great credence within NRA.

According to gossip over several months, Gen. Johnson has been in bad at the White House and then back in strong favor again at least once a month. His stock went up high with the conclusion of the automobile labor agreement which prevented a strike. When President Roosevelt left for his fishing trip, he urged Gen. Johnson to accompany him. The White House had a railroad ticket all made out for Gen. Johnson. But the General felt unable to leave, as he was in the midst of the Budd labor dispute, which was settled the day after Mr. Roosevelt left. Coal negotiations and NRA reorganization problems added to the burden which he felt unable to escape from, tired as he is.

Gen. Johnson discussed his own status at the final session of the code conference here recently. He said that he would resign if in his own opinion his blunders should become so serious that they hurt the President, or if the President should imply that he felt they did. But in the meantime, he added, nobody need speculate on getting him out or affecting his course by threats.

country, the Department of Justice says.

The suit charges that they entered into a price-fixing agreement and other agreements in restraint of trade. It is charged that they agreed upon rental prices for machines, agreed to require that persons renting machines must use only cards and other supplies manufactured by the companies, and that they agreed no machines should be sold outright, but that they should be leased.

U. S. Is Largest User.

It is also charged that the companies cross-licensed each other under their patents to prevent competition.

The suit was filed in behalf of the Public Printer. The Government is one of the largest users of the type of machines produced by the companies.

Rand appeared before the House Committee in opposition to the Fletcher-Rayburn stock exchange bill. He charged that the bill was written by a "group of radical young lawyers." He predicted that "politically selected bureaucrats will assume powers that have belonged to property-owners, stockholders and business management."

Jewish Prisoners To Mark Passover

The Department of Justice expects no unusual difficulties as a result of a decision of Jewish prisoners at the Northeastern Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., to spend the week-end in observance of the Passover, the Associated Press reported.

Rabbi Charles Mantinband, Jewish chaplain at the prison and head of the Beth-Sholom Congregation in Williamsport, has disclosed that Jewish prisoners voted to forego the special foods that accompany celebration of the Passover, to prevent disorders.

the utilities company to shut off gas and refusal of credit from the grocery.

At Miami Beach, she alleged, a male nurse was hired to remain with him day and night; Martin once chased him with a knife, once threatened to shoot her, and on other occasions exhibited violence. Once, she asserted, he brought a woman into the Maryland home, but a butler ejected her. Telephone bills for calls to other women ran several hundred dollars a month, the complaint alleged, and at one time he spent his entire quarterly income on an airplane "orgy" with a woman.

Martin is 26. His wife cited her own age as 23, and added that her weight, before they went to Miami Beach, was 101; on March 14 she said she was down to 87 pounds, due, she asserted, to broken health.

25 Democrats Only Remain Off "Blacklist"

Rainey's Roster of Those Overriding Veto to Be Added.

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Rainey's self-styled "blacklist" of Democrats who have voted against the Administration has grown so long that only about 25 members of the House majority now lack a black mark.

In fact, since Rainey started to add the names of the Republicans voting against Roosevelt measures, what some call "The Little Black Book" has become almost unwieldy.

The white-haired Speaker said yesterday, however, that possibly this week end, and certainly next week, he will remind the country of the Republicans who have voted against the President.

His tabulators were busy today adding 99 Republicans to that list—they voted against the Administration's reciprocal tariff bill.

The tabulators have just about finished with the 107 Republicans who ballotted to override the Presidential veto of the independent offices bill.

Democratic names still were being added, for the Speaker decided to include the 209 of that party who helped pass the independent offices bill over the veto. The 11 Democrats whose names went on record against the tariff also were added.

The Speaker still says he doesn't intend to use the Democratic list, but just wants it around in case——.

Bishop Cannon Refutes Blame Of Trial Delay

Deplores That Court and Church Inquiries Are at Same Time.

Richmond, March 30 (AP).—The Richmond Christian Advocate, publication of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, carries in its current issue a personal statement from Bishop James Cannon, jr., in which the churchman says he is not responsible for any delays in his trial on charges of failing to report campaign funds.

After outlining the history of the case against him and his secretary, Bishop Cannon says:

"This bare statement of facts proves that there has been no delay whatever interposed by my attorneys."

Sought Early Trial.

He asserts that on January 8, after a decision by the United States Supreme Court, he asked for an immediate trial and that the district attorney of the District of Columbia agreed to bring the case to trial between March 1 and 15. Later, Bishop Cannon avers, this date was changed by the district attorney.

"My attorney immediately conferred with him and set before him the serious disadvantages to me from such delay," Bishop Cannon writes. "He was told that I would be unable to attend the meetings of the Board of Church Extension, of the Board of Missions, of the College of Bishops, of the Board of Temperance and Social Service, of which I am president, and possibly not even the General Conference itself."

Bishop Cannon says that should the trial begin on April 9 and require three weeks, the work of the conference would be well under way.

Would Be at Same Time.

"In that event, I would be on trial in the City of Washington while the General Conference would be called upon to pass upon my character, official administration and fitness for service, in Jackson, Miss., with no opportunity for me to be present to answer any questions or to make any statements concerning any matters which may arise on these very important questions of my character, official administration and physical condition."

If the trial is further delayed, the bishop points out, the conference would be compelled to take its action without knowing what would be the outcome of the trial.

Fourth Clark Trial Is Ended By Split Jury

(By a Staff Correspondent.)

Ellicott City, Md., March 30.—Decision as to whether he will drop charges against Berry E. Clark, former clerk to the Montgomery County Commissioners, whose fourth trial on charges of embezzling county money resulted in a hung jury, has not been made, State's Attorney Stedman Prescott said tonight.

He said he did not know whether he will drop the one case which has proved a stumbling block to four juries, three in Montgomery County and one here, and go on to the next of the 97 indictments, or drop the whole series.

Judge William Henry Forsythe, jr., today discharged the Howard County jury which had been debating nearly 24 hours.

It was learned that the jury stood 7 to 5 for acquittal when it was dismissed. A mere handful of spectators was in court and there was no demonstration. Several friends crowded around Clark and shook his hand.

Clark's bond of $5,000 was accepted and he was allowed to leave.

Instinctive to Walk? Wrong

Virginia Scientist Studies Infants and Reports They Had No Inclination to Stand or Sit Before They Were Educated to Try.

Birmingham, Ala., March 30 (AP). Observation indicates, Dr. Wayne Dennis, of the University of Virginia, told the Southern Society for Philosophy and Psychology today, that it's education and not instinct that enables the infant to sit up or stand.

His remarks were based on a study conducted with two infants, nonidentical twins, over a period of more than a year.

In this study Dr. and Mrs. Dennis reared the two infants in a nursery laboratory from the end of the first to the end of the fourteenth month of life.

Prof. Dennis reported on his investigation of the instinctive nature of two responses, sitting and standing. He gave only a small part of the material collected.

No Punishments or Rewards.

The University of Virginia psychologist explained that his procedure consisted largely in providing fully for the infant's physiological needs, but with neither encouraging nor discouraging them as far as the development of behavior was concerned. Insofar as possible they were not rewarded or punished for any action.

Definite evidence against the instinct theory as far as sitting and standing are concerned was found, the speaker reported. He said that when left to themselves the little girls showed no innate knowledge of how to sit or to stand, even long after the period in which the normal child is taught to do both.

"If the development of sitting and standing in infants is merely a matter of the growth and proper neural organization," he said, "and of sensory and motor elements, there are no reasons why these responses should not have come to maturity within the usual age range in the case of the present subjects.

Muscularly Strong.

"The twins were in excellent health. They were very active in their cribs and were muscularly strong. Observation of the first trial of the infants in each kind of test did not reveal any attempt on their part to perform reactions which they were unable to accomplish through weakness. Rather it showed no attempt to do anything. The babies had no idea what to do."

Dr. Dennis ruled out mental deficiency as a possible reason for the failure of the infants to sit or stand when first tested by explaining that they quickly learned how to do both when practice finally was given. He added that the twins are now two years old and fall within the normal range on general behavior tests.

Jesse James and Al Capone—Tsk!—Go Way of All Wax

Baltimore, March 30 (Spl.).—Wax figures of Jesse James, Al Capone, Ruth Snyder, Judd Gray, Rudy Valentino and many others were destroyed today when a warehouse belonging to John T. McCaslin, side show impressario and museum owner, burned.

When the fire was finally out, McCaslin surveyed the wreckage sadly.

"They're all ruined," he said. "Jim Cummings was up there, and Gerald Chapman, and Harry Tracey. They're all melted."

McCaslin had become attached to his wax works friends through five years of trouping with them throughout the South and the Middle West. He had bought them in St. Louis, paying $3,600 for the lot.

The warehouse also had contained much side show equipment, including banners, trunks, circus gear and a deep-sea exhibition.

Removal of the old iron arch given the park by John G. Hurkamp years ago was completed yesterday. The arch was the only vestige of a brick wall and iron gateway put in by Mr. Hurkamp.

Charlottesville, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—The annual spring hunter trials of the Farmington Hunt Club will be held tomorrow at Windsor, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. York, 3 miles west of here.

The program, as announced by the joint masters of the club, Jack Rinehart and Mrs. Berta Garth Jones, provides for four classes—green hunters, halfbred hunters, registered thoroughbred hunters and pair hunters.

Handsome trophies have been donated by Dr. and Mrs. Stephen H. Watts, of the university; Mr. and Mrs. William Luke 2d, of Covington, Va.; Harry George, this city; Mr. and Mrs. Cary Jackson, of Keswick; P. H. Faulconer, Miss Betty Walker and Mr. and Mrs. W. Alonza Rinehart.

The trials are intended as a test for the well-trained, practical hunter. The horses must be hunting sound.

The course will be about 1½ miles, with ten obstacles, including stone, plank, rail, picket, pole, hedge and ditch; a gate to be opened and closed while mounted, and a lead jump. All horses must carry 150 pounds. Most of the contestants are expected to ride in the uniforms of their hunts.

Women's Club Preparing Petitions of Protest.

Bowling Green, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Beer and wine of more than 3.2 per cent alcoholic content will not be sold in Bowling Green if the Women's Club of Caroline County is successful.

In opposing the sale, the club claims the voters of Bowling Green voiced opposition to repeal of prohibition laws at the October election, and that licensing of such places would necessitate a "considerable and needless" expense for police protection.

G. O. P. Visions State Victory In Maryland

G. W. Henderson Boomed as Attorney General on Nice Ticket.

Baltimore, March 30 (Spl.).—A boom for the nomination of George W. Henderson, former mayor of Cumberland, as a candidate for Attorney General of Maryland, was admitted at Republican headquarters here today.

Reports from Western Maryland have it that Mr. Henderson is being boosted to run on the State ticket headed by Harry W. Nice, Baltimore attorney, who is seeking the gubernatorial nomination. Mr. Nice has not yet said whether Mr. Henderson would be acceptable to him as a running mate, but political advisers of Mr. Nice are said to have pointed out to the candidate that the presence of a western Maryland leader on the ticket would serve to greatly strengthen the party ticket.

Mr. Henderson is president of the State organization of the Young Republican League, and has been active for years in political circles in his home county, Allegany, and throughout western Maryland.

Leaders of the Republican party in the State are anxious to avoid a primary battle in the gubernatorial election, and are reported to be seeking to effect a truce between the rival candidacies of Mr. Nice and H. Webster Smith, both of whom have announced they would like the G. O. P. nomination.

In addition, John Philip Hill, veteran wet leader of Maryland, and a former Representative, is reported preparing to file.

Republicans believe the time has come to elect one of their party to succeed Albert C. Ritchie, four-time Governor of Maryland, and dominant figure in one of the most effective political machines in the United States. Ritchie may face a party revolt in his own ranks, and with his growing unpopularity still rising, the G. O. P. leaders are decidedly hopeful of a change in administration this year.

Dr. Cameron was declared ineligible for the post, as he is a Canadian citizen, and under West Virginia laws, quoted by Attorney General Homer A. Dr. Cameron had applied for naturalization papers, but can not be made a citizen until July this year.

The public health officer is paid $300 per month salary with $25 per month for depreciation of his automobile, and his gas and oil bills.

Dr. Thomas, native of Martinsburg and son of the late Dr. William N. Thomas, has practiced medicine here for 20 years. He was Democratic candidate for mayor in 1932, being defeated by Mayor Dailey.

Brutal Murder Of Boy Charged To Farmer, 72

Lad Shot in Face and Body Left Lying Until Following Day.

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 30 (Spl.).—A murder charge was lodged here yesterday against Joe Bear, 72, Back Creek Valley man, confessed slayer of Charles Kees, 18-year-old mountain boy.

The coroner's inquest, ordered by Acting Coroner J. D. Smith, following discovery of the body, was postponed indefinitely, and probably will never be completed.

Police call the slaying one of the most brutal murders ever committed in the Eastern Panhandle. They say he was shot in the face as he stood, hands in pockets, talking with Ted Clark and Carl Shipper near the Bear home at 6 p. m. Sunday. Following the shooting, Clark and Shipper went to their homes, while Bear walked into his home and went to sleep, police say. The body lay, untouched, until 4 p. m. the next day, when officers and a funeral director reached the scene.

Officers say Bear's only explanation for the shooting was that he "did not like Kees."

Bear is unmarried and lives alone. He is said to own considerable property.

W. Va. Sales Tax Applied to Papers

Publications Are Included in Law, Is Ruling.

Charleston, W. Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Fred L. Fox, State tax commissioner, today ruled that newspapers are regarded by his department as tangible property and as such they come under the newly enacted 2 per cent consumers' sales tax.

Editions selling for more than 5 cents a copy, Fox stated, will be taxed under provisions of the law calling for a tax of 1 cent on sales between 6 and 50 cents. Sales of 5 cents or less are exempt as are sales of school books, sales of supplies for Federal and State agencies, and commodities already taxed under other laws, such as gasoline, gas, steam, water and electricity.

Fox also ruled today that merchants operating a credit business may collect and pay the tax on cash received.

Body Is Walking Drug Store, Says Johns Hopkins Scientist

Glands Make Medicines and Prevent Diseases, He Points Out.

Baltimore, March 30 (AP).—The human body is a walking drug store, says Dr. John J. Abel, winner of the 1934 Kober medal for medical research.

"Some of the finest medicines in the world we get from our own body," he said today, "and we are not through with it yet. The so-called organs of secretion are now occupying the attention of scientists everywhere."

He pointed out that the body manufactures many medicines. When taken from the glands they can be used with success against certain diseases. He quoted the results of research to show that "goitrous persons seem to resist tuberculosis infection."

Dr. Abel has had much to do with the perfection of insulin by removing certain material which causes contamination. This medicine, which comes from beeves, has been invaluable in combating diabetes.

He laid stress on vitamins, saying that by eating fresh foods which contain them and getting away from the old-time all-salt diets, people have improved their health.

He spoke of a famous explorer who made a three-year cruise in which no member died of scurvy.

"The explorer merely made his men eat sauerkraut," the doctor said.

Dr. Abel, native of Cleveland, was professor of pharmacology at Johns Hopkins for 41 years.

This includes the exterior and interior painting, varnishing of woodwork, plaster repair, cementing and pointing up of the Allegany County courthouse, jail, county home and insane asylum buildings. The material, costing $1,159, has been received.

The 884 men still working on county CWA projects the last week of administration received a pay roll of $8,639.66, the fourth highest in Maryland. The Garrett County total was $3,106.57 to 335 men.

Prosecuting Attorney Calhoun, Sheriff Hott and Dr. H. L. Gamble declared death was due to natural causes.

Tercentenary Reveals Relics Of Maryland's Famous Tree

Massive Mulberry on Which Calvert Posted Bulletins 300 Years Ago Stripped of Its Limbs and Turned Into Souvenirs.

Leonardtown, Md., March 30 (Spl.).—Tercentenary searches throughout St. Marys County have brought to light relics of Maryland's famous old Mulberry Tree which were never known to have existed before.

Many branches of this tree on which Leonard Calvert posted his public proclamations to Maryland's first settlers at St. Marys City, were carried away by souvenir seekers when its giant trunk was blown down by a storm half a century ago. These were made into household objects and cherished in St. Marys homes until current tercentenary interest brought them to public attention, for the purpose of including them them in the celebrations of the State's 300th anniversary.

Crosses, bowls, baskets, matchboxes and small flags fashioned of the wood have been discovered.

In last Sunday's tercentenary celebration at St. Clements Island Mrs. Frank Parran, president of the Southern Maryland Colonial Dames, placed a bowl, holding three tiny flags, made of the mulberry wood, at the foot of the memorial cross that commemorates the landing of the Ark and Dove there.

Tree's Age Unknown.

Even today the age of the Mulberry Tree is unknown. It stood on the bluff above St. Marys River for 200 years after Gov. Calvert and his little band had vanished, and probably was there for centuries before they came.

Under its sturdy branches, Calvert bought the site of St. Marys City from the Yaocomico Indians and held the first law-drafting meetings with his colonists. Close by it the first Maryland State House was built in 1676 and St. Marys City flourished as the gay first capital of the province.

Not until the capital was removed to Annapolis in 1694 did the massive tree begin to show its age. Dr. John Marshall Brome, former owner of St. Marys Manor, which stood near the tree, sought to protect it from the ravages of souvenir hunters by placing a guard around it when it finally fell. But relic hunters carried off many pieces.

Some of Limbs Sold.

Some of its branches were sold in the State for a fund for the preservation of historical places and much of it was used in the altar of Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church at St. Marys City and for crosses on the pews and bishop's chair of the church.

A huge block of the old tree trunk was stored in St. Mary's Seminary at St. Marys City, but was lost when the original seminary building was destroyed by fire at the opening of this century.

This summer, hundreds of tercentenary visitors will make pilgrimages to the site of this historic tree, now marked only by a tall granite shaft in the graveyard of St. Mary's Trinity Episcopal Church. Just across the way they will see the restored State House of 1676, now under construction there.

Federal Bank Granted Error In Deed Taxes

Loan Institution Claims Exemption From Virginia Levy.

Richmond, March 30 (AP). — The Virginia Supreme Court today granted a writ of error to the Federal Land Bank of Baltimore, which as an agent of the United States Government claims it is exempted from the payment of the tax levied by the State on the consideration of a deed.

Although only three dollars is involved in the case, the principle at issue is important.

The court of appeals also granted a writ of error to Roy Hair, jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., in the circuit court of Lynchburg verdict against him in a suit he brought against the City of Lynchburg for injuries suffered in diving in a swimming pool belonging to the city.

Hair asserts that because of some holes in the bottom of the pool he was thrown off balance and against the concrete, and that as a result he was paralyzed and his injuries are permanent.

Roanoke Schools Get $71,300 More

Total State Appropriation to Be $157,217.

Roanoke, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Roanoke public schools will receive $71,300 additional from the State for the 1934-1935 session, according to information from Dr. Sidney B. Hall, superintendent of public instruction. The total will be $157,217, as against $85,917 for the current session.

The amount is subject, however, to a possible 5 per cent reduction in all State funds and to any difference between the estimates and collections of the State capitation tax, interest from the Literary Fund, and the Governor's measure for schools.

Local schools are expected to receive half of the amount in October and the other half in February, 1935.

Covington C. of C. Opposes New Levy

Covington, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—The Chamber of Commerce directors have voted to oppose the additional 10-cent tax levy put in the Alleghany County budget by the supervisors to take care of two county school bond issues for which no provision ever has been made.

The issues, totaling $90,000, are due in 1952. It is estimated that the new levy would produce $10,000 annually.

If this tax is included in the budget the total levy will be $1.85, or 50 per cent higher than the Augusta County levy of $1.20.

Final Plans Are Laid For Benefit Card Party

Cumberland, Md., March 30 (Spl.).—A final meeting of committees in charge of the Junior Volunteer Service Corps card party April 3, for the benefit of the Maryland League for crippled children, was held at the home of Miss Elizabeth Roberts Dickey.

U. of Va. to Award Two French Medals

Charlottesville, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—The French government has presented to the University of Virginia two medals to be awarded to two outstanding students in French and history. These awards are known as the Yorktown medals.

Cary DeWitt Eldrige, of Chattanooga, Tenn., has been designated by the French faculty to receive one of these medals. The winner of the medal for history has not yet been named.

Telephone Rate Slash Decision Is Due Today

Saving of $1,200,000 to Maryland Users Is at Stake.

Baltimore, March 30 (Spl.).—Closing arguments by attorneys for the Maryland Public Service Commission, which is seeking to justify its telephone rate reduction order, and by attorneys for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., which is fighting the rate cut, will be made tomorrow in Federal court here before three judges. The arguments will terminate a two weeks' legal fight.

The commission is seeking to enforce an order placing the valuation of the telephone company at $32,000,000, with a 6 per cent return on the investment. If the commission's contentions are upheld, users of telephone service in Maryland would be saved $1,200,000 a year.

In a move to block execution of the order, the C. & P. asked an injunction in Federal court, and it is upon this injunction suit that the hearing is being held. The telephone company claims a valuation of $48,000,000 for its property in Maryland, and demands a 7 per cent return upon that investment.

Three Men Die In Truck Crash

Fourth Badly Injured in Collision Near Staunton.

Staunton, Va., March 30 (AP).—Three men died in the King's Daughters Hospital last night within three hours after a truck and automobile crashed near Fisherville, seven miles from here.

The dead are John W. Switzer, 62, of Staunton, Route Five; Preston Stoutamyer, 31, same address, nephew of Switzer; A. E. Lucas, 25, of Waynesboro.

Willie Berry, 25, of Waynesboro, was a passenger in a coal truck with Lucas and received injuries expected to prove fatal.

Switzer was driving a heavy sedan with Stoutamyer as a passenger. A half mile west of Fisherville, the coal truck crashed into the car.

Sheriff G. M. Kilkeson said excessive speed of the truck probably caused the crash. One motorist said the truck passed him while his speedometer was registering 60 miles per hour.

Witness Is Extradited In Berkeley Holdup

Mellotte admitted, authorities said, that he was present when Robucci was assaulted and robbed, allegedly by Harry Stotler, local taxicab driver.

Capper Pleads For Crippled Children of U.S.

Stresses Need of More Aid in District's Schools.

More adequate appropriations for the District's two "excellent" public schools for crippled children was advocated in an address last night by Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, ranking minority member of the Senate District Committee.

Senator Capper, speaking in behalf of the Nation-wide campaign sponsored by the International Society for Crippled Children, of which he is a member, outlined a three-point program for the welfare of the children.

"There are," he said, "three great needs for crippled children which ought to be supplied. The first is a Nation-wide survey of crippled children, so that we may know exactly how many there are, how they became crippled, what their needs for treatment and prevention are and how we may organize to handle these needs.

Training Stressed.

"The second need throughout the country is for more adequate facilities for the treatment and training of crippled children. The third need right here in the District of Columbia is for more adequate appropriation for the conduct of our two excellent schools for crippled children.

"We also need a thorough study that will give an evaluation of the development of the program for crippled children and that will present the existing needs of crippled children in the hope of enlisting further support. It is estimated 300,000 children are crippled.

"This White Cross seal sale which closes tomorrow," he said, "offers you an opportunity to help the cause of crippled children, both locally and Nationally. The quota of seals for this city is 500,000—one per capita—which, if sold, will yield the sum of $5,000 to be used in the interest of the crippled.

Go to Warm Springs.

"The fund will be used to pay transportation to Warm Springs, Ga., of local infantile paralysis cases eligible to treatment under the new endowment created through the President's birthday campaign, also to make a thorough study of the crippled in the District and to provide for better educational facilities and more space for local clinical treatment of crippled children."

Greater efforts to prevent crippling of children should be made, Senator Capper said.

"Health laws and automobile traffic laws properly enforced and other safeguards such as clinics and stations for diagnosis have greatly lessened the number of accidents and the number of serious cases of disease which result in crippled children," he said. "But this matter of prevention has not yet been given the attention it should receive."

Advisers in Place Of Lobbyists Urged

Trained Technicians Must Aid Legislators, View.

Berkeley, Calif., March 30 (AP).—Recommendation that trained technicians take the place of lobbyists as advisers to legislative bodies was made here today by Hubert R. Gallagher, of Chicago, research consultant of the American Legislators Association.

Speaking before a joint session of the legislators' group, the Governmental Research Association and the American Municipal Association, at the Western conference on government, Gallagher said:

"Legislators are elected to decide policies, not technical points. They should not have to do their own reference work. When such is the case they tend to rely on lobbyists, who, in some instances, may prove valuable advisers, but who usually are employed by partisan and selfish interests."

The Federal Diary

By Morgan Baker
(Trade-mark Applied For)

MODERN traffic problems have been ignored by the sponsors of the Triangle area project, is the opinion of W. I. Swanton (*), official at Reclamation, Interior.

BAKER.

It is generally conceded that when the Triangle area is completed and occupied by some 75,000 Government employes, there will be a large proportion of those employes without parking space. Many live beyond walking distance and the already congested condition is certain to grow worse if some provisions for parking cars are not made.

Parking space is available by excavation under the Ellipse, the Mall and other nearby areas, Mr. Swanton says, at a cost of from $800 to $1,000 per car. One of the most practical solutions to the problem would be for the PWA or some similar agency to embark on this construction, he says.

Col. D. E. McQueary, Veterans Administration, president of the Association for Adequate Parking Facilities Among Government Employes, advance figures showing that such underground garages or parking space could be constructed on a self-liquidating basis. Col. McQueary quotes engineers to the effect that the initial investment and maintenance could be handled in 10 years by monthly fees from each motorist as low as $1.50 and $2 a month.

"Due to the amount of taxes paid by the owners of automobiles," Mr. Swanton points out, "the motorists are entitled to more consideration than they are receiving. The automobile owners are now paying the District Government more than $3,200,000 annually, made up of personal property taxes of $500,000; gasoline tax of $2,000,000, and permit taxes of about $600,000. Some of this money could very appropriately be expended in increasing the parking facilities after a very careful study of the traffic problem by Government officials."

Post's Lectures Are Extended Upon Request

Popular Demand Brings Talks on Russia and Japan.

Responding to insistent demands from thousands who have attended The Washington Post travel lectures, originally scheduled each Tuesday night for 20 weeks, at the Masonic Auditorium, The Post has announced an addition to its program with an illustrated travel talk on Russia, Tuesday evening, April 10.

Next Tuesday, April 3, Japan will be depicted with colored stereopticon views and motion pictures by M. T. Yamamoto, an authority on Japanese history, who has spent many years in the United States as an ambassador of good-will for the Far East.

The popularity of The Post lecture series was evident last Tuesday night, when a capacity audience braved a pouring rain to hear George B. Mitchell describe the scenic beauties of Canada. With the aid of still and movie cameras, Mr. Mitchell conducted a tour of every Canadian province from Nova Scotia across the midwestern plains, through the wilderness of northern Canada and across the Rockies.

Mr. Mitchell revealed that he had then continued his journey through Alaska, and announced his willingness to show pictures of this country if his audience cared to stay at such a late hour. Continued applause indicated the desire of his listeners, so this attraction was added.

Possibly it was this circumstance which has contributed to the many requests for a repetition of the Canadian lecture, but The Washington Post regretfully announces that it will be impractical to accede to these demands on an already extended program.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Blackie Gets Back Home

THE next morning Blackie and Jay Bird got up before the sun did, and while Blackie caught some fish for his breakfast, Jay Bird hopped about on the ground and picked up a lot of acorns. As soon as they got through with breakfast they started back for the road.

Jay Bird flew ahead of Blackie, as he always did, and Blackie had slept so well and had eaten such a lot of fishes for breakfast that he felt mighty good, and so he could run fast. It was so soon in the morning there wasn't anyone on the road, and so they got along pretty fast, and didn't have any trouble.

Away along about the middle of the day Blackie got pretty tired and hot and hungry, and when they came to a spring on the side of the road, Blackie told Jay Bird that this was a good place to rest and get a drink of water.

Get a Good Drink

So they both drank some water, and Jay Bird hopped about in the woods and got a lot of berries and acorns, but Blackie didn't see anything that he wanted to eat.

He went off behind a bunch of bushes and lay down to rest a while, and directly he heard the greatest rattling of leaves, and somebody squealing about as loud as Sallie Cat could holler. Blackie stood up on his hind feet and looked all around him, but he couldn't see anybody.

Then he climbed up on a stump and he saw a briar patch pretty close by, and he could see the briar bushes slapping and beating about, and he knew somebody was in there fighting.

So he crept up right easy till he could see who it was, and there were two of the biggest, fattest rabbits he ever saw, but they were so busy fighting that they didn't see Blackie, and he ran up and took his paw and slapped them both so hard that they fell and couldn't run, and so he caught them and ate them both for his dinner.

Blackie Takes Nap.

Then Blackie lay down to take his after-dinner nap, and he asked Jay Bird to sit up in a high tree where he could see all round, and to wake him up if he saw anybody coming. Nobody came to trouble them, so after Blackie had his nap they started out again for home.

Jay Bird told Blackie that if he would run mighty fast, they could get home by night, and Blackie was so anxious to get back home that he ran faster than he had ever run, except the day when he broke away from the circus.

It was just about dark when they got to Blackie's home, and if there ever was a happy bear in this world it was old Blackie Bear when he got his foot on his own doorstep once more.

But he was so tired that he asked Jay Bird not to let Billie Possum nor Dr. Coon nor anybody else know that he had come home, till tomorrow, and then he went in his house and shut the door and got in his bed and went to sleep.

Strike in Spain Ends; Nation Calm

Good Friday Crowds Turn Upon Hoodlums.

Madrid, March 30 (AP).—With the revolutionary general strike at Zaragoza ended, Spain settled down today after a period of excitement and unrest.

Hundreds of thousands of persons participated in the picturesque Good Friday processions and only scattered incidents were reported to the ministry of interior. In Monon, hoodlums broke up a procession by hurling stones and bottles of inflammable liquids, and firing revolvers, but the crowds turned on them and the police saved the assailants from being lynched.

The ministry of interior removed the secretary to the governor at Zaragoza from office because of the incidents in connection with the strike there.

"It's a Gag!"

Austria seems at the present moment less in danger of becoming Nazified than Americanized. They are banning magazines over there now as immoral, and removing nude statues from the streets. "It's a gag!" said Sid Silverman, editor of Variety, when he was told the news.

Yes, it is a gag. A good, old-fashioned, well-tried American gag. In this country our officials, without even waiting for the authority of a dictatorship, have risen to those same heights of the ridiculous as the Austrians reached when they stopped the entrance of the Saturday Evening Post as a periodical unfit for Viennese consumption.

Here we have usually banned real literature, not just a nickel weekly and that passport to success, the American Magazine. And our whole history is full of Puritanical uprisings against nudity in sculpture of either sex. A country whose authorities for years barred such books as Voltaire's "Candide," or even Joyce's "Ulysses," has no right to snicker over the Austrian brainstorm. It's right to call it a gag, though, for that word is as typically American as the acts of removing statues and banning the Satevepost.

What Goes Up Must Come Down

Budget estimates for the District, as well as for the Federal Government, have been upset by the refusal of Congress to sustain President Roosevelt's veto. Of course, the independent offices appropriation bill which became law over the White House's objections has no direct connection with the local budget. But the policy established therein with respect to salaries will be applied to all supply bills, including that for Washington.

The prospective surplus has thus been reduced from about $5,000,000 to $3,000,000, exclusive of revenue from the liquor tax. This is not sufficient to cover all of the supplementary estimates submitted by the Commissioners to the Budget Bureau. Additional revenue is plainly needed to carry out pressing community obligations.

During the early years of the depression Congress sharply reduced the District budget. Savings thus achieved resulted in smaller contributions from the Federal Treasury. In fact, the amount set aside annually for development of the National Capital was reduced by more than half. The Federal contribution shrunk much faster than the budget itself, but Congress sought to justify this attitude toward the District by saying that the demands upon local revenues had decreased.

Now an upward trend in our municipal expenditures has become inevitable, if Washington is to keep abreast of its responsibilities as a community. Congress itself is responsible for the restoration of salaries, to 95 per cent of the base rates, by July 1. In view of the general trend of prices and wages District employes are entitled to this consideration. But the very fact that this act of Congress has increased the budget accentuates its obligation to increase the Federal contribution. Since this so-called "lump sum" was drastically reduced while the budget was shrinking, certainly it ought to be increased when heavier expenditures become imperative.

Congress must either increase its meager support to the Capital City or abandon all pretense of dealing fairly with the taxpayers of Washington.

Extending The Principle.

The agreement which prevented a threatened strike in the automobile industry has been extended to effect a settlement of the prolonged strike of the employes of the Budd automobile-body factory. Trade unionists are to be protected against discriminatory dismissals, company unions are placed on a basis of equality with outside unions, and provision is made for the re-employment of strikers. Thus the hope that the automobile settlement would constitute a precedent for determining the rights of other controversies arising under section 7a of the recovery act seems to be justified.

Despite ambiguities in phrasing, the purpose of the collective bargaining provision is clear. It provided for an uncoerced form of labor organization truly representative of the workers, and it assumed a strictly neutral attitude by the Government toward both management and the A. F. of L. The unsettled issue was the attitude of labor and capital toward plans for determining the representative character of the organizations established to carry on collective bargaining.

A constructive solution was found for the automobile industry, which, with minor adaptations, can be employed to prevent future conflicts, provided employers and employes are willing to "play fair." Refusal to do so constitutes the major danger to industrial peace at the present time. It is entirely feasible to devise methods for determining whether a labor union is really representative and also for circumventing employer efforts to bring undue pressure to bear upon their employes. But if any group or faction on either side is determined to impose its particular brand of unionism or its preferred kind of bargaining agency upon the majority of the workers, in disregard of the plain intention of the recovery act, conflicts are sure to follow.

Another Recovery Plan.

Complete information on the most recent recovery plan is not yet available, but it appears that the Administration is ready to sponsor a gigantic building program as a substitute for the CWA. In many respects the project seems a distinct advance over previous efforts to create jobs and stimulate purchasing power. The Public Works Administration has been a disappointment, while the CWA has proved a stop-gap of the most extravagant and demoralizing kind. It is encouraging to find the Administration looking toward other means to recovery, although judgment as to the practicability of this new venture must be withheld until it has been more fully outlined.

Unemployment is most severe in the industries producing capital goods. Building is still at a low ebb. Consequently, the steel, lumber, cement and similar industries are operating in low gear. A wholesome stimulation of these basic units in our economic system might have most salutary effect. Moreover, housing is a field susceptible of extensive development. Millions of Americans are living in cramped or otherwise undesirable quarters. The social implications of this tentative program are no less important than its economic aspects.

The country might easily become enthusiastic over the objectives of this latest recovery movement. But sound policy calls for consideration of ways and means along with objectives. The PWA has tried to encourage construction of low-cost housing projects, subsistence farms, etc., without much success. A number of loans for slum-clearance undertakings were canceled recently because the sponsors had encountered difficulties in carrying them through. Does this new program mean that the Government intends to develop an extensive real estate business of its own?

One feature of the plan is said to be a "bargain counter" for home owners, to encourage repairs and modernization. Presumably easy credit would be made available. Steps would be taken to reduce the price of building materials and wages going into projects of this kind. Such adjustments are extremely complicated and seem directly at variance with the construction industry codes under NRA.

The new movement has all the elements of a major undertaking. It is aimed at the most vulnerable spot in the depression. A great deal of constructive thinking and careful planning will be necessary, however, if it is to become more than a makeshift substitute for the CWA. One aspect of that study ought to be concerned with removal of existing restrictions upon the heavy industries. Correction of the destructive provisions of the securities act, for example, might be quite as effective as the new program in stimulating new construction.

Otto H. Kahn.

The death of Otto H. Kahn removes an interesting personality from the New York scene. Prominent in the banking field, especially in his association with E. H. Harriman in financing the upbuilding of the Union Pacific System, Mr. Kahn left also a distinct impression on the musical and art world. His interest in the Metropolitan Opera was keen, and for a long time he was the dominating personality in its management. In art he was more of a collector than an original connoisseur.

Probably it was the esthetic side of the man, and the imaginative part of his make-up, that appealed to E. H. Harriman, in whom this same imaginative quality was apparent. Neither of the two men was a mere money-maker. To a certain extent the esthetic aspect of creative genius was in both men. Both showed courage, imagination and daring. Both were independent and had a considerable amount of fighting spirit.

Mr. Kahn had in his make-up, in combination with his banking instinct and training, a strong sense of the public interest and on many occasions showed outstanding qualities of leadership in the discussion of public affairs.

Our Last Toll Road.

Few tears will be shed over the passing of the toll road system in Virginia, although memories of old times are recalled by the bar across the old Leesburg turnpike. This survival of the discarded private-road system has remained too long in operation at the back door of the National Capital, especially since it affords access to one of our chief scenic attractions.

The old Leesburg highway, leading to Great Falls on the Virginia side of the Potomac, offers a conspicuous example of the depression that long ago fell upon toll roads. The operating company is in receivership, and the highway itself is in a deplorable condition. Great Falls is a popular scenic spot, but now most visitors reach it by way of the public highway on the Maryland side.

When Washington's park system has been fully developed a broad scenic highway will connect Mount Vernon with Great Falls. Extension of the George Washington Memorial Highway from Arlington Bridge to the proposed new Chain Bridge will be undertaken as soon as funds are available. Virginia is expected to complete the boulevard to Great Falls, possibly using the bed of the existing toll road. It thus becomes an important factor in the planned development of the National Capital area.

In a technical sense the old Leesburg pike is about to be sold to satisfy the claims of creditors. But it is unthinkable that it should pass again into the hands of private operators. Officials at Richmond are expected to make arrangements for its transfer to Virginia as an essential part of that State's highway system. Only through public ownership can it be modernized and made to serve as the important link which it should be in the Potomac boulevard system.

Contrary To Conviction.

Grave as are the implications of the Bankhead bill, the measure itself is somewhat overshadowed by the manner of its passage through the Senate. Forty-six votes were recorded in favor of the bill and 39 against it, but a number of Senators who voted affirmatively did so against their own convictions. Perusal of the debate leads directly to the assumption that if Senators had followed their own sincere misgivings, the bill would have been defeated.

Just before the vote was taken Senator Gore, Democrat, of Oklahoma, quoted Jefferson as saying: "Were we directed from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread." The blind Senator then made this pungent comment of his own:

> I fear that the farmers are winding a boa constrictor about themselves that one day may break every bone in their bodies. * * * If the farmers can be told when to plant, what to plant, and where to plant it, what not to plant, and where not to plant it, then what is left of private property; then what is left of individual liberty, when we have created a desert by statute?

Although Senator Gore was paired against the bill, most of his Democratic colleagues voted to give the Secretary of Agriculture authority to tell 2,000,000 farmers how much cotton they may sell. Senator Barkley explained: "I shall vote for it with all my fingers and toes crossed." Senator Stephens admitted that his vote was cast "with rather strong misgivings as to the probable effects which may come from its enactment." Earlier in the debate other supporters of the bill made similar apologies.

Some of the amendments adopted by the Senate tend to make the bill ludicrous. Its primary intent is to limit cotton ginning to 10,000,000 bales this year by the imposition of a prohibitive tax on all ginning in excess of that amount. Yet a Senate amendment intended to exempt the "little fellow" from this regimentation would allow a potential output of 12,000,000 bales before the plan became operative.

With similar slovenliness, the Senate adopted the conference report on another major agricultural bill. This measure was initiated for relief of the cattle industry. But the Senate, in a log-rolling mood, had previously added amendments making peanuts, rye, barley, flax and grain sorghums basic commodities under the adjustment act. This means these minor crops become eligible for the complex processing tax machinery. Moreover, the bill provides $250,000,000 directly from the Treasury for the benefit of cattle interests, since the early imposition of a processing tax on cattle is not considered feasible.

Congress is extending bureaucratic control over a large number of commodities as well as fastening an iron-fisted dictatorship upon cotton farmers. Sliding over basic principles, both houses have been guided by expediency in these actions. Major legislation has been enacted by following the course of least resistance.

Through the House.

No limitation of debate or amendment was applied in the House consideration of the reciprocal tariff bill. None the less the measure was pushed through to passage, after much informative discussion, less than a fortnight after being reported from committee. That record on a piece of major legislation indicates that gag-rule tactics are not merely offensive and undemocratic, but also unnecessary from a tactical viewpoint.

Of some two-score amendments, mostly of clearly obstructive intent, only two survived for incorporation in the measure. Both of these, however, were of signal importance. One confines the projected executive power in alteration of tariff rates to a three-year time limit. The other specifies that foreign debts shall under no circumstances enter into tariff bargaining with other countries. In both cases the amendments were sponsored by the Administration. Neither was in any way superfluous. For these amendments emphasize in the first case the emergency character, and in the second case the specific objective, of the legislation. They tend to allay opposition which has focused on fear of enlargement of the executive prerogative under cover of the obvious need for reviving foreign markets.

To what extent the bill, if passed by the Senate, will actually revive these markets is problematical. But if rosy forecasts in this direction have been overdrawn, at least equally exaggerated have been the fears expressed by various pessimistic Congressmen as to the "ruinous" effect of this bill on American industry. Advocates of an extreme nationalist economy seem to forget that the manufacturer who makes for export, and the importer, too, for that matter, give employment and make profits just as much as those engaged in purely domestic trade.

Our loss of foreign commerce during the past five years is alone calculated to have added nearly two millions to the total of our unemployed. A turn toward cutting down instead of further augmenting this number is overdue. That turn for the better may be foreshadowed by the bill which the House passed Thursday.

"Ministers are to be censured because they preach too much concerning church finances," declares a bishop, who seems to think there is too much talk about jack in the pulpit.

"Americans love a London fog," declares the editor of an English paper. Our idea of something droll is an American going all the way to London to get in a fog.

One trouble with this country is that the "balance of power" never seems to have the power of balance.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters over 250 words are subject to condensation.

Antiquated Theories.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Ghosts of antiquated theories walk the pages of The Post in a letter published March 21, and signed "Observer," who opinionates that: "Woman's place is in the home, nature placed her there, and no other created position for her can remain permanent."

When "Observer" declares that "Woman's suffrage is one of the silliest fads ever put over," we repress emotional reply, but when we read, "Disgusting as is much that has already taken place, it is as nothing compared with what will follow as the years go by," we shout, "prophecy!" for woman (aided by progressive man) gradually frees herself from her web of dependency, confident that each weary day's sunset foretells greater illumination for that tomorrow in which she will stand revealed as individual, rather than a mere appendage of man.

GLORIA DARE.
Falls Church, Va., March 29.

Penalizing the Consumer.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "Penalizing the consumer for his lack of buying power"—that is exactly what the Administration is doing by boosting the price of provisions and food stuffs and handing the money so gained to the farmer. The farmer is no object of charity. True, he has been up against it pretty hard, but as a class farmers have probably been hurt least of any. Nearly all farmers still possess a fairly comfortable home in the country, and with a little effort they can still extract a good living from the kindly soil.

I wish especially to commend two editorials appearing recently in The Post, "What Would Jefferson Say?" and "Behind the Blue Eagle." I also wish to compliment Mr. Goldsborough for his excellent letter on the "Centralization of Power."

L. G. HIGGINS.

Religious Toleration.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The attempt to make it appear that the Calverts of Maryland set a precedent for religious toleration in this country is inconsistent with the facts. They could not have done otherwise without forfeiting the charter granted by the English government. At that time the English people had not long emerged from an age drenched with the blood of martyrs for conscience's sake. One has but to read the history of that and preceding periods to get a proper conception of the actual state of affairs.

Religious toleration of the Roger Williams sort proved to be the foundation upon which the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States were builded. VERITAS.
Washington, March 27.

Enough Troubles of Our Own

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We have sufficient domestic conflicts and complications of our own without going outside of our realm to conflict with those of other nations too remote to be of mutual benefit—especially in the absence of Germany, Russia and Japan from the League of Nations.

FRISBIE GILBERT.
Washington, March 27.

Hits the Nail on the Head.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to add my word along with the others in testimony to the interesting articles now appearing in your paper.

I think your issue of March 28 is a gem for hitting the nail on the head—on your editorial and the page following it. Your short articles are concise and stimulating. H. I. Phillips tops the list!

RAYMOND L. ROSS.
Washington, March 28.

Mrs. Worrell's Service.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Although unheralded and unsung in the pages of our newspapers, Government employes should give great honor and praise to Mrs. Margaret Hopkins Worrell, president of the League of the American Civil Service, for the splendid work she has done in the crystallization of opinion for the restoration of the pay cut.

Mrs. Worrell has probably made more friends among our Congressmen than any other person and it is a well-known fact that for the last 15 years she has devoted her time and energies to the enactment of beneficial legislation for Government employes without thought of monetary compensation. She is entirely unselfish, loyal to her ideals, sympathetic and courageous and we are convinced that she sacrificed her position and is now without employment because of her activities in behalf of Government employes and opposition to the efficiency rating system.

Mrs. ANNIE M. OSBURN.

"Peaceful Revolution."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Anent the article in your March 29 issue on the new book "On Our Way" by President Roosevelt, in which the writer is quoted as saying that the term "peaceful revolution" is only an "apt term" and that if this Administration "is a revolution, it is a peaceful one, achieved without violence, without the overthrow of the purposes of established law and without the denial of just treatment to any individual or class."

By and large, the exact opposite state of affairs exists. If the President wants a concrete case of where his dictatorship has subordinated the laws of the land and the processes of the courts to the orders of the Executive, he will consider the present action of Congress in overriding his veto on veterans' affairs. It is just this situation that has forced the veterans to turn against the President and until he cleans out the Veterans' Administration and returns the handling of veterans' affairs to the old Pension Bureau system, with a very few modifications, he will have a fight on his hands. L. R. ELKINS.
Washington, March 29.

A Stamp Boycott.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The cutting off of the air-mail service by the present Administration has brought unhappiness to millions of homes. I would propose to our stamp-buying public, our 3,000,000 stamp collectors, our people whose use of the mails is their income, that we do not buy a single stamp for the next ten days.

We can do without our letter writing until this most opprobrious arrogation of authority to "hold up the mails" be rescinded.

B. LOUDUN.
Camden, N. J., March 27.

It Worked, Nevertheless.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There was no need to have a Federal pay bill attached to a bill for veterans' legislation. That is what I call "gross inefficiency." It is on a par with everything else that is done here. MISS E. BRANDS.
Washington, March 27.

Selective Questions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I would like to ask some questions of every voter in the United States. What would you do if you were called on to select the ones to administer this great Government of ours? Would you select the best educators, versed in political science and commercial economy? Would you select the ones who have accumulated the most wealth? Would you select the ones with honorary degrees? Would you select the best civil engineers? or would you select one that could make mountains out of molehills "along the Potomac?"

N. BURR BELL.
Rockville, Md., March 27.

"Oh Sap, Oh Song."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Spring is near, appearances to the contrary notwithstanding. Recently at the height of a snow storm, the post delivered to me a crate containing 1,000 jonquils from an old-fashioned garden in Virginia, where they grow on a southern sunny slope and always come in ahead of other garden flowers. Clinging close together they gave a flash of gold across the gloom. Soon we can all be saying with Le Gallienne, "Oh sap, oh song, oh green world blossoming." FLOWER LOVER.
Washington, March 26.

What Is American?

What is American?

Col. Lindbergh in his letter to Secretary of War Dern made the statement:

"Use of the Army Air Corps to carry the air mail was unwarranted and contrary to American principles."

Col. Lindbergh's father, who was an American to the core, believed in Government ownership and operation of banking, communication and transportation so these services could be provided "as near to actual cost as it is possible."

One of the greatest of American jurists and commentators on American constitutional law, Justice Story, certainly did not agree with Col. Lindbergh.

"If it be the right and duty of Congress," he wrote, "to provide adequate means for the transportation of the mails wherever the public good requires it, what limit is there to these means other than that they are appropriate to the end?"

Col. Lindbergh would hardly declare that Government-owned and operated postoffices are "un-American." The Constitution provides for them.

Why is it "American" for the Government to carry mail on the ground, "un-American" to carry it in the air?

"Un-American," as used in this sense, usually means "Government in business."

There is supposed to be something "un-American" about "Government in business."

"Government in business" is "American" so long as the Government interferes only to make more money for private interests.

"Government in business" is "un-American" as soon as Government interferes with private profits.

When the Government gets into the aviation business to the extent of millions in subsidies, that is "American."

When the Government feels that the taxpayer is being taken for a ride, cuts off the subsidies and takes over the air mails itself, that is "un-American."

Efforts to protect taxpayer, consumer or worker are always "un-American."

Mr. Roosevelt finds that hard to understand.

So would Washington, Jefferson, Jackson or Lincoln.

The Post Impressionist

Under Your Hat

Postoffice, Saturday.

Upon our desk lie two letters.

They complain against the same evil—but for reasons which seem irreconcilable. Each letter raises the issue between the boyish figure and the figure that was girlish before the girlish figure became boyish. And each is about the New Hat.

What is the New Hat, anyhow?

* * * *

Of course, we mean the new hat for women. There never was a new hat worth mentioning for unhappy man.

Also of course, the writers of these letters are masculine. The only women who would waste time writing about hats, new or old, are fashion experts, whose motives are mercenary. All other interested women would devote their energies, not to writing about a hat, but to buying it—and the buying of this new hat must require not merely energy, but also self-assurance and courage.

* * * *

Those letters tell us everything about the new hat except what it is.

* * * *

Take Harold's letter. Harold writes from George Washington University, where he has evidently been majoring in French. He sobs:

> Can't The Post-Impressionist choke this new hat that's getting fashionable? . . . It's impossible for any chic girl to wear it. No girl with a svelte figure would look like anything with one of those hats over her ear. Abundantly clear that the new hat is not for the slim girl, eh?

* * * *

But listen to the Major, aged—well, middle-aged. He says a great deal more than Harold, and a great deal more vehemently, but he isn't a great deal clearer:

> " . . . It's all another phase of the modern fashion-setters' de-feminizing conspiracy against women that look like women—against women that are women. These new hats just simply can't be worn on a head that has any curves left south of its shoulders.
> Abundantly clear—the other way. Eh?

* * * *

It is not for us to speculate in such mysteries; we haven't the faintest idea of what the new hat looks like. But we'll succumb to the temptation of a single speculation.

Certain indications lead us to believe that Harold is nearer right than he guesses and that—the Major's eye not being quite so keen as it used to be—the "fashion-setters' conspiracy" has reversed its purpose. Along the popular horizon, we detect hints that our former military friend's standard of feminine beauty may be due for a fresh dawn.

* * * *

* * * *

It's all very well to say Mae West is fading: If she is, it is more a matter of personality than person. Take a case of popularity too patent to brook denial:

Anna Sten, says Richard Watts, Jr., of the New York Herald-Tribune, "is chiefly of interest as the vigorous type that may end by being far superior to the effete Glamour Girl of the current school."

* * * *

If you don't believe Mr. Watts, you may soon judge for yourself: Miss Sten's first picture will shortly "show" in Washington. And if, then, you won't believe your eyes, you must accept the following confidence committed to us last evening by the W. P.'s own Nelson Bell:

"Evelyn Venable is going to be one of the most popular stars on the screen by the end of this year."

Now, Miss Venable has been seen here in a secondary role of "Cradle Song," with Will Rogers in "David Harum," with Fredric March in "Death Takes a Holiday." . . . And you know she is almost as plumpish as popular.

* * * *

Nor is that all—even that.

The Wampas is not an Australian animal. Wampas is the mellifluous nickname of the West Coast Association of Motion Picture Advertisers, a serious guild. For some years past, at the start of each year, Wampas has been carefully naming a baker's dozen of lesser screen-ladies as the forthcoming twelvemonths' new-star material. Thus far, Wampas has seldom gone wrong. And of the thirteen Wampas selections for 1934 seven and eight-ninths are distinctly on the billowy side.

* * * *

But Wampas are men? Mostly. Therefore, to clinch this argument, we wired a friend's Los Angeles aunt. She is a maiden-lady who reached years of discretion before you knew what they meant. She is, moreover, a high-school teacher. We asked her to see what the "new lot" was like on the Fox Lot, and she telegraphed, collect: "Curved." We asked her to report what the new lot was like on the Paramount Lot, and she wired:

"If you know what I mean, almost Camille d'Arvilleish."

* * * *

We condole with Harold. The Major we correct and congratulate. He ought to shake hands with H. G. Wells, who once said that his conceptions of womanly loveliness were formed in his boyhood by idealized pictures of Britannia on the British penny. At least on the screen, at least for a season, the sweetness will cease to be "sweetness long drawn out."

* * * *

But about that New Hat: Do you wear it as the one in Shakespeare, "your hat penthouse-like o'er the shop of your eyes"?

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

GOOD morning, ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience. Alternating back and forth between man and wife, so to speak, we again present Mrs. Diebenkorfer, who will talk to you on "Our Government, Your Government and Mine." Sometimes we give you Mr. Diebenkorfer, sometimes Mrs. Diebenkorfer. Now that we have repeal we plan in the near future to let them both talk to you at the same time. Mrs. Diebenkorfer:

"Good morning, friends of the radio audience. I come to you this morning to tell you of one of the most interesting studies those of us who are with the Government, your Government and mine, have ever made. It was on why CWA workers strike.

BARGERON.

Here, my friends, was a subject that had intrigued, shall I say, baffled our Government, your Government and mine. What processes of thought, what mental workings went into the making of this conclusion? That is what we set out to study and in the end determine.

* * * *

We drew heavily upon the vast resources of our Government, your Government and mine, in making this study. We hesitated at first in taking the proffered services of the Bureau of Standards because, as you know, that agency existed in the old regime, and we of the New Deal Government, your New Deal Government and mine, have been leary of it on that account.

But we were pressed for time in this instance. After all, as you non-governmental workers have perhaps observed, we had not had the CWA workers for very long and it was our hope not to have them much longer. Therefore, from looking at our charts and perceiving instantly that this was the situation, we decided that it was best, or should I say, that the best results might be obtained, from taking the facilities already set up, knowing, of course, that we could closely check them—that we could, so to speak, take their findings in the light of our New Deal philosophy and come to a satisfactory result. The result is not as satisfactory, manifestly, as it would have been had we had our own facilities instead of those that existed under Hoover. But they are results nevertheless, the results, my friends, of profound studying on the part of our Government, your Government and mine.

* * * *

What we did was to take chemical substances from a man who had been out of employment, from a man who had been steadily employed throughout the depression and mix them with three ounces of the chemical substances of a guinea pig. We put these in a glass about the size of what you at your breakfast table would call a tumbler. Then, through a highly microscopic instrument which we in the Government, your Government and mine, call a microscope, we watched closely the clash of these opposing elements.

In the first electrolysis there was a tendency of these rival substances to find their mates or fellows or comrades or companions of purpose, so to speak, and form one homogeneous division. Thus it came about that there came to be two definite homogeneous divisions, that is to say, one homogeneous division on this hand, or should I say, on this side of the tumbler, and another homogeneous division on the other hand or other side of the tumbler.

* * * *

As we studied these respective formations, this squaring off of two opposing sides, so to speak, we realized that before we could continue with our studies we had to label each division, that is to say, set up a terminology by which we could pass our findings when we got any, on to mankind.

So one side was labeled "positive" and the other side was labeled "negative." Our task from there was comparatively simple. We had the positive forces facing the negative forces like two opposing armies. There they were in rigid phalanx, the positive forces, and there they were in rigid phalanx, the negative forces. For a while they just stood glaring at one another. Then the positive forces shoved out a foot as if to take a step. The negative forces immediately did likewise. That started the activity. In no time the two forces were grappling all over the place, making at first one grand homogeneous mess and then, of course, the result.

The result utterly belies Mr. Hoover's contention that the dole takes the manhood or the restlessness which is so essential to progress, out of people. We of the New Deal Government, of your New Deal Government and mine, can safely say that it does not sap their strength and make them content.

Free Vaccine Is Protested

School Board in Prince Georges Keeps Hands Off Dispute.

The Prince Georges County school board has taken no part in the recommendation that free vaccination for school pupils be discontinued, according to a statement issued by Nicholas Orem, county school superintendent.

Because of a protest made recently by the County Medical Society, announcement was made that Dr. A. B. Hooton, county health officer, would discontinue free vaccination and free diphtheria inoculations in the schools.

The announcement brought forth letters of protest from many of the Parent-Teacher Associations concerned.

Authority for deciding the question, Mr. Orem has declared, rests solely with the State board of health, which has in turn decided to leave the matter entirely to the local physician.

This, of course, will mean that the teachers must require a vaccination certificate from all new entrants and refuse admission to those who fail to furnish it, he said.

Prince William Corn Averages 1,807 Acres

Manassas, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Corn and hog contracts signed in Prince William County show an average crop of 1,807 acres of corn and 3,740 hogs for the years 1932 and 1933.

Pronouncement Made on 80th Anniversary of Perry Treaty.

(Associated Press.)

Commemorating the eightieth anniversary of the first treaty negotiated between the United States and Japan, Cordell Hull, Secertary of State, yesterday pledged the United States to continue the friendly cooperation existing between the two nations.

"Today, as 80 years ago," Hull said, "and always, it is our desire to cooperate cordially and helpfully with Japan in all peaceful constructive lines of endeavor, to the benefit of this country, of Japan and of the rest of the world."

Hull's statement was made in indorsing the proposal of the United States Chamber of Commerce that March 31 be designated as "Perry Day" and observed by all organizations interested in maintaining friendly commercial and political relations with Japan.

On March 31, 1854, Commodore Perry signed a treaty with Japan which opened the empire, for the first time, to trade with other nations.

"Commodore Perry styled the instrument, the negotiation of which you propose to celebrate, a treaty of peace and amity," Hull said. "In it there was firmly laid a foundation upon which there has been erected a structure of enduring friendship and reciprocal benefits.

"In the field of commerce, as each country produces materials and commodities which the other requires, there is a natural reciprocal exchange of goods; the trade between the two countries has reached conspicuous proportions and continues to increase.

"In the field of industry, each Nation has its own distinctive genius. Both countries are able to contribute, each in its own way and without injury to the other, toward the welfare of mankind.

"Today, as during the 80 years since the conclusion of the Perry Treaty, our relations with Japan, as with other countries, are conducted on a basis of peace and amity."

Hubbard Medal Awarded Today

Mrs. Lindbergh to Be Given Coveted Trophy by Dr. Grosvenor.

The first presentation of the Hubbard gold medal of the National Geographic Society to a woman will be made to Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, wife of the famous flyer, in a private ceremony in the society's headquarters today.

With only the board of trustees, officers and staff of the society attending at Mrs. Lindbergh's request, the presentation will be made by Dr. Gilbert Grosvenor in recognition of her "brilliant accomplishments as radio operator, aerial navigator and co-pilot—her tireless and skillful work during the aerial circumnavigation of the Atlantic by Col. Lindbergh and herself last summer, and for similar activities during their flight in 1931 from Washington to Tokyo."

Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh will dine tonight with Dr. and Mrs. Grosvenor at their home, Wild Acres. Dr. Grosvenor and Mrs. Lindbergh's father, the late Dwight Morrow, one-time U. S. Senator and Ambassador to Mexico, attended Amherst College together.

Wyoming Tabs 8,000 Moose.

Cheyenne, Wyo. (U.P.).—There are approximately 8,000 head of moose in Wyoming, a census just completed by Dr. Robert A. Hocker, head of the State game department, showed.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips.

THE PRESIDENT GOES FISHING.

What fun to be on the open sea!
What joy to go a-cruising
With a rod and line on a vessel fine
Far from problems most confusing!

As the willing mate cuts a slice of bait
I feel keen anticipation;
Oh, it's great to feel I can thumb a reel
Far from all interrogation!

When the line runs out I can yell and shout
O'er the green and turquoise high seas,
With the joy I get when I need not fret
Over problems, bills and crises.

Oh, it's fun to troll in a modest roll
As the gleaming ocean glitters,
And to rather like cries of "There's a strike!"
Which on land would bring the jitters.

When the sailfish leap I'm not forced to keep My official White House bearing;
I can lose my poise and make lots of noise
Without anybody caring.

I can catch a fish if it is my wish
Or not knowing how to handle,
I can let it play 'til it gets away
Without threat of public scandal.

I can bring a "sail" to the very rail
And then fail to land the critter
Without jeers of "Oh! Well, I told you so!"
And much comment sharp and bitter.

Stealing five baits (maybe tenski),
It is all okay and there's none to say
"Why he's just a mere Kerensky!"

Should the dolphin gay tear my lure away
Without slightest hesitation,
Tho' it may seem dumb, 'twill bring no cracks from
The Committee for the Nation.

If I give much slack to an amberjack
And he carries off my tackle,
I'll be too far out to discern the shout
And the G. O. P.'s coarse cackle.

Without parley after parley;
From advice by Big Jim Farley.

As I roll and pitch with the idle rich
I'll be carefree, gay and merry,
Where I will not hear any plot yarn drear
From Professor Wirt of Gary!

So I wish you well for a little spell
And a fish I'll try to get me—
If the fish are there and I have the flair
And the fishing codes will let me!

World Wheat Accord Sought

Delegates Study Scheme to Fix Flour Prices by Agreement.

London, March 30 (U.P.).—A world-wide project to fix the price of wheat and flour was contained in a confidential report delivered by a sub-committee today at the international wheat advisory committee.

The report also suggested an international plan for control of minimum prices and wheat and flour exports as one means of solving the present world wheat surplus problem and restore to the farmer a reasonable margin of profit on his crops. The project was expected to be the major consideration before the world wheat conference scheduled to open in Rome April 5.

It envisages a scheme whereby a small body of grain sellers and buyers will be named to draw up a tentative scale of prices tending to assure fair distribution among exporting countries of the total demand among importers.

In order to prevent evasion of the proposed agreement, it is suggested that the importing countries require wheat and flour importers to sign a declaration that they have not purchased their supplies below the prices established as the absolute minimum.

Italy Holds Colorful Easter Prayer Services

Rome, March 30 (AP).—A pall of mournful silence punctuated only by prayers and picturesque processions hung over Italy tonight as grief for the death of Christ gripped the nation in solemn Good Friday ceremonies. Pope Pius XI attended services in the Vatican with prelates of his court.

In St. Peter's, Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state and high priest of the Basilica, presided over the "Miserere" and "Tenebrae" mourning services.

Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad to His Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise: Did you ever notice that a genius has many talents?

The great operatic tenor sketches well; the great actor paints landscapes; the great poet or mathematician or essayist plays the violin or piano. Leonardo, greatest genius of all time, did everything well.

But if Nature in a generous mood is prodigal, she is equally parsimonious when she decides to be stingy.

When you see a poor man following a one-horse plow in a vain effort to scratch a living from worn-out soil, you feel sorry for him and say to yourself that he might prosper if he had a chance.

But it may be that he is illiterate, lazy and shiftless, in which case there is no occupation or environment that would afford him a better living than he is making now.

The man who can't do one simple thing well is doomed to be a failure at all things. And by the same token, a man who has the intelligence and energy to succeed uncommonly well as a merchant, farmer, publisher or bridge builder could also make a success of any other job that doesn't require peculiar genius.

What has all of this to do with you? It makes a point that you need to see.

I have heard you talk about getting a job and making life a jolly adventure, free of boredom and restraints.

Well, my dear, it can't be done. The Kingdom of Heaven is within you.

If you can't make life interesting and free of boredom right here at home, you can't do it by teaching school or clerking in a store or working in an office.

People are much the same everywhere and every environment is a bore to those who are subject to boredom.

I hate to spoil your dream, but wherever you go you must take yourself along with you. And the qualities and capacities and state of mind that make life tiresome in one place will have the same effect in another when the newness wears off. Love, DAD.

Secrecy Veils Dinner Plans Of Democrats

High of Party Invited, and Press Excluded From Event.

A dinner attended exclusively by Democratic politicians and office holders, and at which politics will be taboo and from which reporters will be excluded will be held at the Willard Hotel tonight.

The invitation committee is composed of Vice President Garner, Speaker Rainey, and Senators Robinson, Arkansas; Pittman, Nevada, and Tydings, Maryland. All questions were referred to Senator Tydings, who was out of town. At Senator Pittman's office it was explained that his job was to send invitations to "ambassadors and other people in foreign countries, who couldn't come anyway but who might send messages."

Among those on the dinner committee were Ray Baker, former director of the Mint; Harry B. Hawes, former Senator from Missouri, and Alfons B. Landa, Washington lawyer. Hawes said there was no secret about the dinner but that he just didn't know enough about it to discuss it.

It was reported that 260 Democrats would attend but that identity of the diners would not be revealed until late today. It was added that Cabinet members are expected to attend and that included among persons to whom invitations have been sent are Alfred E. Smith, John W. Davis and James M. Cox, all former Democratic Presidential nominees.

Bonus by Cash Due for Third Senate Defeat

'Greenback' Measure Given Slight Chance of Passage Now.

(Associated Press.)

Senate Administration leaders think privately that the $2,200,000,000 "greenback-bonus" bill has little chance of becoming law this session.

The House has approved the measure, and it now is in the Senate Finance Committee. Chairman Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, indicated yesterday there would be no rush by his committee even to consider the bill. Senator Harrison was one of those who stood with the President on the veterans' bill veto earlier this week.

One Democratic leader pointed out that the Senate twice has voted "no" on the bonus this session, and he believes it would do so again. Even should the bill be passed, he is of the opinion that insufficient votes could be mustered to override the Presidential veto that would be certain to follow.

Some members of the powerful veterans' bloc do not agree with the view that the measure will be sidetracked or beaten. Several hold hope of an early Senate vote on it.

Senator Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, has introduced a substitute measure. He proposes to pay veterans the amount of their adjusted service credit, plus interest at 4½ per cent, compounded annually since the armistice. The total would be less than that of the Patman (House) bill.

Instead of issuing greenbacks to pay the cost, Pittman would do it by the issuance of Treasury bonds or notes. He would set up a sinking funds to pay off Treasury indebtedness by the purchase of 2,000,000,000 ounces of silver.

Neither the Senate nor House were concerned with the veterans' issue yesterday, however, both chambers being in recess until Monday.

Easter.

If you wish to be accurate, never use the expression Easter Sunday; call it Easter Day or simply Easter. The word Sunday is included in the word Easter as Thursday is now included in the word Thanksgiving.

In the whole Christian Church throughout all the world, Easter is the greatest of feasts, the climax of the year. The entire Christian religion, as a religion, is founded on Easter; if there had been no original Easter Day, there would not now be a single Christian Church in the world. All the steeples advertise Easter. I heard a Catholic priest say that if there had not been a Resurrection, the Roman Catholic Church would be the greatest enigma in history.

There are many things about religion we do not know, and many that we can not understand; but it is a matter of historical record that something happened to change the fear and despair of the little group of the Master's followers into the most obstreperous joy and triumph. Something happened 1900 years ago that changed the course of human history. Let me recommend a book by an English lawyer, Frank Morison, called "Who Moved the Stone?"

I like to see people celebrate Easter; even those who seldom go to church will go on that day. I like even the Easter parade on Fifth avenue. I like the idea of the Easter bonnet, even if it is celebrated only in comic song. If ever there is a time to put on bright clothes and gay hats, Easter is that time.

A nation always celebrates when a great victory ends a war, and its anniversary is celebrated. Well, in Easter we celebrate the greatest of all victories over the greatest of all foes. It is the triumph of Life over Death. I move we make it unanimous.

No End of Books

By

Theodore Hall

ROM LANDAU worked four years on this biography, "Ignace Paderewski: Musician and Statesman" (Crowell, $3). When he discovered that Charles Phillips beat him by three months to publication and the first fine splash of sales with a work on the same subject, I dare say M. Landau was pretty well annoyed, but he can console himself with the fact that he did the better job.

Landau's life of Paderewski is lithe, pointed, coherent. It has none of the lengthy splurging of the Phillips book, none of the saccharine adulation. If there are fewer anecdotes and fewer quotations from ephemeral musical criticism, the total effect is at least more vivid and intelligible.

THEO. HALL.

* * * *

The best part of Landau's book is a section at the end called "Conversations at Riond Bosson"—that being the name of Paderewski's home at Morges, on the bank of Lake Geneva, where Landau visited him recently. Landau wanted to fill in several chinks in his knowledge of Paderewski. The latter's answers were frank and extremely interesting.

No one had been able to find out what Paderewski thought of the younger generation of pianists. Of Vladimir Horowitz he now said: "I like him very much. * * * If he does not get spoiled and if he can keep up his present power, he ought to go very far. Without any doubt, he is the most convincing of the younger pianists."

Paderewski dislikes modern music. "Most modern composers are like soda water—sparkling at first, but leaving you quite unsatisfied after one or two sips."

Landau noticed a copy of Hitler's "Mein Kampf" on the piano. Did Paderewski think a movement like German Nazi-ism could be confined to one country only? "I very much doubt it," replied Paderewski. "I would not be surprised if sooner or later we saw such movements spreading even into such civilized countries as England and France. Misery and unemployment rob the people of all faculties of judgment and vision. * * * The masses desire chaos, nothing but chaos."

When Landau asked him his opinion of radio, Paderewski's answer was at striking variance with an earlier opinion reported by Charles Phillips. "It is killing music and musicians," said Paderewski emphatically. "It just robs the people of any possible personal musical activity and of their musical keenness; it casts a spell of laziness on them."

These are plain words, but that is the tone of the volume—a candid and sincere study of the man whom Arthur Balfour described as "one of the very few people to whom the word genius can be applied." You will find it excellent reading.

* * * *

Now to a footnote on "Anthony Adverse." It is already a fetish of mine to preserve my distinction of never having read the book. But I understand there is in it a certain leading character named Vincent Nolte.

Now Vincent Nolte was an actual person, a roving banker and commercial middleman of the turn of the nineteenth century. We would call him a professional onlooker, for he watched the rise and fall of Napoleon, many events in the War of 1812, the first voyage on the Hudson of Robert Fulton's steamer, Andrew Jackson's defense of New Orleans, and so on. There were few people of the time he did not know, from Queen Victoria to Byron and James Fenimore Cooper. He had insatiable curiosity and endless energy and considerable brass. And, after a fashion, he could write.

You will have to tell me what use Hervey Allen made of the "Memoirs of Vincent Nolte: or Fifty Years in Both Hemispheres," now republished by G. H. Watt ($2.50) on the continuing height of the Anthony wave. It's a long and leisurely picture of the times, as viewed through the eyes of a man who counted his money carefully and tells you about it ad nauseam. If I can't see in it the "ineffable challenge to defeatism, indolence, apathy and despair," which Burton Rascoe's glowing preface postulates, I can at least allow that it should interest the present antiquarian mood.

* * * *

The variety of books coming in over the desk these days is sometimes downright appalling. Here, for instance, is Prof. Otto Emil Plath's "Bumblebees and Their Ways" (MacMillan, $4), the result of 13 consecutive summers devoted to studying the little things. He finds that "Bombus Fervidus" expels an intruding bee of alien species from the hive by spitting honey upon it and making it, I take it, ashamed of itself. He declares that the bumblebee's habit of drumming its wings at the entrance of a hive is not a calling to colors but a means of ventilating the place. The book is written with the gentleness and keen observation of the true nature lover.

And here, as another example of the spice of life, is a thorough study—"Police Uniforms of the World" (printed by the author at Hollywood, $5), by Maj. F. Gilbert Blakeslee. It is the only book of its kind in existence. From Sweden to Venezuela, from Zanzibar to Fiji, the uniforms and insignia of cops the world over are here described and pictured. A mine of authentic reasearch in an out-of-the-way subject, it should prove invaluable to commercial illustrators and motion picture studios. I found it curiously interesting.

But as a book-reviewer I must admit I know next to nothing of either of these two subjects. I have always tried to keep at a proper distance from bumblebees and police uniforms.

Mother's Day First Marked By Englishmen

Special Stamp Is First Official American Recognition.

(United Press.)

Two hundred million copies of Whistler's portrait of his mother will roll from Government presses in another month to honor today's American mothers.

The reproductions of James Abbot McNeil Whistler's greatest work will be in the form of 3-cent postage stamps. They will be about twice the size of stamps now in circulation, large enough to portray the reverence and the calm beauty with which the artist endowed his parent.

By May 13, Mother's Day, the picture which Whistler called "Arrangement in Black and Gray; the Artist's Mother," will be used on the majority of mail delivered in the United States.

Is Old Custom.

This tribute to motherhood goes back to the England of the Middle Ages when once a year armored knight and lowly peasant celebrated "Mothering Sunday."

This practice, explains the medieval historian, was one "of going to see parents, and especially the female one, on the mid-Sunday of Lent, taking for them some little present, such as a cake or a trinket."

"A youth engaged in this amiable act of duty," continue the old histories, "was said to go a-mothering and thence the day itself came to be called Mothering Sunday."

The son always brought his mother a fruit cake, baked especially for the occasion. It was crusted with a paste of flour and water, colored yellow with saffron.

Had Icing Decorated.

Usually the son had the icing decorated with his mother's name, and his own, together with a sentimental line or two of verse.

Miss Anna Jarvis conceived the idea of celebrating Mother's Day in this country in 1908, while she was a Sunday school teacher at Philadelphia. Year by year churches the country over began to observe the day with special sermons and Sunday school programs.

In 1914 Congress passed a concurrent resolution calling for a National holiday on Mothers' Day. On May 8, a few weeks before the World War began, President Woodrow Wilson issued the formal proclamation establishing the holiday.

Celebration of Mothers' Day since then has been an increasingly popular custom. Postmaster General James A. Farley's decision to engrave Mothers' Day postage stamps, however, marks the first official Federal participation in the event.

Selection Is Hailed.

His selection of Whistler's Mother for the stamp is considered a happy one. The picture shows the elderly woman in lace cap and dark dress, sitting in coptemplative mood.

Mrs. Whistler was a stern and strongly religious woman. Her son was a sprightly Bohemian, friend of Oscar Wilde, and one of the gayest of the gay nineties' celebrities. He reveals in the portrait, however, his deep love for his mother, his respect and his devotion.

The stamp will be on sale throughout the country on May 2.

Civil War Weapons Found at Fort Foote

New reminders of the Civil War were unearthed yesterday when surveyors found two Parrott rifles while working at Fort Foote. The rifles, only partially buried, were of a type used by Union soldiers. Located on the Maryland banks of the Potomac River, Fort Foote was abandoned years ago. It is to be connected with the Capital by a link in the George Washington Memorial Parkway.

Several weeks ago workmen uncovered several shells while digging a ditch in Battleground National Cemetery. They are believed to have been fired in the Battle of Fort Stevens.

Prince Georges Deputy Says Terms Ended.

Prince Georges County commissioners next Tuesday will investigate charges that many county constables are serving illegally, Ormond W. Phair, president, said yesterday.

The charges were made yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Thomas Garrison, who declared that constables were supposed to serve only two years, instead of four. Many are over this period, he said.

He pointed out that it had been generally taken for granted that when the commissioners' terms were extended from two to four years the constables' terms were automatically extended. This is not true, he said.

An attempt was being made last night to reach Attorney General Lane for an opinion.

European War Peril Termed Exaggeration

Nations' Condition Would Not Permit Conflict, Historian Says.

New York, March 30 (AP).—The dangers of a European war, at least in the immediate future, have been greatly exaggerated, in the opinion of James Truslow Adams, historian and Pulitzer prize winner, who paused here today on his way from London to Washington.

"And it's not because several nations of Europe might not want to make war," Adams said, "but because they cannot.

"England can't make war because at present the people wouldn't stand for it. Unless it were perfectly obvious to every man in the street that the life of the British Empire was at stake, the first result of any declaration of war would be a general strike.

"I think Hitler really doesn't want war at present because he isn't ready for it, whatever he might like a few years hence. My opinion is that Hitler came into office sooner than he had intended and didn't have time to tone down any ultra-radical policy before he found himself in the saddle. Now it's all off, for a while anyway.

"France certainly doesn't want war. She wants self-protection, and she is extremely skeptical about disarmament. She knows neither the United States nor England would take her side in any ordinary European quarrel, and so she wants to keep the weapons in her own hands. She is terribly afraid of Germany, but she doesn't want war.

"As for Italy, I think Mussolini realizes that unless he had an awfully clear case of self-defense, the people wouldn't follow him into war. A war of expansion might mean the overturn of the government and the assassination of Mussolini."

A return of prosperity, which he believes is at hand, would minimize further the war danger, Adams said.

Suvich Will Discuss Arms on London Trip

He will return the visit here of Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, who discussed arms problems with Italian statesmen.

Finding the Game-Going Trick.

"I held 6½ honor-tricks, Mr. Culbertson, but couldn't make three notrump. What is wrong with the 4-5-6 Rule?" inquires a correspondent in submitting the hand below.

Before showing the hand, I might say in passing that there are rare hands at the Bridge table which, despite the possession of many honor-tricks, do not develop low-card tricks, but generally speaking, these hands are rare indeed, and the fault most often rests with the technique of the player rather than the location of the cards. There are other methods of attack than frontal attack, and it is one of the charms of Bridge that both attack and defense assume various forms with the varying location of the cards.

The hand which my correspondent submitted was as follows:

South, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1NT(1) | Pass | 2NT(2) | Pass |
| 3NT(3) | Pass | Pass | Pass |

1—South holds five honor-tricks. The hand contains no biddable suit. The only alternative would be the greatly shaded bid of one club.

2—While North could not raise a nonvulnerable bid of one notrump, his hand is strong enough to raise a vulnerable one-notrump bid to two.

3—The Rebid for game comes as a matter of course.

West's Opening lead was the club Knave. East played the Queen and returned the deuce. This seemed to definitely place West with five clubs, so South could see no gain in refusing the trick. He could count as sure winners one club, three spades, one heart and three diamonds. Game was safe if the fourth diamond in Dummy could be established. If that suit failed to break there remained the alternative of a successful finesse in hearts to score the game. This much is on the surface, and this was the plan followed by my correspondent, which, as can be seen, resulted in defeat.

Is there then another line of play more likely to succeed? Certainly.

After winning the second trick with the club Ace, South correctly attacks the diamonds, only to learn on the third lead that this road to game is closed. On the third round of diamonds West must discard and his most probable choice is a heart or a spade. South now takes three rounds of spades, the last in his own hand. His correct play now is to place West in the lead with a club, as it would appear that all suits except clubs and hearts had been eliminated from his hand. As the cards lie, the ninth trick is now assured. In any event, the chance of making the game by the forced lead is much better than the even chance of a successful heart finesse.

Radio Waves and Ripples

WITHIN the next few weeks the Federal Radio Commission may decide to wipe out four Brooklyn radio stations.

Too much commercialism—foreign language commercialism, at that—is charged in the examiner's report.

Some time ago the stations, WLTH, WBBC, WARD and WVFW, tired of sharing the same wavelength, applied for full-time license. At the examiner's hearing, each station's representative told all the uncomplimentary things he knew about the others. The examiner came to the conclusion that none of the stations should be on the air, and so recommended to the commission.

Worried, WLTH has sent out a statement to the newspapers claiming the excessive commercialism charge of the commission was unjustified, that N. B. C.'s key stations in New York have sold 50 per cent of their time, whereas only 42 per cent of WLTH's time is sponsored, and further that it has sold 10 per cent of its time for resale as compared with a commission-approved WMCA contract permitting resale time sales as high as 100 per cent.

The examiner charged that two of the stations had grown a little careless in the business of writing checks, that one, in fact, was virtually bankrupt.

FOR big names we've seen little to equal National's broadcasting for the Conference on the Crisis in Education since radio got Gen. Johnson and the NRA off to a good start last summer.

The conference will be held Thursday and Friday out in Columbus, Ohio, and will include Mrs. Roosevelt, Newton D. Baker, Gov. Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana; President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin; Gov. George White, of Ohio, and Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York.

For our part we weren't aware of a crisis in education, which just goes to show how close a fellow can get to his work.

Mrs. Roosevelt takes to the radio today in accepting on behalf of the President 12 cedars of Lebanon sent by Americans in the Near East for planting in Arlington Cemetery.

The cedars, before leaving Syria, received the blessing of Sahag II, the Katholicos of the Armenian Church in Syria, and the felicitations of the students of the Near East Foundation of Antilyas, the Near East League and the Near East Brotherhood, and at the planting here Marjorie Nash will sing Joyce Kilmer's "Trees."

NATIONAL has a studio on wheels ready for its first regular program tomorrow morning.

A 22-foot automobile with a top speed of 60 miles an hour houses the equipment—two transmitters, one of 150 watts, and another, an auxiliary, of 15 watts, a generator driven by a two-cycle gasoline engine and sundry control panels, storage batteries, &c.

The car has been cruising about New York and New Jersey this week making tests. Top sending range while stationary is 100 miles, or 50 miles while moving under normal conditions.

The car, unlike Gaul, is divided into two parts. The rear section contains the transmitters, power plant, amplifiers and other equipment. The front section holds the driver's seat, seats for the announcer and observer and a desk on the dashboard for microphone and portable typewriter. A trap door over the announcer's seat will permit him to stand with head and shoulders above the top of the car with a clear view in all directions.

With the new unit, N. B. C. expects to be able to originate special broadcasts at practically any point desired, since there probably is no point in the United States which is not within 100 miles of a telephone line, where a pick-up for the network could be made.

Another way of looking at the past winter is suggested by the title of a WJSV address by W. R. Gregg, chief of the United States Weather Bureau, Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p. m.—"Weather and the New Deal."

Columbia's broadcast of grain marketing from the viewpoint of the Chicago Board of Trade—"Romance of the Wheat Pit," April 7—will require the services of 600 people including seven announcers and five production men.

What to WJSV's Arthur Godfrey was a pittance was to Ford Frick, well-known sports writer and commentator, a reasonable wage, apparently. At any rate, Frick has signed as announcer for the new cigarette series with Rosa Ponselle, Nino Martini and Grete Stueckgold, a job Sir Arthur scorned.

How men and women can reduce their weight and maintain the lower weight will be dramatized and explained by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen in "Adventures in Health" starting on N.B.C. tomorrow night. In view of the fact that Dr. Bundesen is being sponsored by a malted milk company, his explanations should be followed closely.

St. Marys Girl First Finalist To Enter Essay

School Contests Narrow Down in Post Trials; Deadline April 9.

Alice K. J. Bailey, 16-year-old senior of St. Mary's Seminary, St. Marys City, Md., yesterday submitted to headquarters of the Washington Post Scholarship Competition the first of the social science essays, which are due between now and April 9 from the competition's school champions.

Miss Bailey won the right to represent her school in division finals in a contest participated in by all members of her social science class. Misses M. Adele France, principal; Ruth Evelyn Byrd, social science teacher, and Mrs. M. J. Swindler, English teacher, served as judges.

Miss Bailey plans to take an academic course at American University if her essay wins against those of other school champions in division eliminations April 15. She rates social sciences and music among her favorite subjects.

Information from principals of a number of schools indicates the majority of the competition's 6,476 participants will work up to the last minute of the deadline before submitting their essays. Many of the schools are calling for final papers next Friday. Champions will be selected the following day by faculty judges and the winning essays mailed to competition headquarters immediately.

Four Herndon Finalists.

J. H. Rice, principal of the Herndon, Va. High School, reports the finalists are narrowed down to four seniors, whose papers will be judged on April 5 by a board composed of Mr. Rice, Mrs. K. G. White and Miss Dorthea Rothwell, English teachers, and Miss Mildred Williams, civic government teacher.

The four Herndon finalists are Howard Thornsberry, Isabel Bates, Raymond Wrenn and May Kammamier. These students have served as chairmen of committees into which Miss Williams divided her class to collect material upon four of the competition's essay subjects. The class has gathered many clippings from current publications which will be incorporated into scrap books for the school library.

Use Library of Congress.

Henry T. Moncure, principal of the Alexandria (Va.) High School, in the early stages of the competition took a number of his school's competitors to the Library of Congress and demonstrated the facilities of the reading room. Many of them have used the library in their quest for essay honors and scholarship awards.

The Alexandria finals will be held on April 6, with the following pupils competing for honors: Edward Alfriend, Charlotte Brown, Carl Clarke, Morris Lineweaver, Lawrence Wood, and Llewellyn Gillum. The papers will be judged by Mr Moncure and Mrs. Ruth Elgin, history teacher, and Miss Kroes Ficklin, English teacher.

St. Paul's Academy here will hold school finals April 6, with Sister M. Rose Elizabeth, superior, and her faculty, assisted, by Edward Dillon, serving as judges. The school's finalists are Mary Stanish, Mary Collins, Marguerite Frost, and Frances Leaman.

Two Die as Fire Hits Texas Hotel

Third Man Succumbs to Heart Attack; 20 Hurt.

Longview, Tex., March 30 (AP).—Caught in a flaming trap, at least two persons lost their lives and 20 were injured when the Longview Hotel burned today.

Don F. Safford, 45, Dallas insurance agent, tried to escape the flames and plunged to his death from his third-floor room. The charred body of a second person was taken out of the debris. The death of a third man, Herman R. Yates, was attributed to a heart attack.

Dozens jumped to safety and others clung to precarious holds on window ledges until firemen could rescue them. There were no elevators in the hotel.

Auto Chamber to Fight Bill Curbing Exchanges

Detroit, March 30 (AP).—The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced tonight that it will file a brief in Congress in the next few days, opposing the National securities exchange act now under consideration.

In announcing that the chamber's views would be laid before Congress, the N. A. C. C. said the proposed securities law would "subject to a prying Government bureaucracy every corporation in the United States whose securities are listed on the exchange."

Mrs. Roosevelt on Air Tonight.

The uses of National parks as vacation areas will be described tonight by Mrs. Roosevelt in a radio address. She will broadcast from the White House. Musical accompaniment will be provided by the Marine Band. The program will start at 10 o'clock.

Counterfeiting Trial Is Started in Chicago

Chicago, March 30 (AP).—A judge, a sheriff, a prosecutor and a banker today were character witnesses for Milton Werling, 46, of Preble, Ind., who went on trial on counterfeiting charges. Secret Service Agent Peter A. Rubano said he found $500 in counterfeit bills in Werling's automobile.

Previously Werling's attorney, Leo Klein, had explained his client's arrest as the outcome of his aspiration to become a detective. Klein said Werling sought to be reelected clerk of the circuit court of Adams County, Ind., by winning fame through capturing counterfeiters.

Tennessee Race Fight Over Election Ended

Nashville, Tenn., March 30 (AP).—Theft of a ballot box containing enough votes to elect a colored man to the city council appeared today to have been so much wasted effort, for the county election commission chairman reported none of the candidates was qualified and hence no certificate of election would be issued.

W. M. Carr said that neither Dr. Harry H. Walker, commander of the colored American Legion post here, nor his two white opponents had filed expense reports required of candidates.

Stage Union Demands 29 Millions Damages

Hollywood, March 30 (AP).—Renewing its charges of conspiracy and NRA code contracts violation, the International Alliance of Theatrical State Employes, Local 37, today filed an amended complaint in its suit for damages against film producers and two movie unions, asking $28,900,000.

The suit arose from the strike last summer of film workers. The producers are charged with discrimination in reemploying workers who went on strike, and with causing loss of membership in the alliance.

Dismissal of Charges Asked by Oil Officials

Los Angeles, March 30 (AP).—Standard Oil Co. of California officers and directors, who were indicted by the Federal grand jury last week on charges of violating the petroleum industry's National code of fair competition, filed a demurrer to all charges today.

"The Standard Oil Co. is convinced that each of the matters charged against it is in conformity with and authorized by the petroleum code," said Oscar Lawler, an attorney. "It is so contended in the demurrer."

Special Theater Schedules for Week-end—"Countess of Monte Cristo" Reviewed

New Viewpoint Overtakes the Entrepreneurs

Lenten Throngs Expected; Al Jolson Here Today; Theater Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

A new point of view seems to have overtaken the local theater in a week that is popularly supposed to be one of the worst in the year in the matter of attendance.

This is primarily evidenced by the fact that in anticipation of the same record-breaking business that was done by "42nd Street," "Gold Diggers" and "Footlight Parade," the local executives of the Warner Brothers organization have announced special week-end schedules for the inauguration of the Washington premiere of "Wonder Bar."

Despite today's being held sacred in the hearts of multitudes of people, doors at the Earle Theater will be open to the public at 10 a. m., with the first projection of the feature scheduled for 10:15. In addition to six complete showings of the picture, five de luxe performances, including the entire stage bill, will be given, the first stage presentation being listed at 11:35 a. m.

For Saturday and Easter.

On Saturday the schedule of performances will be even further extended, with six complete stage and screen shows. Doors again will open at 10 a. m. On Easter Sunday four complete performances will be given and on Easter Monday, again the five de luxe performances, observing practically the same schedule as today.

With similar enthusiasm, Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's announces that during the engagement of Frank Buck's sequel to "Bring 'Em Back Alive," the new "Wild Cargo," opening today, doors will open daily at 9:45 a. m.

Either times or the managerial viewpoint, or both, have undergone an epochal change.

Reverting to "Wonder Bar" and the single personal appearance of Al Jolson in conjunction with its local premier—as was threatened here yesterday—the daddy of all the "mammy" men will arrive in the Capital this afternoon at 3, by train, and will be met at the deppo by a large and enthusiastic crowd of admirers, including a brass band, if Eddie Melcher can dig one up. From 3:30 to 5 o'clock Al will receive more or less informally at the Mayflower. At 9 p. m., he will appear on the stage of the Earle Theater at the one performance only. These gay goings-on over, he will return to New York. So now you know.

Fox films will smash a precedent, so it is announced, by making an elaborate screen production based on the life of the famous French scientist, Louis Pasteur, who, among other things, discovered what to do about it when a dog bites you.

Warner Baxter will have the leading male role in the picture, supported by such eminent players as Helen Twelvetrees, Mona Barrie, Hugh Williams, Drue Leyton and Siegfried Rumann.

Herr Rumann will be recalled as that excellent actor who appeared here with Ethel Barrymore in "Encore" and later was seen in Baltimore by many Washingtonians with Katharine Cornell in "Alien Corn."

The script has been completed by Reginald Berkeley, who wrote the screen adaptation of "Cavalcade," and will be placed in production as soon as the players have completed their obligations in other films and a director has been decided upon.

Speaking of dogs biting you, Pete, the ring-eyed terrier of the "Our Gang" comedies, stopped by yesterday to say good-by and seemed to have a lot of fun frisking around a bit and forgetting all about his stage tricks. He still had Harry Lucenay on that stout leather leash, but neither one bit me or each other, so there is no news!

Reversion to Form.

Resuming a practice that it followed for many years, but comparatively recently abandoned, the Ambassador Theater, beginning this Sunday, will play its opening attraction day-and-date, as the saying goes, with one of the Warner downtown first-run houses.

The former custom will be resumed Sunday with simultaneous showings of "Wonder Bar" with the Earle.

The return to this policy for the first three days of each week will, in due course of time, supply Barbara Stanwyck in "Gambling Lady;" Jean Muir and Donald Wood in Gladys Hasty Carroll's "As the Earth Turns;" Fredric March and Evelyn Venable, in "Death Takes a Holiday," and Bebe Daniels in "Registered Nurse," to the Ambassador screen.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, that the street designated as Four and One-Half street, running south from the center of The Mall to F street south be, and the same is hereby changed to Fourth street, thereby giving this street for its entire length from Pennsylvania avenue northwest to F street south the designation of Fourth street."

Such, in part, are the terms of H. R. 8750, a bill, introduced recently in the House of Representatives.

This is a matter which I feel should be referred to the NRA. If the bill passes, an unconscionable number of vaudeville smartcrackers are going to be thrown out of work with no Four-and-a-Half street to refer to!

Chamber Music.

On Sunday afternoon at 4, in the United States Chamber of Commerce auditorium, a program of chamber orchestra music will be presented under the auspices of Mrs. E. S. Coolidge by members of the National Symphony of Washington, D. C., Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor.

The program will embrace Suite in D Major, by Bach; Mozart's Symphony in B Major, in four movements; lyrical interlude, "Pathways of the Moon," by Herbert Bedford, dedicated to Mrs. Coolidge, and three Spanish dances by Manuel de Falla.

I mention this upon request and with deep obeisance to Mr. Ray Brown, The Post's music critic, who knows infinitely more about such things than this column does, although we have an excellent ear for music—we can hear it as far as anybody!

Personal aside to a correspondent who signs herself merely "A Virginia Catholic." It is regretted that you saw fit to seek the shelter of anonymity and so preclude the possibility of dispelling what seems to be a complete misapprehension on your part of our viewpoint and purpose.

"Hell Cat."

Ann Sothern, the young actress who changes her name much as a chameleon does its color—she has had three or four in as many months—will share honors with Robert Armstrong in "Hell Cat," about to go into production at Columbia, with Al Rogell directing.

Start of the picture has been delayed while Miss Sothern completed her role in "Party's Over," in which she is cofeatured with Stuart Erwin.

The role in "Hell Cat" is said to be one that will present Miss Sothern, recently seen with Edmund Lowe in "Let's Fall in Love," in a characterization entirely different from anything she has heretofore done on either stage or screen. She will be seen as a society spitfire—with apologies, no doubt, to Katharine Hepburn, whose next picture is "Spitfire"—addicted to face-slapping and hair-pulling whenever her fiery temper gets the better of her.

Armstrong's role will be that of a rough and tough newspaper reporter who tames wild women with tactics as rough as their own.

And where, might one ask, were Jimmy Cagney and Joan Blondell while all this has been going on?

O Tempora!—Never Mind Mores.

Three shows to cover, Al Jolson's soiree in the afternoon, his personal appearance at 9, an advanced Sunday make-up at 6, maybe dinner——

With all the hours there are, it certainly was silly to put only 24 of them in a day!"

"THE COUNTESS OF MONTE CRISTO." Universal picturization of a story by Walter Fleisch, featuring Fay Wray, and Paul Lukas, with Patsy Kelly and Reginald Owen. Directed by Karl Freund. Reviewed Thursday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

It is not beyond reason that Dumas, sometime in his long and prolific career, must have postulated the existence of "The Countess of Monte Cristo," but it is safe to say that he neither envisioned Fay Wray as the heroine, nor the sprightly comedy with music that Universal has fashioned with such an engaging title.

To those, rather obviously, who might expect a sort of female "count," the countess is one of that large and not too select group of aspiring young women known in the motion picture world as "extras." While engaged in depicting the countess, Janet finds her boy friend out of a job and her engagement broken. Taking the blows to heart, she makes off with the studio's car and her pal, Mimi, finally landing at a ritzy winter resort.

Libeled by Labels!

Mistaking the cinematic labels on her bags for something authentic, the management graciously accommodates the countess. Complications further arise as a result of the mistaken identity and the presence of a pair of international crooks does not clarify matters. Janet and the journalist boy friend, however, are finally reunited, with the latter scooping all Europe.

Fay Wray, not as attractively coiffured as usual, is the extra who gains fame and fortune through the unplanned escapade, with Patsy Kelly—with Mack Sennett's consent—her pal. Both turn in entertaining performances. Paul Lukas, whose appearance and demeanor tend to dwarf the otherwise excellent delineations of his feminine associates, plays the part of the long-wanted criminal. Reginald Owen is the other bemonocled extra-legal operator.

Support and Supplementaries.

Among the lengthy list of players are also to be found Paul Page, the boy friend; Robert McWade, the hotel manager; Richard Tucker, the movie director; Carmel Meyers, Matthew Betz and Harvey Clark.

The auxiliary attractions are headed by "Born April First," starring Sterling Holloway, with Gloria Shea and Virginia Howell, another of those lethargic farces for which the star has a decided knack. Oswald Rabbit appears in "King's Up," a cartoon. A release of the Universal News rounds out a bill of high entertainment value.

Mr. Carroll Invades Hollywood

Exercising his familiar penchant for lovely femininity, Earl Carroll selected this group of "steppers," among numerous others, to exemplify his unimpeachable taste upon the screen. These are among the beauties recently chosen to appear in the picturization of the Carroll stage success, "Murder at the Vanities," a strange combination of melodrama and revue. Victor McLaglen and Carl Brisson also are obscurely among those present in the cast.

Straight From the Studios

De Mille's Next Will Be "Samson and Delilah;" Otto Kruger to Honeymooners' Rescue; Intimate Items of Moviedom.

Reprinted from yesterday's last edition.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, March 29.—The next biblical spectacle which Cecil B. DeMille will produce is the story of Samson and Delilah. The producer - director is apparently going to assure himself of plenty of romance in this feature. While it deals with biblical characters, it is essentially a love story.

WALLACE BEERY.

Work has already been started on the adaptation by Jeannie MacPherson and the cast members in sight for the picture are Mariam Hopkins and Henry Wilcoxon. The English actor is already doing Marc Antony in "Cleopatra," and because of his powerful physique is regarded as just right for the part of Samson.

Wallace Beery A Hit.

Wallace Beery becomes a colorful, if not a historically accurate, figure in "Vivi Villa!" presented in preview.

The film has been made on the grand scale, with drama and comedy briskly intermingled, Beery all the while doing a sort of good-bad man role that he will make popular with audiences by sheer force of personality.

I had imagined that cruelty would be avoided in this picture, but it comes pretty plentifully into the foreground, both through suggestion and actuality. The lashing of the girl of high family by Villa, and the death that he metes out to Gen. Pascal by having him devoured by ants are harsh events in this picture. Following them the attempt has been made to lighten and brighten the close by showing amusingly the hero as a total misfit in a position of responsibility and power. Villa is presented as the liberator of the peon, a devoted supporter of Madero, and as provisional president for a time.

As might be judged, considerable of this is fantastic idealization, but insofar as it aims at entertainment, without great respect for accuracy, "Viva Villa!" will appeal because of action, drama, large production values and its central character's humor.

W. C. Fields in Starring Opus.

There may be nothing much to remember after you leave the theater, when you view "You're Telling Me," but the pranks of that irrepressible cut-up, W. C. Fields, are great, and this time he is just about the whole show. The picture gathered in no end of laughs at its preview, and even Fields' vaudeville material seemed to be just as full of humor as if it had been contrived yesterday. The star is an inventor, who has devised a tire that can't be punctured. It will even stand up against a revolver bullet, but when it comes to a demonstration Fields picks the wrong automobile—a police car—and thereafter many things happen, including his attempts to commit suicide, the patronage he receives from a certain Princess Lescaboura (Adrienne Ames), and his achieving of sudden social celebrity because of this lady's interest.

Picture Pageant Now Passing.

In the voting for "David Copperfield," which is going on in more or less impromptu fashion in fan letters to the M. G. M. studio, Tad Alexander and Jackie Cooper seem to be favored for the title role.

Alice Fay will sing a number in "Now I'll Tell." It is called "Foolin Around With Another Woman's Man."

A card trick short picture—Pete Smith variety—will feature Luis Zingone, with Muriel Evans and Irene Hervey assisting. Card tricks will be explained.

Stuart Erwin is in high favor since the preview of "Viva Villa!" Consequently he is being talked of for the excellent role of the bungling husband in "No More Ladies."

By Grace Kingsley.

Hollywood, March 29.—If it hadn't been for Otto Kruger, Bill LaRoche, son of an old friend of Kruger, and Mary LaRoche, might be just another stranded married couple today. LaRoche brought his young wife to visit his father's old friend at the radio set where Kruger is working.

MARLENE DIETRICH.

Noting their wistful faces, Kruger finally got the story out of the young couple. They had just married in New York and had come all the way to Hollywood to play in a musical comedy. The trip was their honeymoon. And then they found to their dismay when they arrived that plans for the show had been abandoned. They looked up an agent and secured vaudeville bookings, but they had to sing two songs, furnishing them also. This cost money and they had none. Then it was Kruger came to the rescue, took the young people to his home, and overnight composed the numbers for them, based on ideas of the boy's.

The tunes are called "Stranded In the Southland" and "Girl On the Extra Bench."

Poor Dick Loses List.

Dick Powell was in a state of frenzy yesterday. Consequently somebody is in line for a reward. He either lost, or his pocket was picked of a wallet. It contained $25 in cash, his private list of telephone numbers and his good luck charm—a gold four-leaf clover.

Powell isn't a bit concerned about the cash. In fact, he is offering a reward above that sum if the finder of the wallet will only return his telephone numbers and charm. The importance of the telephone list doesn't have to be explained. As for the charm, Powell avers he found it 14 years ago and good luck has been his ever since.

Wives, Please Take Notice.

Two lads were noticed picking up seat stubs after the fights the other night at the stadium. The reason was explained yesterday. A ticket broker hird the boys because of a big demand from picture husbands who tell their wives they were at the fights and want to prove it.

What a Gown! Yards and Yards of It.

Dolores Del Rio will wear a gown in "Du Barry" designed from a total of 110 yards of assorted fabrics. It is made of 42 yards of netting, 30 yards of taffeta, 25 yards of organdie and 13 yards of cambric. In the same picture Verree Teasdale will wear a gown weighing 50 pounds.

Peery Seeks 3 For Milk Board

Two Producers Stipulated by New Law Will Serve With "Neutrals."

Richmond, March 30 (AP).—Gov. Peery said today that he was seeking three men for the milk control commission, created by the bill which became a law last night.

"This board will have important duties concerning regulation of the dairy industry in Virginia," the Governor said.

The Governor is called upon to name two producers of milk and one person who is neither a producer nor a distributor. They will constitute the State milk control commission and will work through local five-men boards in each milk marketing area.

Powers to fix wholesale and retail prices and otherwise regulate the fluid milk business have been given the board.

The board's rulings will operate in areas only after a request by those handling a substantial majority of the milk produced and marketed, measured by volume. Public hearings also will be granted before the board's authority extends to any district.

Soviet Staff May Occupy Leiter House

Ambassador Will Lease Dupont Circle Place, Capital Rumor.

Community Dwelling Plan Example Seen in New York.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

With the Embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics established in the former Russian Embassy on Sixteenth street, which was closed for 15 years, the activities of Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky, representatives of the recently recognized republics, are of great interest to this country. The work of renovating the Embassy and the home of the Ambassador is not yet completed.

A rumor is now current that the famous Leiter mansion on Dupont Circle is to be leased by the Soviet government and used as apartments for members of the Embassy staff, which recalls the brilliant entertaining done there by Mrs. Joseph Leiter and the late Mr. Leiter, and by the late Mr. Levi Z. Leiter, first owner of the house.

Close on this rumor comes news from New York that the home of former Representative Ruth Baker Pratt will be transformed into the Soviet Russian Consulate General. The work will be started next week and the house will be ready for occupancy by the end of the month.

Offices Plus Residence.

No very extensive alterations beyond a general renovation are contemplated, though a rearrangement will be necessary to make the 33-room white stone house at 9 East Sixty-first street function both as offices and living quarters.

Mrs. Pratt, who resided in her town house the past winter, has moved to an apartment on East Fifty-second street, and the few pieces of her furnishings which remained in the house when Consul General Leonid Tolokonski inspected it, have been removed.

The house will accommodate not only the representative of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in New York, his wife and their small daughter, Larisa, but also other members of the consulate staff.

Residence Policy Sighted.

Mr. Tolokonski arrived in New York on March 23, and with Mme. Tolokonski had been house-hunting steadily until the Pratt house was shown to them.

It is admirably suited for the needs of the consul general and his wife, having handsome rooms for entertaining. On the second floor, across the entire front of the house is a large living room-library, and on the same floor a large dining room. These are reached from the ground floor, where smaller reception rooms are situated, by an impressive escalier d'honneur from a large foyer.

Ohioan Will Be Wed to Mrs. Robbins in New York City.

The wedding of Mrs. Helen Graham Robbins, of Lindsay, Ontario, to Senator Robert Bulkley, Ohio, will take place today in Grace Church, New York City, according to an Associated Press dispatch. The ceremony will be performed at 4 p. m.

Senator Bulkley and Mrs. Robbins met about a year ago in Baltimore, shortly after the death of the Senator's wife.

The Rev. W. Russell Bowie, rector of the church, will officiate in the presence of a few relatives. Dr. Bowie and Senator Bulkley were in Harvard at the same time.

Mrs. Robbins is the widow of Henry S. Robbins, of Chicago, who died two years ago. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Graham, of Lindsay.

Among those attending the ceremony will be Senator Bulkley's son, Robert J. Bulkley, jr., a Harvard law student, and his daughter, Katherine Bulkley, who attends Holton Arms School at Washington. Mrs. Robbins' brother, George H. Graham, jr., also will be present.

The couple will reside at 1901 Wyoming avenue northwest.

Senator Bulkley, a Democrat, is 53 years old. He served two terms in the House, from 1911 to 1915, and was elected to the Senate in 1930 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Theodore E. Burton. He was reelected in 1933.

The bride-to-be's father, George H. Graham, is a farmer in Lindsay, where the Graham family has made its home for many years.

Mrs. Robbins went to school in Lindsay and was graduated from the Lindsay Collegiate Institute. A year ago she went to Europe for a ten-month visit.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Abram Simon in the presence of members of the immediate family. Upon their return from their wedding trip to Pinehurst, N. C., Dr. Harris and his bride will make their home in Washington.

Dr. Harris, a graduate of Oregon State University, received his master of arts degree from the University of Washington, and the degree of doctor of philosophy from Yale. He served on the Yale faculty several years. He is now engaged in research work at the Bureau of Standards.

Tea Room Site Search Ended By Flat Tire

Olney Inn Was Farmhouse Where Miss Downey Had Flat Fixed.

By Susan Mills.

"AND, believe it or not, I had a flat tire just outside this house."

Clara May Downey, who owns Olney Inn, identified by the "sign of the horse-drawn plow," sat in the homelike parlor of the tea house, sipped a glass of sauterne and described the manner in which she found the place.

"I bought a model T Ford and was motoring around when I had a flat out on the road. I hobbled up to a farmer to see what could be done about it.

"I had always wanted to find a small house in the country. I had often seen people trying to escape from New York, trying to get away in the country. So I thought vaguely of making a place where they could pretend they were at home.

"So I had my flat fixed, and in the meanwhile I fell in love with the place. I said to the farmer who owned it, 'You really must start a tea room here!' He took me up on it and did—for about a month—then his wife went on strike.

"I decided that nothing would do but I must buy the place; house, farm and all. I had to pay more than I wanted to because I had talked the place up to the farmer, and he felt obliged to raise the price.

Did Own Work.

She laughed and her gay blue eyes twinkled.

"I had a grand time! I tore away the partitions myself. What plaster! It was inches thick! And you should have seen the beams. The builders of the house didn't bother to make lumber, they just planted trees to hold the thing up. I carried the shingles up myself, set to work and hammered and sawed.

"I was a real farmer. Had to draw all the water by hand at first.

"There were only women in the house at the time, myself and a few waitresses. We hung those lanterns, about 20 of them, out on the lawn, and every night the maid would have to go and put them out. I didn't realize what a harmless, peaceful neighborhood it was here, so I went out with her and carried a gun!

"I had a woman boarder once who had an English maid. (I was very much impressed with the maid). One night she tipped over a chair, and I immediately got up, grabbed my little revolver and was all set to catch the burglar. The gun locked, and I sat in the middle of the floor and struggled with it yelling, 'I'm coming—you can't get away from me!'

Mrs. Downey led the way to the kitchen through the swinging doors. "I want you to meet Chef," she said. Chef was peeling carrots into a big pan. He looked up, and white teeth flashed in a black face.

Among other things, Chef knows what the Prince of Wales likes to eat. He was behind the scenes when the Prince was staying with a private family in Washington.

Makes Food Pretty.

"Yes, he's a pretty good American," said Chef, "He likes his fried chicken and his ham and eggs, just like the rest of us."

Little carrot balls fell into the pan. Chef said, "I like to make food look pretty, but all the decorations are things people can eat. For instance, when I serve cucumber sauce, I make a little boat of a whole cucumber, cut out the inside, fill it with the sauce and add a little cucumber paddle. People can eat the boat and all."

Mrs. Downey pointed to a man plowing the field outside.

"We'll be planting soon. We make our own lard and raise our own pigs, cows and what not. Oh, yes, I'm a regular farmer. Used to plant my own potatoes.

"We have 20 acres and a mule. We've a horse, too, but he's so old he's almost a luxury. He can plow up the flower bed and that's about all.

"I want to give you a recipe for a sweet potato dish. I had to give the recipe to a man once, right after he had told me that alcoholic liquors had never passed his lips. The recipe calls for sherry, so when I gave it to him I omitted the sherry. I hope he wasn't too disappointed with the result."

Sweet Potatoe Souffle.

3 medium sweet potatoes
2 egg whites
½ cup sugar
½ cup black walnut meats
1 tablespoon butter
½ teaspoon nutmeg
¼ cup sherry wine.

Boil potatoes until tender and skin dry. Mash up fine through colander and whip up fine with all ingredients except white of egg and nuts. Fold egg whites beaten stiff. Heap into greased and floured pie tin. Sprinkle well with nuts and bake in moderately hot oven (450 degrees F.) about 15 to 20 minutes. Loosen around edges and slip onto platter, or can be baked from casserole and served from dish.

Spring Fever—Cured.

By Katherine Smith.

I want to get away from cities;
Want to gambol on the green;
I want to warble lyric ditties:
Spring and love at seventeen.

And yet, when I decide to ramble
From the crowded haunts of men,
I'm sure that soon enough I'll scramble

A Comforter of Dying Soldiers Now Visits Gold Star Mothers

COUNTESS CONSTANCE Hillyer de Caen, known to American doughboys as "The Little Mother" and "The Angel of Comfort," is again visiting the United States to continue her crusade of comfort for Gold Star Mothers.

"This trip has been made so I could visit mothers in Colorado, the ones whom I had planned to see on my last journey, which was terminated early because of illness," said Countess de Caen yesterday in her room at the Burlington Hotel. "I am especially interested this time in bringing words of comfort to the mothers whose sons were in French hospitals, but who died after they returned to this country."

Countess de Caen has been in the United States about four months, but she is still convalescing from an accident and has not yet been able to go to the Middle West.

During the war Countess de Caen nursed American soldiers who remember her as a mother, interpreter, friend and protector. Often sitting at the bedside of dying soldiers she took their messages and promised to bring them personally to mothers, wives and sweethearts.

She has spent 16 years since that time in carrying out this mission, and except in a few tragic cases where mothers died before she arrived, she has kept every promise.

Each of her 14 trips to this country has been made at her own expense. She represents no organization nor does she seek funds.

"I am here simply here because I believe I can bring comfort to those unfortunate women who lost their sons either during the war or as a result of it," she said. "I am not representing the French government, nor have I any official connections."

She has spent much time in caring for the poor both in her own country and in America. Even now, while she is in Washington, she is devoting her spare moments to the poor, seeing that many unfortunates have food.

Born in Pindicherry, the capital of the French possessions in India, the Countess has spent most of her life in Orleans, Tours and Paris. Descended from a long list of French nobility, she is the last of her line. In spite of her distinguished forebears, she prefers to be known simply as "Mlle. de Caen."

They Admit They Need the Money, and They Get It; Are Among Highest Paid Girls in Their Profession.

It was just a grand lark a few years ago when society's debutantes began trying their luck modeling. But it's a business proposition now. Their photographs are in demand—and at least some of them need the money. Today's is the concluding article in a series of four on New York's most popular models.

By Elenore Kellogg.

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP).—Many debutantes who formerly considered it smart to have a career now are becoming models with the frank admission that they need the money.

They are well paid for their services, and when they are working as clothes models in shops, they can wear their finery to social affairs. Professional models may do this only when they have a "heavy date" or if they are favorites of the management.

"I suppose," said Eugenia Woodruff, a debutante of four seasons ago, "it's very mean of us, in a way, to work as models."

Fashion Magazine Work.

"People really shouldn't take work away from girls who need it," agreed Mrs. George Trowbridge Elliman. "It means bread and butter to them. Lots of us don't need the money."

Mrs. Elliman, the former Natica de Acosta, was considered the most beautiful brunette in the United States when she made her debut and was much sought after as a model.

"We pose chiefly for the fashion magazines," she said. "Yes, that's advertising, too, in a way, but it happens to be fashionable."

Miss Woodruff said she likes modeling. She did it only for charity before, and this is her first year as a professional.

"I wouldn't," declared Mrs. Elliman. "I do it just because I need the money. I like it while I'm doing it, but I don't want to make it my life job."

Model Agency.

Miss Dorothy Wentworth King, herself a recent debutante, has set up an agency to recruit society models for good-sized prices.

Debutante models are paid at least $10 an hour and $15 for evening dress, and "they never keep you less than two hours," Miss King said.

A debutante described by Miss King as a "perfectly beautiful girl and the most popular model in New York" set $25 an hour as her figure—and got it. When the debutante's name is important enough to be used, the pay is correspondingly greater.

Professional models resent the debutantes, "even the nicest and most reasonable of them," one mannequin said.

"But they aren't crowding us out," she added, "because they won't work hard enough. The better places usually have one society girl or a Ziegfeld princess as a model, but the real work is done by professionals.

Artists Name Police Beauty

Adonis of New York's Finest Shies in Horror at Appellation.

New York, March 30 (Spl.).—Tall, blond and good looking is Bernard Harry Jeppson, who, much to his distress, was chosen by a jury of four women artists as the handsomest policeman in New York. The decision was made yesterday afternoon at the First Municipal Art Exhibition, Rockefeller Center.

Twenty-seven years old, 6 feet 1½ inches tall and weighing 175 pounds, Jeppson was horrified at the honor. But Harold L. Christensen, the runner-up, was delighted and congratulated Jeppson with a broad grin on his face.

"Just wait until he gets back to the Police Academy," said Christensen, and regarded the unhappy victor with immense relish.

Three of the four artists gave Jeppson first place, and each gave a different reason for her choice.

"I voted for him because he is so handsome," said Miss Isabel Bishop. "I'd love to be arrested by a cop who looked like him."

"I voted for him because he is so typically American," said Miss Concetta Scaravaglione. This despite the fact that Jeppson is a Swede.

And Miss Anne Brockman explained she voted for the blond cop because he resembled the Prince of Wales.

Miss Perkins' Spring Bonnet Is a Tricorne

Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins' Easter bonnet will be—another tricorne.

Madame Secretary has recently supplied more proof for the adage that "habit is second nature" by purchasing another model of her favorite style of head covering.

For the last two seasons she has put aside her much talked of tricornes in favor of dashing sailors, even though the latter has been her favorite style since she was 10 years old.

Although she asserted she did not buy the spring hat for any special occasion, her Easter outfit will be topped by her original preference, a three-cornered affair, fashioned in black straw.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt also has a tricorne hat this Easter. It is navy blue, trimmed with taffeta petals, and is one of two new spring bonnets she recently purchased.

From Debutantes to Matrons Navy Blue Will Be the Thing

Black Will Take Second Place in Number but Not in Smartness; Many Printed Dresses Will Also Be Seen.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

IT'S GOING TO BE a blue Easter in Washington.

From debutante to matron, many of the most fashionably dressed women of the Capital have chosen deep blue costumes to wear Sunday morning. Sometimes the dark shade is accented with stark write or with a brilliant color. Those brave creatures who have ventured outside the navy blue ranks have chosen black, perennially smart, or gay, springlike prints.

When Mrs. W. Warren Barbour, wife of Senator Barbour, of New Jersey, joins the Easter parade she will be attired in a navy blue sheer wool dress with a crisp, upstanding collar of white and dramatic contrast in the form of bright red belt and buttons. Her small navy blue hat dips bewitchingly over one eye. The red note is repeated on the hat with a jaunty feather cockade and on blue slippers with a bit of trimming. Mrs. Barbour will wear blue and white gloves and will carry a blue bag.

Mrs. Landa in Blue.

Mrs. Alfons B. Landa is planning to wear a navy blue tailored suit with a navy straw Breton sailor, navy gloves and navy shoes. A white blouse will be worn beneath the short, fitted jacket of the suit. An Ascot scarf of blue and white dotted silk will complete the attractive costume.

Miss Mary Dwight, who is being formally presented to society tonight, has chosen a dashing navy blue double-breasted coat for Easter. Four enormous white buttons emphasize the double-breasted line below wide, notched lapels. Miss Dwight will wear sables and a navy blue fabric tricorn with the smart, fitted coat. Touches of white pique are on the trim navy blue silk crepe frock she has chosen for Sunday morning.

A black crepe de chine dress, cut on long, unbelted lines, is the choice of Mrs. J. Blaise de Sibour. The striking dress is accompanied by a vivid scarf of printed silk that creates an extremely high neckline and ends in a large bow on the left shoulder. Mrs. de Sibour has selected a black straw halo hat. Her bag will be bright red and her gloves black.

Mrs. Fred A. Britten, wife of Representative Britten of Illinois will make her Easter appearance in an attractive dress of heavy printed silk crepe, with a small, all-over spring flower design on a chartreuse background. A dainty, ecru-colored lace guimpe creates one of the new lower necklines above revers that end in a sash and ties at the waist. The skirt has side pleats below a deep yoke. Mrs. Britten will wear a large black straw hat that dips in front to shade the eyes. A bright colored ribbon around the shallow crown contains the same clear colors as the material in the dress. Black slippers and gloves will accompany the printed dress and large black hat.

New Departure—Yellow.

Miss Florence Harris has departed from omnipresent navy blue, black and prints by choosing a dull Chinese yellow rough tweed ensemble made in Italy especially for her. An indefinite plaid of tans and yellows is woven in the tweed. The novel blouse of heavy crepe has a yellow top while the lower part of sleeves and blouse is brown. Miss Harris will wear a small brown hat, an adaptation of the beret and brown slippers with this unusual and good-looking suit.

Miss Dolly Fleming, debutante, will step out Easter morning in a navy blue silk frock with square-shaped vest and cuffs of white silk pique. The vest is held to the square neckline by large crystal buttons. A crystal buckle fastens the waistline belt. Small pleats give fullness to the bottom of the slim skirt. Miss Fleming will wear a baum-marten scarf and a Breton sailor of shiny navy straw.

Mrs. Terry Carpenter, wife of Representative Carpenter, of Nebraska, will spend the Easter weekend in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, where on Sunday she will wear a navy blue crepe, printed with a small floral design. The dress is cut on slim, straight lines, has three-quarter sleeves, and a fairly high V-shaped neckline. A cluster of glistening red berries adds a color to a navy blue straw hat whose medium brim dips over the left eye. Silvertip fox furs and black patent leather pumps will be worn with the printed dress.

Two Black Costumes.

Mrs. Eugene Woodson and her daughter, Miss Jean Woodson, who made her debut a few seasons ago, have selected black for their Easter morning costumes. Mrs. Woodson is planning to wear a heavy black crepe ensemble with white bodice, small black straw hat, double silver fox scarf, and white gloves. The jacket of the ensemble is tightly fitted above a flared peplum and has a rippling collar that shows the small, white roll collar of the blouse. There are red and white suede camellias on one shoulder. Mrs. Woodson's hat is covered with a fine, lacy braid and is worn off-the-face in a crown effect. Her bag and pumps are black snakeskin.

Miss Jean Woodson will appear Sunday morning in a long, fitted coat of black cedarbark, a black straw Breton sailor, and silver fox furs. Beneath the attractive coat she will wear a semisheer black crepe ensemble whose white chiffon blouse is tucked in squares. Small daisies, made of chiffon, encircle the demure round neckline. Miss Woodson will carry a long black bag and will wear black shoes with small grosgrain bows.

CHICAGO apparently is a good place to go for more than just World Fairs and the last word in racketeering. It also is a good place to get a husband—or so the Summers girls seem to have proved.

Some seasons back Hope Summers, graceful and talented elder daughter of former Representative and Mrs. Summers (of Washington State), chose very good-looking Mr. Wetherill—handsomer than Monte Blue and similar in type—for the Man in her life.

Just Christmas time we saw both of the Wetherills and also tiny, adorable Diedre Wetherill—aged a little over one year—at Dr. and Mrs. Summers' apartment on Capitol Hill. Hope is still doing her impersonation programs—original, yet somewhat of the Cornelia Otis Skinner type of thing.

Now, word has just been issued from the Summers domicile that Jean, the slim blonde daughter, is engaged to another Chicagoan, Donald Cameron Smith, the wedding date to be set later.

Garden Pilgrimage To Be Held in May

Grounds of Georgetown Estates to Be Opened.

The seventh annual Georgetown garden pilgrimage will be held May 23 and 26. The grounds of Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, of Dumbarton Oaks, will be opened May 23 and that afternoon the pilgrimage committee will show a group of other gardens in that vicinity. Mrs. F. Lafayet Bedin will open her gardens at Evermay on May 26 and other gardens in the southern and eastern parts of Georgetown will be shown in the afternoon.

Runs Restaurant Where Low-Priced Foods Are Sold.

Hidden away in the English basement of an S street house is a veritable treasury of tasty viands.

Hot rolls, puddings, pies, cakes, muffins, salads, mousses, an infinite variety of real appetite teasers may be ordered on short notice. The hostess who worries about what she'll serve, or doubts the success of special dishes prepared in the confusion of her own kitchen may rest assured the delicacies she buys here are fit not only for the gods but the guests of honor. The rolls are so freshly and expertly baked they may be ordered in the afternoon and reheated in the evening without losing their tastiness.

From 6 until 8 Bernice and Rachel, the "chefs," see to it diners are delighted with home cooking such as few homes have. The salads, prepared at the moment, are fresh and crisp, the vegetables green, and cooked just enough, the meats always to the taste.

There's always a choice of soups, meats and desserts. The main course, meat and three vegetables, are served on a large platter from which one "helps herself." Here's a place where there's plenty to eat—and the best of foods.

The prices for these good things are remarkably low. The management will be glad to furnish further information.

Must Be Stirred.

Martinis being the general favorites they are, it's perfectly natural shops should finally show real martini mixers—which, incidentally, are good for other kinds of cocktails too.

The cocktail connoisseur would no more dream of shaking all his concoctions than he'd dream of doing without them. But so far, there's been a scant supply of these special vessels which allow for a graceful stirring and mixing. But now, an F street store has mixers, two types, one in crystal, ornamented with cut stars, the other glass, with hand-painted hunting scenes.

These are open at the top, with a small opening for pouring.

Easter Buns and Cakes.

Easter wouldn't be Easter without a new bonnet, stories about the Easter Bunny—and Hot Cross Buns.

A downtown bake shop, which has built up a reputation on the fine quality of its breads, is doing the generous thing today and selling its delicious buns for 24 cents a dozen.

There's also a special on an Easter cake, a golden batter beauty with a thick finish of yellow butter cream frosting. A slice of this with tomorrow's dessert will look as good as it will taste.

There are treats for the youngsters too—honey cookie bunnies, and ducks, and chocolate Easter eggs with fruit and nut filling. The bake shop will gladly put Junior's name on these in bright icing script.

Unpronounceable, but Luscious.

A tropical fruit store which formerly had headquarters downtown has recently moved out on Columbia road.

Large luscious persimmons, unusually fine calavos, those delicious tangeloes, and navel oranges, mangoes, sapodillas, and innumerable other exciting fruits may, whenever they're in season, be obtained here at extremely reasonable prices.

Will Make Us Graceful.

A silver-plated sandwich server looking like a miniature snow shovel is one of the fascinating novelties in the gift department of a local store.

A great many times a hostess will proudly bring out her tray of carefully prepared sandwiches and have her pride turn to horror when guests in lifting them on their plates lose half the contents on the way. Just as often open-faced sandwiches will be served, and for lack of more appropriate utensils an awkward serving fork or pie knife will have to meet the occasion.

This handy sandwich server is really indispensable for graceful serving of sandwiches. It may also be used for cake, pies, and soft candies.

More Easter Specials.

Many people have been waiting to see what Easter specials a favorite pastry shop was going to have. If they'll drop by there today they'll see delicious strawberry tarts made from the finest, crispest pastry and filled with honest-to-goodness fresh strawberries. They're selling three for 25 cents today.

And they'll also see some butter cream sponge rolls, an unusual and tasty desert. These have an inner filling of fresh custard, and a heavy coating on the outside of rich butter cream sprinkled over with pecans. They're only 30 cents apiece, and one of them will slice up into four large helpings—or six small.

The Lowly Bread Crumb Glorifies Vegetable Dishes

MANY A CRUMB of comfort in every slice of bread. Particularly when such crumbs are mixed with melted butter and used to season, stuff, scallop or top a favorite vegetable. As in the dish pictured, for example—grilled tomatoes au gratin—which makes headline news for comedian Phil Baker.

In this and every similar dish, the crumbs must be mixed with a bit of wisdom as well as melted butter, if the effect is to be just right. So here are a few pointers.

Fine crumbs (either dry or soft) are best for topping and breading vegetables. Coarse, soft crumbs are best for stuffing and scalloping vegetables. To make fine, soft crumbs, just rub fresh bread over a coarse grater. To make coarse, soft crumbs, just rub pieces of fresh bread between palms of hands. To make fine, dry crumbs, first dry bread thoroughly in slow oven without browning (200 to 250 F.). Then put these pieces into strong paper bag, and roll them fine with rolling pin.

Keeping and Mixing.

You can keep these dry crumbs almost indefinitely, but put them away without buttering, and be sure to have perforations in the top of jar you store them in so they won't get rancid.

Dry crumbs used for topping are tastiest if first mixed (½ cup of them) with ⅛ teaspoon salt, a few grains of pepper and 2½ tablespoons butter (first melted) in shallow pan. These give a crisp finish. For a more delicate finish to a vegetable dish, use ½ cup soft, fine crumbs—mixed with ⅛ teaspoon salt, few grains pepper, but only 1¼ tablespoons butter. This amount will make a nice topping for a dish 8 inches across.

Grilled Tomatoes Au Gratin.

This same amount of dry, buttered crumbs is about right for topping grilled tomatoes. For this dish, first wash and remove stem end from tomatoes, but do not peel. Then cut them in half crosswise, and sprinkle them with ½ teaspoon salt. Put them in a shallow baking pan or dish, top with the buttered, dry crumbs, and bake at 350 F. till nearly done—about 10 minutes. Then run under medium broiler flame to complete cooking and brown. Delicious with steak or roast beef. (Mix 1 tablespoon grated cheese with crumbs, if you like.)

Beans With Toasted Crumbs.

For another good crumbed vegetable, use ½ cup fine, dry crumbs mixed with melted butter as directed, but brown these in the pan (delicately) over a low fire. Then toss them briefly with 1 pound green beans (first cut diagonally in 1-inch lengths, then cooked tender in boiling, salted water, and drained thoroughly). Serve at once, before crumbs lose their crispness.

Easter Eggs Recipe Wins Weekly Prize

Edna Zemmer Gets $5 for Dessert or Salad Dish.

The recipe for Easter eggs submitted by Edna Zemer, of 1940 Calvert street northwest, has been awarded the $5 weekly prize.

This dish may be served either as a salad or a dessert for the Easter Sunday dinner. It will not only lend color to your table, but will be thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. The children will be especially delighted with these pretty Easter eggs served with shredded lettuce and mayonnaise.

The recipe follows:

Easter Eggs.

Make a hole about as large as a lead pencil in the small end of the egg. With a long needle mix the yolk and white so that they will come out easily. (Egg white may be taken out separately if desired, but the yolk will have to be broken.) Rinse the shells with cold water. Dissolve different flavors of gelatine, using one pint of boiling water for each package. Fill the egg shells with gelatine, using a funnel. Set on end in egg container. Chill until firm. When ready to serve, break away the shells. Serve in nests of whipped gelatine or cocoanut. Garnish with small candy eggs or fruits cut in small pieces. Lemon flavored eggs make a pretty salad, served in nests of shredded lettuce with mayonnaise.

What Today Means

"Aries."

If March 31 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m. to 12 noon, from 3 to 5 p. m. and from 9 to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m., from 1 to 3 p. m. and from 6 to 8 p. m.

Do not indulge in an interchange of sarcastic personalities, even in a jocular way on this date, for it may result in unpleasantness.

If March 31 is your birthday, avoid cultivating any mannerisms which might be construed as eccentric.

The child born on March 31, as it grows up, will be inclined to insist upon having its own way, and rather argumentative when opposed. This can be corrected by taking a firm stand as soon as this characteristic manifests itself.

The woman born on March 31 might find it easier if she will adjust herself more readily to the wishes, and try to comply with the requests, others frequently make.

The man, whose natal day this is, may find it to his advantage at times to seek guidance, as well as advice, from those he knows have had more experience, and in whom he has confidence as to their integrity.

People born on March 31 are very artistic, and should, even if compelled to follow a commercial line of business, indulge in their spare time gratifying their desire for music, painting, writing or acting, which can be done by taking an active part in amateur plays.

The Dragon Murder Case

By S. S. Van Dine

The Story Thus Far.

Philo Vance and District Attorney Markham, with Sergt. Heath, are investigating the strange disappearance of Sanford Montague in the old Dragon Pool on the Stamm estate. According to Leland, one of Stamm's guests, each member of the house party had sufficient motive for murdering Montague, with the exception of Bernice Stamm, to whom he was engaged. Stamm himself was helplessly intoxicated at the time of the tragedy and every one else was standing beside the pool. Stamm's mother, who is mentally unbalanced, insists that the "dragon" removed Montague because he was an "enemy of the family."

The following morning the pool is drained, but there is no sign of a body. Instead they see the imprint of a scaly hoof and a huge, three-taloned claw. A chance remark of Mrs. Stamm leads Vance to an ancient glacial pothole beyond the pool. In it lies the mutilated body of Montague. Without telling him that Montague has been found, Vance questions Kirwin Tatum, one of the guests.

"Plenty." A ferocious smile came to Tatum's lips, then faded immediately away. "But I'm in the clear. You can't pin anything on me."

Vance's gaze rested calculatingly on the man for several minutes.

"Is Greeff the only possibility you have to suggest?" he asked, at length.

"No," Tatum answered, with a one-sided smile; "there are plenty of possibilities. But the point is to hook them up with the circumstances. If Leland hadn't been alongside of me the whole time I was in the pool, I wouldn't give him a clean bill of health for a split second. And Stamm had plenty of cause to bump Monty off; but he's out of the running because of all the liquor he'd poured into himself."

"And the women here, too—the McAdam dame and Ruby Steele—they'd have welcomed an opportunity of getting rid of the handsome Monty. But I don't see how they could have managed it."

"Really, y' know, Tatum," Vance remarked, "you're simply bulging with suspects. How do you happen to have overlooked old Mrs. Stamm?"

CHAPTER XVI.

The Car Again.

"She's a devil—that woman!" he muttered huskily. "They say she's crazy. But she sees too much—she knows too much."

"It might interest you to know, however, that we have found Montague's body——"

Tatum started forward.

"Where?" he interrupted.

"In one of the subglacial potholes down the East Road * * * And there were three long claw marks down his chest, such as this mythical dragon might have made."

Tatum sprang to his feet. His cigarette fell from his lips, and he shook his finger hysterically at Vance.

"Don't try to frighten me—don't try to frighten me." His voice was high-pitched and shaky. "I know what you're trying to do—you're trying to break down my nerves and get me to admit something. But I won't talk—do you understand?—I won't talk * * *"

Vance Grows Stern.

"Come, come, Tatum." Vance spoke mildly but sternly. "Sit down and calm yourself. I'm telling you the exact truth. And I'm only endeavorin' to find some solution to Montague's murder. It merely occurred to me that you might be able to help us."

Tatum, soothed and reassured by Vance's manner, sank back into his chair and lit another cigarette.

"Did you," Vance asked next, "notice anything peculiar about Montague last night before he went to the pool? Did he, for instance, appear to you like a man who might have been drugged?"

"He was drugged with liquor, if that's what you mean."

"Did you ever hear of a woman named Ellen Bruett?"

Tatum puckered his brow.

"Bruett? * * * The name sounds familiar. * * * Oh, I know where I've heard it. Stamm told me, when he asked me to come here, that there was an Ellen Bruett coming to the party. I imagine I was to be paired with her. Thank God she didn't come, though."

"After Montague's disappearance, did you feel immediately that there had been foul play of some kind."

"Yes!" Tatum compressed his lips and nodded ominously. "In fact, I had a feeling all day yesterday that something was going to happen. I came pretty near leaving the party in the afternoon—I didn't like the set-up."

Tells of Premonition.

"Can you explain what gave you that impression of impending disaster?"

Tatum thought a moment, and his eyes shifted back and forth.

"No, I can't say," he muttered at length. "A little of everything, perhaps. But especially that crazy woman upstairs. * * *"

"Ah!"

When the man had gone, Vance moved back and forth between the fireplace and the door several times, smoking, his head down.

Greeff entered later, dressed in a conventional lightweight business suit, and wearing a small gardenia in his buttonhole. Despite his rugged healthy complexion, he showed unmistakable signs of strain, and I imagined that he had done considerable drinking since we had interviewed him the night before. Much of his aggressiveness was gone, and his fingers shook slightly as he moved his long cigarette holder to and from his lips.

Questioned About Pool.

Vance greeted him perfunctorily and asked him to sit down. When Greeff had chosen a chair, Vance said:

"Both Mr. Leland and Mr. Tatum have told us that when you were in the pool, helping them search for Montague, you swam immediately across to the shallow water below Radcliffs."

"Not immediately." There was the suggestion of indignant protestation in Greeff's voice. "I made several efforts to find the chap. But, as I've already told you, I am not a good swimmer, and it occurred to me that perhaps his body had drifted across the pool, since he had dived in that direction; and I thought I might be of more help by looking about over there than by interfering with Leland and Tatum with my clumsy splashing about." He shot a quick look at Vance. "Was there any reason why I shouldn't have done it?"

"Then what's the point of the question?" he snapped.

"Merely an attempt to clarify one or two dubious items," Vance returned lightly, and then went on, before the other could speak again: "By the by, when you were in the shallow water at the other side of the pool, did you, by any chance, hear a motorcar along the East road?"

Greeff stared at Vance for several moments in startled silence. The color left his face, and he rose to his feet with jerky ponderance.

"Yes, by gad! I did hear one." He stood with hunched shoulders, emphasizing his words with his long cigarette holder which he held in his right hand, like a conductor's baton. "And I thought at the time it was damned queer. But I forgot all about it last night, and didn't think of it again until you mentioned it just now."

"It was just about 10 minutes after Montague had dived in, wasn't it?"

"Just about."

"Both Mr. Leland and Miss Stamm heard it," Vance remarked. "But they were a trifle vague about it."

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

A Test for Ringworm of the Scalp.

There is a new way of examining the head and other hairy parts of the body for ringworm and some other parasitic disease

The method consists in examining the head and other hairy parts by means of ultraviolet light passed through a filter of Wood's glass.

It is a well-known fact that in ringworm of hairy parts, if the hairs are removed by X-rays or otherwise, the cause of the disease goes with it and cure follows—usually with no further treatment.

It is possible that favus and some other skin diseases as well as ringworm can be conveyed from animals to man. Most of the skin diseases in dogs and cats that are suspected of being contagious to man go by the group name of mange and are due to parasites.

In the case of ringworm and related infections that cause fluorescent hairs, the disease in the lower animal can be located by the light test in areas where there is as yet no eruption.

Court Asked To Force Rum Board Permit

E. B. Rector Challenges Right to Refuse D. C. License.

Petition Says Move Is Illegal; Speakeasy Target of Board.

The authority of the District Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to refuse a license because the applicant's establishment is located near a church was challenged yesterday by Early B. Rector, of 5441 Conduit Road northwest, who asked the District Supreme Court to compel issuance of the license.

This is the first time that the right of the board to invoke its discretionary powers has been exercised. Through his attorney, F. Joseph Donoghue, Rector pointed out that Mrs. W. Beverly Mason, a member of the control board, had pointed out in a strong dissenting opinion that she did not see how the license could be refused.

Specifically, Donoghue claimed the board had no authority to deny a license to any establishment within 400 feet of a church, if the store was in business at the time of passage of the liquor law.

Church Groups Protest.

In denying Rector's license, the Liquor Board heeded the objections of the Washington Federation of Churches and M. H. Hess, superintendent of the Sunday school of the Potomac Heights Church, which immediately adjoins Rector's property. Chairman George W. Offutt and Isaac Gans voted against the application.

A beer license was issued yesterday to an establishment in the vicinity of the Soldiers Home in the hope that it would eliminate a speakeasy which has been selling liquor to the inmates.

The board granted the license to Paul E. Hansen, of 105 Upshur street northwest, after he agreed not to sell wines, which is otherwise permissible under the type of license he received.

The board heard evidence that liquor was being sold inmates by a speakeasy.

"In view of all the evidence," the board said, "we can not but feel most strongly that the issuance of this license will react rather to the benefit of the neighborhood."

Regulation Is Illegal.

The board learned yesterday that one of its regulations, which forbids any advertisement on the exterior of a building calling attention to the establishment's liquor business, is directly in conflict with a Federal regulation.

The Federal regulation requires that all wholesale liquor dealers post a sign, visible to the public, that they are engaged in the liquor business. This is for the purpose of helping to enforce tax provisions. District officials announced this regulation would no longer apply to wholesalers.

The District Medical Society yesterday registered its opposition to the Dirksen bill to amend the District law to permit drug stores to fill prescriptions with blended whisky.

Representative Dirksen (Republican), Illinois, said he would ask passage of the bill despite this opposition. He said the present act discriminates against persons unable to pay high prices for medicinal whisky. The bill has been approved by the House District Committee.

Another bill awaiting consideration by the committee is the Black bill, which would remove the one-license restriction from chain stores.

Play Planned April 13 For Bowie Library

A play entitled "Seth Parker's Sunday Evening" will be presented at St. James Hall, Bowie, Md., Friday, April 13, for the benefit of the Bowie District Public Library.

John E. Nicol, of Washington, as Seth Parker, will take the leading role. Mother Parker will be played by Mrs. Vinton E. Nichols. The play, which also includes a large cast of local singers, will be directed by Miss Marjorie Zug.

Aquarium Open Tomorrow.

Director Fred Orsinger announced yesterday that the aquarium, in the basement of the Department of Commerce Building, will remain open from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow. The same schedule will be observed the following Sunday, Orsinger said.

Shad Story of the Shad Bush That Got in Progress' Path

Post Staff Photos.

With the weather fair, work of digging foundations to receive Calvert street bridge, which will be moved 80 feet south so the new span can be built in its old location, is going ahead rapidly. Upper photo is a panorama of the project, looking east, arrow indicating where bridge will be moved. Lower, railbirds watching the digging of a temporary foundation.

They Just Had to Move It to Build Bridge on Calvert Street.

Amelanchier canadensis, who puts on its spring dress of pink blossoms about the time shad begin to run, and, therefore, is vulgarly called the shad bush, was shifted 30 feet north yesterday so they're going to be allowed to move Calvert Street Bridge and build a new one in its place after all.

Transplanting of the tree-like bush was accomplished after the Wildflower Association of America had made an impassioned plea to save it from the ax. The bush, located on the bluff a few yards north of the present span, seemed to be in the way of operations and had to be removed.

Its blossoms should be opening almost any day now. They are a familiar seasonal sight to the thousands of trolley riders, autoists and pedestrians who use the bridge daily.

Blessing the fair weather, workmen made rapid progress yesterday digging temporary foundations to which the bridge will be moved in about six weeks. This transplanting operation, staggering in its detail, is simple compared to the complications which arose when the Wildflower Association learned its pet shad bush was in peril.

After the necessary holes are dug the old truss bridge will be lifted, shunted about 80 feet south and then set down in its new location.

The actual moving will take no more than 48 hours, as provided in the contract. During this period only will it be necessary to halt traffic.

The John W. Cowper Co. has the contract for building the new bridge, which will be located where the old one is now, as well as moving the present span, but will sublet the moving end of the job. The subcontractor recently shifted a bridge of similar construction in Pittsburgh. Towering office buildings, large department stores and apartment houses also come within the company's scope.

The first and most troublesome move is finished—amelanchier canadensis. Now for the bridge.

C. of C. Group Renews Move For Stadium

Committee Declares City Needs Place for Big Events.

Agitation for a stadium in Washington was revived yesterday by the parks and recreation committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce.

Learning that the National Park and Planning Commission is taking interest in a stadium, the committee went on record urging steps toward bringing the project into operation. The end of East Capitol street was recommended as a site.

Thomas Slater Suttle, chairman of the committee, said Washington is denied leading athletic events because of lack of a suitable center. The stadium is necessary also, he pointed out, for community activities.

The committee indorsed the contemplated survey by the National Park and Planning Commission of the recreational system of the District and adopted a resolution urging the survey be complete and comprehensive with the aim of unifying the existing recreational facilities. Lack of coordination in the District recreational system was criticized by the committee.

Formulation of legislation by the Senate Rivers and Harbors Committee for development of the waterfront, in accordance with plans submitted by the chief engineer of the U. S. Army, was urged.

The group likewise supported the chamber's aviation committee indorsement of Gravelly Point as an airport site.

Other legislation indorsed included the bill for widening the remainder of Thirteenth street northwest, one for changing the name of B street to Independence avenue and another for changing the name of Four-and-a-Half street to Fourth street.

Emergency Work in D. C. Lacks Funds

District Officials Await Hopkins Ruling on Jobs Future.

$150,000 April Grant Held Insufficient to Last Week.

The future of the District emergency works program remained in doubt last night as officials awaited further action on their request for $793,000 for April relief expenses, of which $150,000 has been granted.

A telegram from Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins was silent on the extent to which the $150,000 is to be applied. Officials are uncertain whether this sum is for the entire month or an initial allotment.

Capt. Howard F. Clark, executive officer of the District CWA, said yesterday's allotment would be scarcely sufficient to last a week. There will be another conference Monday between District officials and Federal relief officers to decide the future April allotments, if any, the District is to receive.

$00 to be Laid Off.

In its request for $793,000 for all relief purposes, the District included an item of $375,000 for the new work program to replace the CWA. Other items were $40,000 for materials; $225,000 for direct relief, and $33,000 for transient relief.

Because of the determination of Capt. Clark that only 10 per cent of the total allotment for the new program is to be used for materials, it was decided that 20 trucks will have to be taken from service Monday. This will result in a temporary layoff of 400 men, who comprise working crews on highway projects.

In addition, Capt. Clark said, there will be a temporary layoff of 400 or 500 skilled workers Monday. The reason for the layoff, he said, is because the skilled workers receive a higher rate of pay than the unskilled workers. These workers will be reemployed later and will be given work at a minimum of 30 hours a month, while the unskilled laborers will be worked 54 hours a month.

Turnover Thursday.

The actual turnover of the CWA to the Emergency works program will start next Thursday, when approximately 8,000 men will be shifted to projects which have been approved. What projects will be undertaken will depend on conferences Monday. Projects to cost about $2,000,000 have already been given preliminary approval by the work planning and job assigning committee of the Emergency Works.

Many other projects are being considered to provide work for the 7,000 persons, who have been dismissed from the CWA since the demobilization was started seven weeks ago and who are expected to seek employment under the EWP. Of the 15,000 employes under the CWA at the peak of its pay roll, there will be only 8,000 when the program terminates Monday.

Wife's Death Frees Purdy In Fraud Case

Garnett Drops Swindle Charge Involving "Gold Chest."

The death of his wife brought the release of Dr. LeRoy Purdy yesterday from the District Jail and a probable end to the celebrated "gold chest" swindle case that started here two years ago.

Dr. Purdy, who, with his wife, was awaiting trial, was yesterday released on his personal bond by order of Leslie C. Garnett, United States attorney, who stated that the charge against him would be nolle prossed within a few days. Dr. Purdy was charged with obtaining money under false pretenses.

Mrs. Purdy, bedridden since her return to Washington from Detroit, died a fortnight ago in Gallinger Hospital. Dr. Purdy was with her when she died and attended the funeral and then returned to his cell.

"The death of Mrs. Purdy makes prosecution difficult," said Garnett. "The prosecution depended for much of its case upon her."

The news of his release was received calmly by Dr. Purdy. He packed his belongings and said good-by to Capt Thomas Rives, superintendent of the jail. Then he stepped out into the warm, spring sunlight.

The Purdys first came to Washington in 1931. They stayed at the Wardman Park and Shoreham hotels, and moved in select social circles.

In January, 1932, they were accused of obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. Lawrence Kay, of the 1800 block of Mintwood place, northwest. The funds, more than $10,000, were supposed to be for use in transporting a chest of gold containing $80,000,000, from England. The Purdys claimed they had inherited this vast fortune, and the $10,000 was necessary to bring it to this country.

Both Dr. and Mrs. Purdy became well known around the city at this time. In April, however, Mrs. Kay became suspicious at continued delays in producing the fortune, and a warrant was issued for their arrest.

Before the case could come to trial, Purdy jumped his $5,000 bond and fled. A search led from New York to Montreal, and from Montreal to California.

The couple was found in Detroit last summer. Dr. Purdy was returned immediately, and his wife, who was too ill to be moved at the time, was brought here September 23. Her condition made it impossible for her to be arraigned. Finally she was taken to the hospital, where she died.

Only Fliers Wait For This Light

New Traffic Signal Can Be Worked Various Ways.

Equestrian, pedestrian and motorist were given equal consideration when District officials installed a new traffic signal at Massachusetts avenue and Waterside drive, turned on by Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer yesterday.

The equestrian wishing to cross the avenue pulls a chain suspended from two posts on either side of the bridle path and the light turns red.

Will Accept Cedars of Lebanon in Arlington Ceremony Tonight.

Templars Plan Sunrise Services Tomorrow; Rain Forecast.

With special services scheduled at all city churches and a prediction of cloudy weather with possible showers, Washington today will prepare to celebrate another Easter.

Programs of Easter music, traditional since Easter rites were instituted, will feature the ceremonies in most of the congregations.

This evening at 6 o'clock, in a colorful ceremony which will include the presence of a group of costumed Lebanese, Mrs. Roosevelt will accept in behalf of the American public 12 cedars of Lebanon from Barclay Acheson, representing the people of the Near East.

The program will take place in Arlington National Cemetery, where the First Lady will read an acceptance message prepared by the President. Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, of Washington Cathedral, will recite an Easter prayer. The Marine Band will play and the entire service will be broadcast over a Nation-wide hook-up.

Two of the cedars will be planted this Easter Eve. The other ten already have been placed on the knoll overlooking the Potomac River.

Tall Cedars of Lebanon, a fraternal order, will be represented by a company of rangers. Mrs. Roosevelt will have an escort of Girl Scouts and a group of Boy Scouts will form the guard of honor.

Led by Andrew D. Agnew, acting grand master of the Grand Encampment of the United States, one of the largest groups of Knights Templar ever assembled here, will participate in the Easter sunrise memorial service in Arlington National Cemetery tomorrow morning at 7 o'clock.

Among leaders of Masonry who have arrived for the rites are Claude D. Zimmerman, grand commander of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania; Ansel A. Packard and Horace M. N. Sigman, grand commander and deputy grand commander of the Grand Commandery of Connecticut; Byron Lear, past grand commander of the Grand Commandery of New Jersey; Chalmers L. # All Churches in City to Feature Special Programs of Easter Music Tomorrow

Organ, Choirs Will Celebrate Festive Season

Large Congregations Will Hear Traditional Offerings.

Special Easter music, traditional with churches since Easter first was instituted, will be offered in all churches of the Capital tomorrow, in most cases being a feature of every service during the day, although the main offerings will be at morning services.

The sermons in practically all the churches can be depended on to deal with the Resurrection, with its implications of immortality of mankind. And most of the anthems, solos, cantatas, organ classics and even regular hymnal offerings to be heard tomorrow will center around this same general theme.

However, some of the magnificent vocal and organ numbers announced for tomorrow, all certain to be marked by their grandeur and impressiveness, have deviated from a strict Easter theme, and represent the finest of the world's treasure of ecclesiastical choral and organ music, suitable for any special occasion.

And since Easter is a traditional day for church attendance even by those who seldom go during the year, the special Easter music programs tomorrow are expected to be heard by capacity congregations.

McColl Pitches First Time This Year Against New Orleans Today

Slab Veteran On Mound 4 Innings

By Shirley L. Povich
(Sports Editor, The Post).

BILOXI, Miss., March 30.—Some time tomorrow afternoon at Mobile, Manager Joe Cronin will carefully take ancient Alec McColl down off the shelf, dust off his shop-worn pitching arm and expose it to both the sunlight and the bats of the New Orleans Pelicans who will be doing battle against the Nats.

Old Alec, the Methuselah of the pitching mound, who languished for 20 years in the minor league underbrush of baseball before making his big league debut at the age of 39, gets his first pitching assignment of the spring season tomorrow in company with the rookie Ed Chapman, who was swinging on the gate when Alec was a veteran.

Old Alec comes to the baseball wars with the added hazard of a surgical operation on his venerable salary flipper for the removal of a chipped bone, and both he and Cronin are anticipating tomorrow's test against the New Orleans club as an index to the success of the surgeon's knife.

Says He Is Ready.

Throughout the training siege in Biloxi, ancient Alec has been as chipper as the mocking birds that haunt the Biloxi shrubbery and infect the entire Washington squad with insomnia every morning promptly at 4 o'clock. The sap is beginning to flow again in his aged soup bone, says Alec, who wouldn't kid anybody about anything.

But Cronin will be viewing the proceedings during McColl's tenure on the mound against New Orleans with a critical eye, and prayerful hope. Old Alec, by his display of talent late last season, promised to be a gilt-edged guarantee that the Nats would be well fortified in relief pitching, and Cronin is of no mind to exchange an old bird in hand like Alec for two or three young birds in the bushes of baseball.

The availability of sterling relief pitching last year figured prominently in Cronin's success in his first campaign as a manager when Joe made such rapid pitching changes that the official scorers were often muddled. In one game in Boston Cronin used six pitchers despite the fact that the Red Sox were being held to three runs.

Figures Prominently.

Thus McColl is figuring prominently in Cronin's 1934 plans, what with three of his big four—Crowder, Whitehill and Stewart—getting no younger rapidly and showing signs last year of tiring in the late innings. That is where McColl will come in; McColl and Jack Russell. McColl is slated to pitch the last four innings tomorrow, after Chapman pitches the first five. Chapman is recovering from his celebrated sore back and thus the Nats' pitching program tomorrow will be in the nature of a double test.

Simon Legree Cronin did not spare his boys today at the ball yard, extending the morning practice far into the lunch hour in an effort to offset the lack of actual games encountered by the Nats, who are off the beaten track of the exhibition league.

All Get Their Turn.

Cronin prolonged the batting practice to give every pitcher on the squad a turn on the mound, and the increase in the pace of the hurlers was notable. The long hits weren't rolling up to the far-flung fences with such frequency, and the boys were even whiffing on occasion.

He kept the outfielders after school and had them heaving the ball into the plate after scooping up Nick Altrock's fungo grounders. The session was a breeze for Johnny Stone, whose iron arm was in fine fettle again today, and his colleagues, Fred Schulte and Heine Manush, were made to look very bad indeed by the manner in which Stone zipped the ball into the plate with an accuracy that portended disaster to any so foolhardy as to attempt to score on his arm.

Appalachian League Plans Reorganization

Bristol, Va., March 30 (Spl.). Preliminary steps for reorganization of the Appalachian Independent Baseball League were taken at a meeting in Johnson City, Tenn.

Five cities were represented—Kingsport, Johnson City, Erwin, Elizabethton and Jonesboro. Those present determined to organize either a four-team or a six-team circuit and fixed Thursday, April 5, as the date of another meeting to consider plans for operating this summer.

Rally by Cards Beats Yanks In Ninth

Mills' Double Is Decisive; Victors Get Five Hits; Other News.

BRADENTON, Fla., March 30 (AP). A ringing double by Col. Butler Mills, his second straight of the game, with Jim Collins on base today gave the St. Louis Cardinals a ninth-inning 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Both clubs showed mid-season pitching, with Vernon Gomez and Harry Smythe granting only five hits—although they couldn't get Mills out—and Jess Haines, Bill Walker and Clarence Heise giving up six to the Yankees.

Giants Rally, Win.

Dothan, Ala., March 30 (AP).—Bill Terry, manager of the world champion New York Giants, brought his team back today to the town where he broke into professional baseball as a left-handed pitcher 19 years ago, and with them polished off the Nashville Club of the Southern League in an exhibition game, 4-to-3.

A crowd of 3,000 paid tribute to Terry, who lasted only a few weeks in the Georgia State League with Dothan, and here was handed the only unconditional release he ever received in baseball.

The Giants won today in the seventh after trailing, 3 to 2. Harry Danning, rookie catcher, hit a home run to tie the count, and the winning run scored on a single by Joe Moore and two errors. Two of Nashville's runs off Roy Parmelee, who pitched five innings, were due chiefly to two errors by Hughie Critz.

Mack Signs Pair.

Fort Myers, Fla., March 30 (AP). Connie Mack today began setting his Philadelphia Athletics house in order in preparation for the start of the return trip to the Quaker City.

He released one player from the squad taken to the training camp and signed up two others. Henry Winston, large right-hand hurler from Raleigh, N. C., signed last September as a free agent, was let go unconditionally.

Schmeling Hurt, Postponing Bout

Foregoes Uzcudun Fight; Out Six Weeks.

Barcelona, Spain, March 30 (U.P.).—Max Schmeling today notified the promoters that he would be unable to go through with his scheduled fight with Paulino Uzcudun here April 8, because of an injury suffered in yesterday's workout.

In bending backward, Schmeling lost his balance and fell. In checking his fall, Schmeling tore a tendon in his right thumb. Physicians said he would not be able to box for six weeks.

Dusek Returns To His Role As Hero

Rudy Gained Friends by Good Battle Against Jim Browning.

THAT Rudy Dusek will return to Washington in his original role of hero when he re-engages big Jim Browning at the Washington Auditorium Thursday night was a prediction ventured yesterday by Promoter Joe Turner.

Insisting that Rudy is one of the most colorful of all heavyweights and is highly popular here despite the boos generally showered upon him by local mat addicts, Turner claims that the elder Dusek contributed the outstanding rassling performance of his career against Browning their last time out.

"Rudy really showed 'em he could come back against Browning," Turner enthuses, "in fact, I think he looked better against Big Jim than he ever did against Londos.

"I've never had more demands than I did for a repeat match between these boys. And to Browning's everlasting credit I've got to admit he accepted in a hurry."

Bridgewater Is Beaten By Springfield, 7 to 6

Harrisonburg, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Bridgewater College dropped its second straight game to Springfield College of Massachusetts today, the Eagles failing to take advantage of their scoring opportunities and also fielding poorly at times. The score was 7 to 6.

The Eagles shoved over one run in the ninth inning, but the rally fell short of tying the score. Springfield took the lead with two runs in the first inning and was never headed. Southpaw Miller, of Bridgewater, limited the visitors to nine hits, while his mates pounded three Springfield hurlers for 13. Twenty-five men were left on bases.

Medica Breaks Swim Record In Victory

Takes 1,500 Meter Event to Give Washington U. Lead in Meet.

OHIO STATE NATATORIUM, Columbus, Ohio, March 30 (AP). Stroking his way to a new National intercollegiate record, Jack Medica, of the University of Washington, today won the 1,500-meter swim, opening event of the eleventh annual National Collegiate Athletic Association championships.

Medica's time was 19 minutes and 12.1 seconds, which was 50.1 seconds faster than the old N. C. A. A. mark of 20:02.2 set by Austin Clapp, of Stanford University.

Only Race Decided.

The 1,500-meter was the only race to be decided, preliminaries occupying the remainder of the opening day's program.

Medica's achievement gave the University of Washington a 1-point lead over the University of Michigan, which placed two men in the 1,500-meter finals. Jim Christy, of the Wolverine squad, was second to Medica, while Stevens, of the Navy, was third, and Robinson, of Michigan, was fourth. Washington gained 5 points, Michigan 4 and Navy 2.

In the time trials of the 50-yard free style Iowa placed three men in the semifinal, while Michigan and Southern California each kept two in the running. Illinois, Minnesota, Rotgers, Springfield and Northwestern each placed one.

Best Time By Flackman.

The best time of the three heats was turned in by Flackman, of Illinois, who negotiated the distance in 23.6 seconds. Rollinger, of Northwestern, won the second heat in 24.2 seconds, and Fletcher, of Southern California, took the third and final in 24 seconds flat.

Boxing Near, Virginia Bill Signed

Measure Effective in 60 Days; Fee Scale Is Worked Out.

RICHMOND, Va., March 30 (Spl.).—Gov. George C. Peery tonight had paved the way for professional boxing in Virginia by signing a bill legalizing bouts of not more than 10 rounds. His action, which greatly surprised many observers who anticipated a veto, climaxed a bitter fight, waged through both State legislative houses, to give professional boxing a legal status in the Old Dominion. The measure does not become effective for 60 days.

The bill provides for a three-man State commission, appointed for five years, to regulate the sport and also restricts staging of bouts to bona-fide Virginia clubs. As a safeguard against gambling, it stipulates that agents shall be appointed to prevent betting on fights.

Fee Sliding Scale.

A sliding scale of fees has been worked out for clubs, matchmakers, managers, referees, examining physicians, seconds and trainers. A fee of $100 will be charged for a matchmaker's license in cities of 150,000 population, and $25 in other cities or counties. Managers will be taxed $15, referees, $15; physicians, $10, and boxers, seconds and trainers, $10.

Five per cent of the gross receipts are to be turned over to the boxing commission. Of that amount, 50 per cent goes to the State and the other half to the city or counties in which the bouts are held.

Bowbeer Wins Florida Year Around Golf Title

Miami, Fla., March 30 (U.P.).—H. F. Bowbeer, of Chicago, today won the second annual Florida year-round Clubs' golf championship, defeating the defending champion, T. E. Price, of Miami, 4 and 3, in the 36-hole final over the Miami Biltmore Country Club course.

Bowbeer led 3 up at the ninth with 34, one under par. Price paired this to 1 down at the twenty-seventh, but Bowbeer played the last six holes 1 under par to reestablish his lead and win out.

Court Heads Face Rules Vote Today

Few, If Any, Alterations Likely at Atlanta.

Atlanta, Ga., March 30 (U.P.).—Basket ball coaches attending the annual meeting of their national association discussed numerous proposed changes in playing rules today, but indicated few if any alterations would be recommended to the rules committee.

Final consideration will be given the suggestions for rule revision tomorrow when each will be voted upon.

The statement today of F. C. Allen, of Kansas, that he believed the association's best policy would be to refrain from making any rule changes until the proposals were tested thoroughly, met with general approval. A proposed change considered most likely to be recommended—if any pass at all—would eliminate the free throw of a player fouled in the act of shooting a field goal in case he makes the field goal.

Horse, Lofty Heights, Drops Dead in Race

Size of Football Reduced, Making It Easier to Pass

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP).—A change in the specifications of the football for 1934, decreasing the circumference and making it easier to handle and forward pass, was announced today by the National Rules Committee through Secretary William S. Langford.

The short axis circumference has been reduced from the old measurement range of 22-22½ inches to 21¼-21½. No change was made in the other specifications as to weight, air pressure, general shape, or the long axis circumference.

"We discovered last fall," Langford said in explanation, "that various schools and one important conference were ordering balls of smaller circumference than the specifications provided.

"A Nation-wide canvass of coaches and athletic directors was made, and we found a popular desire for a change in the ball. The new specification seemed to meet the majority's wishes.

"This is the first change since 1931, when we made slight alterations in both the long and short axis circumference and set definite limits on the pressure. Previously we merely specified the weight and that the ball be 'tightly inflated.'

"The change undoubtedly will make the ball easier to grip and aid the forward passer. Whether that was the motive behind the agitation I don't know."

There has been little real change in the ball, Langford said, since the early days of football, the first rule on the subject specifying it should be a "prolate spheroid" of leather with a rubber bladder. With the standardization of play and equipment the present specifications were evolved.

Vandy Gridders Card 2 Eastern Tilts in '35

Nashville, Tenn., March 30 (AP). Vanderbilt will play two football games in the East on successive week-ends in 1935.

Arrangements for a battle with the Fordham Rams in the Polo Grounds, New York City, on October 19, 1935, were announced last night. Previously, a Friday night contest had been scheduled with Temple in Philadelphia for October 11.

Giants Team to Beat in 1934, With Pirates Main Opposition

Only Phillies and Dodgers Counted Out of Pennant Picture; Pittsburgh's Pitching Bolstered by Addition of Red Lucas.

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP).—The mortifying lesson Bill Terry and his inspired Giants taught the experts last season doesn't seem to have taken.

With the battle lines in the National League tightly drawn again, the Cubs, Cardinals and Pirates strengthened, the Braves crammed with hope, the Reds reorganized, and only the Phillies and Dodgers counted out of the pennant picture, the eyes of the soothsayers are wandering again from the team that confounded them by winning the world championship from Washington last fall.

Every angle of the 1934 race points to another of those mad scrambles, filled with knockdowns and knockouts. There is no questioning the fact that the Giants, with a grand pitching staff in Carl Hubbell, Hal Schumacher, Freddy Fitzsimmons, Leroy Parmelee and Dolfo Luque, inspired leadership from Terry, light but timely hitting and a tight defense, is the team to beat.

The rub comes when the experts crawl out from under their charts, stained with carbon and the lead of their pencils, to prove that it can be done, that the supreme good fortune and benign fates that rode with the champions last summer can't possibly be expected to have settled permanently at the Polo Grounds.

Pirates Hopeful.

The main opposition is expected from the Pirates, runners up last year, a powerful, all-around organization that folded in the stretch only because the pitching caved in. This year, in addition to the Waner boys and Freddy Lindstrom in the outfield, infield belters, such as Gus Suhr, Arky Vaughn and Pie Traynor, the pitching that consisted chiefly of Larry French in 1933 has been bolstered by the addition of Red Lucas, one of the wheel-horse right-handers of the circuit.

The Giants are reaching out to meet this danger, as proved by the fact that Terry traded his fleet center field, George Davis, for George Watkins, of the Cards, fast and a long distance hitter, but the champions' chances have been dimmed by the typhoid fever germs that will keep Gus Mancuso, brilliant, plugging catcher, out of action at least a month. The healing of Travis Jackson's ailing knees, though it forced weak hitting Blondy Ryan to the sidelines, is some recompense.

The Cubs have strengthened their bid with the purchase of Chuck Klein, all around hitting champion of the league, and the development of a fine rookie right hander, Dick Ward, to team with Lou Warneke and the veterans Guy Bush, Pat Malone and Charley Root.

In addition to Virgil Davis, slugging catcher obtained from Philadelphia for Jimmy Wilson, the Cards have picked up another Dean among pitchers, this one Silent Paul, brother of Dizzy. The Cards boast a pitching staff that rivals that of the Giants, more hitting power, scrappy leadership as long as Frankie Frisch and Pepper Martin are around, and lots of defense.

Injury Hurts Browns.

The bid of the Braves that loomed so dangerously last season has been seriously hurt by the crippling of Babbit Maranville, the aged second-base marvel, but Bill McKechnie will have the use of Hal Lee and Pinky Whitney all season, and running true to form, he has picked another crack pitcher unknown right out of the hat in Clarence Pickrel.

Although the Cincinanti Reds' new owners have aided Bob O'Farrell in a complete reorganization of the club, nothing much is expected of them this year, while Casey Stengel, succeeding Max Carey in the Brooklyn pilot seat, can hope only to maintain the humorous features of the Dodgers in the traditional manner.

With Klein and Davis missing, likable Jimmy Wilson will have the entire sympathy of the league in Philiadelphia—and not much else.

Bowie to Have Post-Time at 2:30 P.M.

1 O'Clock Announcement Corrected; 1,500 Horses in This Area.

IN the neighborhood of 1,500 horses are now assembled in the Baltimore-Washington area for Maryland's spring racing, which the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association will inaugurate at Bowie Monday, with a revival of the $2,000 Inaugural Handicap, a dash of 5½ furlongs for 3-year-olds and upward.

Officials made known yesterday that post time for the first race will be 2:30 o'clock, and not 1 o'clock, as previously announced by the track.

The majority of the thoroughbreds are already occupying stalls at this course. Others are being housed at historic old Benning on the outskirts of Washington. Some are located at Pimlico, Laurel, Havre de Grace, Timonium and Marlboro, and will be vanned here on the days they get a chance to race. Still more are taking training at the J. K. L. Ross, Merryland, Sagamore and other private training courses.

Horses Coming to Form.

It would hardly be correct to say that all are ready, but a big majority are, and all are rapidly coming to form. The winter past retarded the training of many thoroughbreds. However, there are enough to offer seven excellent races daily during the two weeks' sport programmed.

In addition to Monday's Inaugural, Race Secretary McLennan has arranged 25 other features. However, the $3,500 Rome Memorial Handicap, 2,000 Bowie Kindergarten and $5,000 Southern Maryland Handicap stand out with the Inaugural as the high lights of next month's racing.

There will be 41 sprint races run, with 43 races over a distance of ground. The track, due to the excellent care of Supt. Dick Pending and his staff is in grand condition, and horsemen who have been working their charges over it say a new tratck record or two will be hung out before the curtain is lowered April 14.

Maryland Season Opens.

The 12 days' sport, which opens Monday, not only ushers in Maryland's spring season, but pries the lid off the Eastern circuit. Following this meeting Havre de Grace will stage a 12-day session, during which a trio of $7,500 stakes will be run. On April 28, closing date for the racing in Harford County, the Chesapeake will be offered. This is the final chance for Eastern trainers to tighten their charges up for the $30,000 Kentucky Derby to be run May 5 at Churchill Downs.

This course, which is known as Prince Georges Park, is situated halfway between Baltimore and Washington.

Race Secretary Charles McLennan and his staff was busy yesterday morning accepting entries for Monday's opening seven-race program. All fields will be started out of the Boyle-Lynch stall gate. This gate gave entire satisfaction when used last November, and horsemen were pleased when announcement was made recently that the gate would again see service.

General Manager Joseph B. Boyle and Treasurer Thomas Kirby Lynch have opened their quarters here. They report a big demand for clubhouse and private boxes. If the weather is good Monday, Messrs. Lynch and Boyle are confident of playing host to 20,000 turfites.

Hockey Game Booked.

Silver Flashes have closed negotiations with the Warrenton (Va.) Indians, roller-skating team, for a game tomorrow night at 9 o'clock in the Silver Spring Armory rink. The game is one of the series being played between the two clubs.

Stoefen and Lott Battle To Draw

Stars Deadlocked, 8-8, in 5th Set, Darkness Stopping Play.

Chicagoan Decides Not to Default; Grant Is Now Finalist.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 30 (U.P.).—Lester Stoefen, lanky California ace, and George Lott, Chicago, played nearly three hours to a deadlock in a semifinal match of the Atlanta Biltmore invitation tennis tournament here today.

The score was tied at 8-8 in the fifth and deciding set when darkness halted the match, after each had won two sets. Lott announced he would default, but reconsidered later and is to continue the match at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow. They will wipe out the 8-all tie in the fifth set and start all over again on the last set. The winner will go into the final championship match tomorrow afternoon against Bryan (Bitsy) Grant, Atlanta.

Grant Wins Match.

The first set of the Stoefen-Lott match was a lengthy nip-and-tuck battle, Lott finally winning it, 13—11. Stoefen came back to take the second set, 6—4. Lott gained the upper again to win the third set, 6—3. Stoefen took the fourth easily, 6—0. Each had won eight games in the fifth set when it became too dark to play any longer.

Stoefen, National indoor champion and third in the National ranking, is making a strong bid to be named on the Davis Cup Team this year. Lott is tenth in National ranking.

5 Veteran Trackmen Return at Allegany

Cumberland, Md., March 30 (Spl.).—With only five veterans in the fold, Coach Foy A. Curry, of Allegany High, hopes to develop some new material for the track and field team when practice opens next week.

The holdovers from 1933 are "Bunn" Serf and George Cunningham, distance runners; Lamar Minnick, sprinter and field performer; Graydon Dunlap, weight man, and Elza Nave, sprinter.

Russell Curry, brother of Foy, a pole vaulter of some note, also will try out for the team. Curry went over the bar in a Kansas meet at 11½ feet last year and hopes to repeat the feat here.

Vishnu, Favorite, Winner in Tropical Park Spurt Feature Over Sloppy Track

Ladkin's Son Scores by 2 Lengths

Suspicious Is Second, Waterset Third in Florida Mud.

TROPICAL PARK, Fla., March 30 (AP).—After the sun had appeared and dried out a track which received a wetting from overnight rain, another downpour began before the first race turned the racing strip into a sea of slop and mud here today. The skies began to clear just before the fifth race, which headed the program. This event resulted in an easy victory for Miss H. M. McGonigle's Vishnu, a 5-year-old son of Ladkin which went to the post favorite at $6.60 for $2. Vishnu won by two lengths from Suspicious, owned by L. Simons, with Mrs. J. M. Black's Waterset third, another length behind. The time for the six furlongs was 1:14 3-5

Vishnu was off well and J. Mattioli lost no time in making good use of his mount's high speed. Suspicious and Dornoch gave chase but Vishnu easily opened up several lengths advantage, never to be threatened. Suspicious held on well while Dornoch stopped badly. Waterset moved up to third position before entering the stretch and nosed out Mae Sweep for the minor award. Luck In failed to show any speed.

Leroline Easy Winner.

Leroline, finding the right spot at last, easily defeated the sprinters in the 6-furlong opener. The filly graduated from the maiden ranks with a length and a half to spare over Our Senator. The latter headed Dark Fey for the place. Leroline, paying $8.30, followed the pace closely and catching Our Senator late in the stretch, she drew well clear with little effort.

Playful Martha, at the juicy odds of $13.70 for $2, came from behind to earn the second purse by a length Distribute drove to the place, a like distance before Fred Almy. The well-played Marge lost ground and was outrun. Fred Almy and Distribute tired vieing for the lead and it was an easy task for Playful Martha to run over them in the short stretch.

The talent was hard hit when Little Cynis, unprepared for the start of the third race, was left at the post. Polly Hundred, well supported at $6.30 for $2, won in a gallop by a half-dozen lengths. Pete Walls had the filly away in motion and the combination never was in danger. Earle Maxwell chased the winner from the start and was an easy second, 5 lengths before Maco.

The odds-on choice, Star Bud, towroped the field in the fourth, a mile romp. After allowing the speedy, but faint hearted, Nourrice to set the pace to the far turn, Corbett sent Star Bud to the fore and the gelding won under strong restraint by five lengths. Lauretta Nash made up ground in the final quarter and caught Nourrice in the closing strides to take second money by a head. Star Bud returned $3.90.

Again the favorite players scored, but they had several anxious moments, as Flying Gypsy got home in the sixth race. The Gallagher favorite was put to a severe test as Moira's Boy raced along with him in the early part, but he gamely shook him off and won driving by three-quarters of a length over Bert Lahr, who in turn beat Shakers' Maid three lengths for the place. The mile was turned in 1:44.

The final event, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth, was won by Gallic, who defeated the favorite, Traffic Judge, by three lengths, with Ondott third, five lengths back. The time was 1:49.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

The idea of communication by electric telegraph was not original with Samuel B. Morse, who is generally given credit for the invention. Many men before him sought to convey messages by electric signals over wires, and scores of experimenters invented and developed their own systems of telegraphy. Some of these pre-Morse systems seem ridiculous today, but at the same time they were highly ingenious. None, however, was simple enough to be practical for widespread development, as was the instrument which Morse perfected.

The first practical suggestion for electric telegraphy was made in Scotland in the latter part of the eighteenth century. In this system static electricity was used to attract pieces of paper. Forty-eight separate wires were necessary in this method.

Later developments included spark systems in which sparks on various wires indicated different letters; electrolytic telegraphs by which messages were conveyed by the effects of electricity on water, chemical compounds, or litmus paper.

Hester Prynne, the heroine of Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," is a character of fiction, but she was suggested to him, so he once said, by "an old Boston record." On evidence uncovered in old records and other sources, officials at King's Chapel graveyard in Boston placed the strange epitaph shown above at the grave of Elizabeth Pain, who died in 1704.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Overriding of President's Veto Carries Interesting Implications on Problems That Will Face Us When We Attempt to Control Inflation.

By Ralph West Robey.

So much has been said on the political aspect of the overthrow of the President's veto that one is hesitant about commenting upon the financial implications that may be involved. Nevertheless it seems to me that there are certain financial aspects which deserve some attention. This does not mean that they were predominant in any sense. Quite obviously they were not, what it does mean is that there at least is room to wonder whether without our background of inflation and Government spending the veto would have been overridden.

In other words suppose that the Administration during the past year had followed a policy of economy in a real sense instead of the lopsided program which was adopted—suppose that the President with the virtually dictatorial powers that were given him last year had treated Government finances as a whole and had seen to it that they were kept in excellent shape.

That he has not done this seems too obvious to need comment. The ordinary budget, as every one knows, is balanced not because economies were put through but because enough expenditures were shifted out of this category into the emergency classification to get the ordinary budget in balance.

Administration Has Encouraged Spending.

At no point has there been any evidence that the Administration seriously desired to keep Government expenditures as a whole at a low point. On the contrary, its whole program in this regard has been one of pouring out purchasing power. Its argument has been that in this way it would prime the pump and recovery would be hastened. Further, that once business was picked-up by such expenditures it would be possible to stop and come back to a balanced budget. In this connection, too, it is worth noting that as yet we have had no promise from the White House as to when the budget will be balanced. What we have had is merely the expression of a hope that it may be balanced in 1936.

It is not difficult to see, with this background, why a Congressman should hold that from a financial point of view this additional $225,000,000 can not be so important. The Administration has shown conclusively that it views expenditure as a desirable lever to increase the level of business activity. Its plea to Congress on the basis of sound finance, therefore, could not have any effect. It was like telling a man that it is all right for him to swim in water 100 feet deep, but that if it is 101 feet deep he is certain to drown.

Means Failure of First Attempt at Inflation Control.

There is a further point that deserves to be borne in mind in thinking of this over-riding of the President's veto. This is that it represented the first major attempt on the part of the Administration to turn back on the policy of having the Government spend an ever-increasing amount. In other words, it was the first attempt we have had to bring our inflation under control. The only possible exception to this general statement is the record of the CWA. That, however, is not truly an exception because while the CWA is being discontinued another organization has been provided to take its place.

It seems to me, therefore, that it is an error to think of this overriding of the President's veto only from the political angle. It may well prove to be a straw in the wind of what is ahead of us when other attempts are made to bring our inflationary policy under control. Then, just as now, there will be a political angle. The only difference will be that it then will consist of trying to save our "recovery."

Canada Rubber Manufacturing Trade Climbs

Improvement Is Registered as Four-Year Decline Is Halted.

Definite improvement was registered in Canada's rubber-manufacturing industry during 1933, according to a report to the Commerce Department from Commercial Attache H. M. Bankhead, Ottawa.

Sales of locally made rubber products, as reported by the Rubber Association of Canada, whose membership comprises 90 per cent of the entire Canadian rubber manufacturing industry, amounted to $41,000,000 last year, a figure slightly higher than that recorded for 1932. The outlook for the current year is believed to be favorable, the report declares.

The four years' decline of $49,800,000, or 59 per cent, in sales of Canadian rubber manufactures was halted in 1933, when sales increased $18,600 over 1932. Domestic tire sales were the only item in 1933 showing a decline as compared with 1932, the decrease amounting to $854,000.

Export tire sales in 1933 were $255,000 higher than for the preceding year. Throughout most of Canada, the report points out, the winter weather was so severe and prolonged that it was of much benefit to sales of rubber footwear.

Some of the important 1933 sales increases reported in the Canadian rubber manufacturing industry over 1932 were $288,000 for rubber soles and heels; $184,000 for rubber belting, hose, packing and other mechanical goods, and $154,000 for druggists' rubber sundries and specialties.

The survey continues:

Average daily sales in February of the 19 leading chain store companies regularly reviewed by Chain Store Age amounted to $6,800,000. This compared with $6,552,700 for January this year and $6,120,000 for February, 1933.

Gossip of New York Markets

By Claude A. Jagger.

New York, March 30 (AP).—With signs of a possible breakdown of the gold bloc multiplying, monetary experts are trying to calculate probable repercussions on the rest of the world.

Most informed circles in Wall Street are inclined to the opinion that abandonment of the old-fashioned gold standard by France and her financial satellites might be momentarily disturbing here, but doubt that it would have a deflationary effect upon American price levels.

It is pointed out that American price levels have given decisive indications of sensitiveness to the ratio of the dollar with the pound sterling and the sterling group of currencies, but little if any tieup is seen between French price levels and ours.

While a sharp drop in the pound sterling might tend to depress American price levels, owing to the importance of the sterling bloc of currencies in world trade, some economists are inclined to the view that a drop in the franc might be almost ignored.

A drop in the gold bloc currencies would, of course, tend to remove the advantage which American exporters have had in selling their goods in those countries, since the dollar was devalued, and to that extent might be considered deflationary.

In view of the recent tendency of the pound sterling to strengthen against both the dollar and the gold bloc group, some exchange experts point out that a decisive tottering of the continental currencies might prompt a sharp rise in the pound, in terms of the dollar as well as those currencies.

It has appeared that nervous capital from the gold bloc currencies has been flowing to London rather than to New York. So the principal effect might be a sharp increase in the demand for pounds, with notably less change in demand for dollars.

The signs of weakening of the gold bloc have been notable in the past few days in Switzerland, where, since resignation of the finance minister, bonds have been declining and stocks rising, a rather definite indication that investors expect inflation.

Switzerland has been hard hit by a decline in her tourist trade, since travelers find Swiss francs too expensive to buy to pay bills in Switzerland; and her export trade has suffered for the same reasons.

Member Bank Rediscounts Cut in March

Richmond Reserve Unit Reports Gain in Loans and Deposits.

Richmond, March 30 (AP).—Rediscounts for member banks at the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond last month fell to less than $2,000,000 in contrast to a rise to nearly $50,000,000 in late February and early March last year, the bank reported today in its monthly review of credit, business and agricultural conditions.

Most changes in trade and industry were seasonal in nature, the report said, with the contrasting developments in banking featuring the report.

"At the middle of March, 1934, the volume of Federal Reserve notes in circulation was nearly $67,000,000 less than outstanding circulation a year ago," the report said. "Member bank reserve deposits rose $33,000,000 during the year. Reporting member banks increased their loans, investments in securities and deposits between the middle of February and the middle of March this year, and on March 14 their investments, reserve balances and deposits were materially higher than on March 15, 1933 while their cash in vaults and their borrowing at the Reserve Bank were much lower."

Failures Are Less.

One of the most favorable single factors was the excellent commercial failure record for February, which was better than for any other month since 1920. Defaults numbered only 62, with aggregate liabilities amounting to $850,365, compared with 150 defaults and liabilities totaling $9,782,518 in February last year.

Employment was down slightly, a situation which the report attributed to the tapering off of Federal relief work and the unfavorable weather which curtailed out-of-doors work.

Agriculture felt the sting of the wind and weather with resultant damage to winter crops throughout the fifth district and extensive injury to fruit trees in some sections. Many truck crops on the Coast were reported so badly damaged that they had to be abandoned or replanted.

Farmers Stronger Financially.

Farmers, however, were seen to be "stronger financially this year than they were a year ago, and are consequently better able to equip their farms with needed live stock and machinery and to buy commercial fertilizer."

Acreage in many crops will be reduced this year, the report said, especially in tobacco.

Coal production increased and tidewater shipments of coal through Hampton Roads ports this calendar year through March 10 totaled 3,813,233 net tons, a total somewhat in excess of the 3,691,526 tons shipped through the port for the corresponding period of last year.

Textile Mills Slacken.

In the textile mills the rate of operations decreased in comparison with January of this year or February of last year, but the mills "as a rule sold their production for several weeks ahead."

Moreover, spot cotton prices on ten leading Southern markets, although declining slightly during the past month, averaged almost twice as high as the average price of 6.32 cents a pound a year ago.

Even more favorable was the record of tobacco sales with Virginia sales of leaf tobacco during February, amounting to 15,122,589 pounds for any average price of $9.76 per hundred, compared with February, 1933, sales which amounted to 6,774,786 pounds, for an average of $6.12 per hundred pounds. Total sales for the season through February amounted to 106,836,739 pounds as contrasted with last year's 62,518,688 for the corresponding period.

Construction Is Weakest.

Construction, the report said, "continued to be the weakest spot in the present business and industrial set-up, permits issued in the leading cities of the Fifth District totaling only 909 last month, and contract awards for both city and rural work were also relatively low, although double those reported for the corresponding month last year."

Despite unfavorable weather conditions retail trade was shown to be up an average of 11 per cent in the district in comparison with February, 1933, sales.

Although wholesale trade showed some season recession in several lines, its volume was well ahead of the 1933 showing.

German Cutlery Export Trade's Value Declines

Although the volume of Germany's cutlery exports during 1933 exceeded the figure for the preceding year, the value declined by 2,305,000 reichsmarks, according to a report from Vice Consul C. T. Zawadzki, Berlin, made public by the Commerce Department.

Total shipments of cutlery from Germany in 1933 amounted to 4,360 metric tons, valued at 29,901,000 reichsmarks, against 3,954 metric tons, valued at 32,206,000 reichsmarks, in 1932. The peak year in Germany's cutlery export trade was 1929, when total sales abroad amounted to 8,160 metric tons, valued at 73,391,000 reichsmarks.

Rice Duties Increased.

The French import duties on rice have been increased by a law published in the French Journal Official for March 25, 1934, according to a cablegram to the Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache H. C. MacLean, Paris. On whole rice, meal and grits, the general (maximum) rate has been increased from 34.40 francs to 137.60 francs per 100 kilos gross, and the minimum rate which was also 34.40, to 68.80 francs per 100 kilos gross. It is not known whether rice of United States origin will be subject to the new general or the new minimum rate. Rice originating in French Indio-China, the principal supplier to France, is admitted duty-

Fewer Bank Closings Reported In 1934 Than at Time in Years

Statistics Reveal Less Than 25 Institutions of Small Size and Not Participants in Federal Insurance Plan Failed During Past Three Months.

(United Press.)

Fewer bank closings than at any time in 13 years was the record revealed yesterday by the Nation's rehabilitated banking system.

Unofficial statistics showed less than 25 banks of small size and not participants in the Federal Government's Bank Deposit Insurance Corporation closed during the first three months of 1934.

This compares with the peak of 3,500 banking institutions which closed last year and failed to reopen. In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1932, Comptroller of Currency J. F. T. O'Connor reported 2,430 bank closings, although some subsequently reopened. Bank closings in the years ended June 30 since 1920 together with deposits of the institutions at the time of closing are shown in the following summary:

|---|---|---|
| 1920 | 47 | $20,725,000 |
| 1921 | 356 | 161,872,000 |
| 1922 | 465 | 162,147,000 |
| 1923 | 374 | 102,233,000 |
| 1924 | 942 | 270,075,000 |
| 1925 | 668 | 167,701,000 |
| 1926 | 638 | 177,796,000 |
| 1927 | 1,013 | 298,176,000 |
| 1928 | 505 | 144,310,000 |
| 1929 | 576 | 167,534,000 |
| 1930 | 765 | 345,013,000 |
| 1931 | 1,555 | 1,077,314,000 |
| 1932 | 2,430 | 1,760,802,000 |
| 1933 (calendar year) | 3,500 | (unavailable) |
| 1934 (first quarter) | 25 | (unavailable) |

A large part of the deposits tied up by closings is being made available through Government RFC loans, liquidation of the banks or consolidations.

Federal Reserve officials have not completed analysis of last year's banking failures nor completed statistics on the first quarter of this year.

Unofficial figures, however, show closings at the lowest level in 13 years and most of them in a few institutions which were not able to qualify for participation in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

They include:

1. Effects of the Government insurance of deposits.

2. Higher securities, commodity and real estate values which have aided banks in liquidating slow assets.

3. Recovery in business conditions which has caused the public to resume more normal banking relations.

4. More than a billion dollars of Reconstruction Finance Corporation money poured into banks to strengthen capital.

5. Increased supervision through the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

6. A heavy return flow of hundreds of millions of dollars from hoarding into legitimate banking channels.

B. & O. Shops Add $15,000 to Weekly Wages

1,000 Workers Begin Five-Day Basis; U. S. Loans Aid.

Cumberland, Md., March 30 (Spl.).—With a pay roll increase of approximately $15,000 weekly here, 1,000 Baltimore & Ohio Railroad shopmen have gone on the five-day week, it was announced by the company.

Under this new schedule the shopmen will work eight hours each day for five days, or a total of 40 hours a week.

The schedule discarded called for a 32-hour week, or an average of 4 days.

The reason for the increase in employment and wages is due to the granting of a $4,500,000 loan to the railroad by the Government.

The loan has made it possible for the company to order 5,000 freight cars repaired, it was said.

It was expected, according to the announcement that within a short time many more men would be reemployed in the car shops and that when the weather permits more will be added in the track department, which has ordered new rails.

Workers were extremely optimistic last night over the prospects of increased and steady employment, it was said.

I REALLY WASN'T WORRIED ABOUT HERMAN BEING LATE FOR SUPPER AGAIN, BUT WHEN MR. BUNGLE ASKED ABOUT HIM SO OFTEN...
I TOLD GEORGE NOT TO DO THAT.
HE'LL BE HOME BY 9 O'CLOCK. I JUST KNOW THAT.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 3-31.
HERMAN IS A GREAT HAND TO INVESTIGATE THINGS HE SEES ON THE WAY HOME, LIKE ACCIDENTS OR FIRES.
I FEEL, HONEY, THAT THERE'S REALLY NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT.
HELLO! HELLO!
IT'S HERMAN!
FINE!
HELLO, HERMAN. LISTEN....
WHAT?
MY WORD! HERMAN HAS SOLVED THE CASE....FOUND OUT THE BOY'S NAME AND EVERYTHING!
ASK HERMAN, MR. BUNGLE, IF IT ISN'T TOO MUCH TROUBLE FOR HIM, TO TELL YOU WHAT TIME HE'LL BE HOME.

'LO DIXIE!—THAT WAS A GREAT DATE WE HAD, WASN'T IT?—AND I BET YOU AND MISS NIPPER STAYED UP LATER AND CHINNED YOUR PRETTY HEADS OFF—
NOW IF YOU'RE FISHIN' FOR WHAT SHE SAID ABOUT YOU—YOU WON'T GET A NIBBLE
HONEST, THOUGH, EDGIE—FLOSSIE'S A PEACH!—SHE TOLD ME ABOUT TH' TOUGH TIME SHE HAD AS A KID AND NOW, WHEN YOU THINK OF HOW SHE'S ALL ALONE IN THE CITY—AND HOW CHEERFUL SHE IS—WELL, I THINK WE OUGHT T' BE EXTRA NICE TO HER!
WHY,—CERTAINLY!
SO DIXIE WANTS ME TO BE NICE TO FLOSSIE?—THAT'S RATHER A COINCIDENCE—

Walt Mason, Himself

No One Knows.

"No one knows what I've endured since I married Felix Force," by the wife we were assured, when she sued for a divorce. "No one knows what I have borne, what a martyr I have been; wives are made to weep and mourn o'er the wreckage they have seen. He was false to all his vows, to all honor he was dead, and I had to milk the cows while he loafed around and read. Far too lazy to provide victuals for our daily meals, he would bum around and ride in his car with yellow wheels. No one knows what grief I've known since he took me for his bride; now I wish to walk alone, with no piker by my side." "No one knows," said Felix Force, "what I've suffered from my wife; she was always rude and coarse and she fairly spoiled my life. She pretended she could cook, when I was by her ensnared, but no man would care to look at a meal that she prepared. She would tell of how she swept, how she did domestic chores; but the way our house was kept fairly drove me out of doors." Who was wrong and who was right, in this story of distress? You will need the second sight if you wish to make a guess. Most of all the tales are fudge, no one knows where truth may be, least of all the able judge who will hand down his decree.
